BUDGERIGARS, Budgerigars.—Valuable information on the successful breeding and keeping of these highly popular foreigners will be found in "Nutshell No. 18," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., or 2d. from our agents, a list of whom is published frequently.

GREEN Amazon Parrot, handsome plumage, talks plainly as any grey bird, fully 150 words and long sentences, capital mimic, laugh, cries, dances, whistles, and sings several tunes, four years old, perches on shoulder and talks to you, also kisses you, walks about house and garden, won't fly, a genuine talker, £3 15s., sent approval before purchase: E. Milton, Eagle Chambers, Liverpool.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

THOSE about to buy a Grey Parrot will be saved money and disappointment if they read "Nutshell No. 17," before making the purchase. Those who already have a Grey will also find much in this booklet that is instructive and helpful. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2½d. From agents (see list frequently published), 2d.

WAXBILLS! (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

THE ZOO, HANDSWORTH, BIRMINGHAM

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C

EAST HAM F.S.

Young stock show will be held at the Recreation Hall, Romford Road, Manor Park, E., on October 19th, 2 p.m. to 9.30 p.m. Mr. W. L. Rae will judge cage birds. Entries to be sent not later than last post 12th inst to H. Rutter, Sec., 126, Altmore Ave., East Ham.

FRASERBURGH.

At meeting held Dalrymple Cafe, Fraserburgh, on September 24, it was unanimously agreed to hold a one-day show of cage birds, etc., on December 25. The following were appointed office-bearers:—President, Mr. Jas. Yeats; vice-pres., Mr. Edward Hendry; sec., Mr. Robert Bruce, 48, Charlotte St.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Fortnightly meeting held Sept. 28, Mr. Swan presiding. Show rules were revised and condensed. Next meeting Oct. 12, will be devoted to questions. Novice members invited. I should be glad to receive unpaid subscriptions, and to hear of any specials or guarantees for open show.—J. Jeffrey, Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

At the usual monthly meeting, there was a fair turnout of members. Stewards, runners, and other officials for annual show were appointed. Secretary announced that the society had again secured the patronage of the N.B.B.M. and F.B.C. Club. Owing to one or two of the distant members not having forwarded specials lists it was decided to adjourn the meeting until October 12, when all specials will be drawn for.—Geo. Havver, Sec.

PAISLEY TANNAHILL C.S.

Monthly meeting held in Lockie's, 2, St. James Street, Oct. 5, Mr. R. Neil presiding before a meagre attendance. The following were elected officers for the ensuing year:—Pres., Mr. R. Neil; vice-pres., Mr. T. Hamilton; treas., Mr. A. Ferguson; sec., Mr. J. Stewart; auditors, Messrs. A. McDonald and J. Gillies; amalgamation delegates, Messrs. T. Hamilton and H. Powell. Members are requested to have all entries in by the meeting held Oct. 19, when a large attendance is expected.—John Stewart, Sec.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS. O.S.

Meeting held Mechanics' Institute, Oct. 8, R. Rhodes, Esq., in the chair. A good attendance of members. Schedule of open show was passed, and the special prize list arranged. We are offering eight silver-plated teapots for most points in each section and a good special for best bird in each section. All members who have paid subs. for 1912 will be admitted free to the open show. Good special prizes for members. Meetings will be held weekly up to show date. Next meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 15.—J. G. Royce, assist. hon. sec.

GRIMSBY AND CLEETHORPES ROLLER C.S.

Meeting held Sept. 29, Mr. Ives presiding over a fair attendance. Nine birds were brought by members, all of them breaking into song, and causing an interesting discussion on the quality, faults, etc. It was unanimously agreed that all members of this society should support the International Roller Show, to be held in London on February 7 and 8, 1913, and no other on those dates. The hon. sec. was pleased to inform the members that the B.R.C.C. had promised their patronage at our forthcoming show. Having previously obtained that of the P.R.C.C., we should have no anxiety as to the success of our second attempt. Next meeting will be devoted to drawing up the schedule, and members are requested to attend, or advise the hon. sec. of any specials they have to offer.—H. Mason, Sec.

OLDHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

Social held Sept. 28, at Headquarters, when tea was on the table at 5.30. Although we were not overwhelmed numerically, we spent a very enjoyable evening. We had as artistes Mr. Tom Highton, who sang in good style, also Messrs. Hulton and Addison. We were once again favoured with our old friend, Mr. Hargreaves, at the piano, while Mr. Green, who was deputising for Mr. Turner, made a capital M.C. Mr. Fred Steeple gave us selections on the concertina. Just before our party came to a close, Mr. Steeple moved, and Mr. Sharples seconded, a vote of thanks to our host and hostess for the splendid manner in which they had catered for us, also to the artistes for the manner in which they did their duty. Mr. Sharples hoped that at our next party all would bring a friend, and I would be glad to see his wish carried out.—Jas. Cope, Sec.

S. WALES & MONMOUTHSHIRE FED. OF F. AND F. SOCIETIES

Executive meeting held at Cardiff, Sept. 28. It was decided to purchase cups to be competed for at affiliated societies by affiliated members. Mr. W. J. Davies (Trebarris) kindly promised to present one of the cups, the affiliated societies purchasing the other three. There will be now two cups to be competed for at all the affiliated societies by affiliated members for cage birds (that is, where cage birds are catered for); one given by Mr. A. E. Silk, Whitstable, in the Norwich Novice Section, for most points gained at end of season, and the other the Federation Cup, for most points gained at end of season in the cage bird section. These specials ought to increase the number of entries considerably. The rules of the Federation were also distributed. Secretaries are asked to take note of the points gained by their members, and send a return of same to the Federation secretary at end of season.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, the "Feathers" Hotel, Gt. Chapel Street, Westminster, September 26. Present: Messrs. Robson, chairman, Dewhurst, Puck, Shepherd, Trower, Maxwell, Askew, Marley, Grahame, Mortlock, and Carr. Letter read from the Sheffield C.B.S. stating that they had extended their classification, and asking for further patronage. To meet this Mr. Marley very kindly gave a silver medal for most points in the Hybrid and British section. Letter read from Mr. G. Lawrance respecting the allotting of a gold medal he presented to the club. Decided to allot this for most points in the British and Hybrid sections at Sheffield, Leicester, and Nottingham shows. Mr. Plumbridge wrote tendering his resignation as joint secretary. Under the circumstances stated in Mr. Plumbridge's letter, the committee had no alternative, but to accept his resignation with the deepest regret. Decided, that a letter should be written to Mr. Plumbridge conveying a very hearty vote of thanks for his past valuable services, and that it be signed by the officials and committee of the club. Mr. Carr consented to carry on the work until the end of the year. Decided to offer a gold medal for the member introducing most new members, and a silver for the second most. Not less than six new members for the gold, and three for the silver. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—J. P. Carr, Hon. Sec.

Mr. C. Houlton will judge at Winsford Show, Dec. 14.

Mr. C. E. Silk, Emsworth, is judging at Newport (Mon.), Dec. 24.

Mansfield C.B.S. holds its annual show on Oct. 19, writes Mr. B. Gabbitass, and the schedules are now ready.

There are specials in all classes at Blackwood, Oct. 17, writes Mr. W. H. Coleman, Secretary; also a cup for best bird, to be won three times.

We hear from Mr. Bishop, hon. sec., that Dr. W. Craig is giving a challenge cup to be won outright in Novice Yorks. Section at Sheffield on Nov. 1 and 2.

Owing to early date of shows, secretaries will oblige by applying for Ramsden's specials, enclosing coupons with application, at as early a date as possible.—(Advt.)

The New Cross and Dis. C.B.S., write Messrs. Barton and Barton, joint hon. secs., 8, Amersham Grove, New Cross, have fifteen silver spoons, and two cups to be won outright, besides several other specials, at the 2nd annual show, Nov. 7.

We are asked to notify the following changes of addresses: Mr. Jas. Bunting, from Black Lane to Moss Lane Cottage, Moss Lane, Macclesfield; D. Smyth, Eden Terrace to 14 Tivoli Terrace, N. Kingstown, Dublin; T. Groves, No. 20, to 39, Adelaide Street, Brierley Hill.

Irish exhibitors please note, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Deacon, Hon. Secs., 68, Brunswick Road, Liverpool, that there is a cup given for most points gained by exhibits from Ireland at Liverpool show, Nov. 1-2. Send for a schedule at once. Special arrangements for exhibits if sent.

Mr. F. G. Bale, of Barnstaple, the well-known breeder of Crested Canaries, writes:—The Roberts' Cup, valued £25, the property of the Crested Canary Club, will be in competition at the Barnstaple and North Devon show, Oct. 29 and 30. This is the first time the trophy has been competed for at Barnstaple, and should be the means of rousing keener interest amongst breeders of the variety. Particulars were not in time for publication in our schedule.

Hayle Show will be held Dec. 4th and 5th, and the officials hope exhibitors will support them, as, owing to clashing with other shows, they have had to alter the date.

The judges for Scotch Fancy at our open show on Nov. 30, writes Mr. A. Miller, Sec. Dundee C.B.S., are Mr. Jas. Strachan, Arbroath, and Mr. Robt. Thomas, Dundee.

At a Committee meeting of the Bedford C.B.S., it was decided, writes Mr. Wiggins, the secretary, to have a string band to play during the show, Oct. 17. Members are requested to send their entries early.

In Kelty and Blairadam show schedule, special No. 4 (Hyde's) is confined to a two miles radius, writes Mr. A. Dickson, Secretary. We hope for the same good support as formerly in this, one of the best managed shows in Scotland. We mean to still deserve it.

There will be a judging competition at Newcastle show, Oct. 18-19, writes Mr. J. W. Reed, Secretary. First prize 10s., 2nd 5s., 3rd 3s.; entrance fee 3d. Will members who have tickets for drawing, return same before 4 p.m., Oct. 19. Mr. R. Patterson will give duck for best Border in members' classes as an extra prize.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Thomas Wright

It is with regret that we hear from Mr. R. B. Wright, Clubmoor, of the death of his father, Mr. Thomas Wright, J.P., one of the finest sportsmen in that part of the country, and a great lover of birds and animals. Mr. Wright was a very fine judge, a devoted and loving father, and was considered one of the finest scientific agriculturists in Cheshire on a large scale. He leaves a widow, a son and four daughters to mourn his loss. The cause of death was cancer of the stomach.

Mr. J. Smith (Coldstream).

I am sorry to inform you, writes Mr. J. W. Bruce, of the death of Mr. J. Smith, Orchard House, Coldstream, on October 3rd, at the early age of twenty years. Although quite a young man, the deceased was a great lover of, and a well-known exhibitor of the Border Fancy, and last year was very successful at all the large shows, which was all the more credit to him, as all the birds he exhibited were of his own breeding. Never having been in very robust health, and being unable to do anything during the last four years, the Fancy was his pastime, and he always looked forward for the show season to relieve the monotony of his frail existence. While visiting Sunderland show last season, he received a severe chill, which seems to have never left him. His last wish was for his father to be sure and keep the birds. Members of the B. and C. Club will regret to hear of his early decease, and we tender our deepest sympathy to his father and sisters and brothers.

We are notified that schedules of the following shows have been sent out. Exhibitors desiring copies should write the respective secretaries, see show advts.: Hartlepools, Oct. 26; Manchester, Oct. 25-26; Blackwood, Oct. 17.

Having to undergo an operation, writes Mr. A. Lazarus, the well-known breeder and exhibitor of Crests, I shall have to part with all my stock, knowing no one to undertake the responsibility in my place, and am advertising the same this week.

The secretary of Plymouth Show, writes Mr. A. Walker, Torquay, has arranged that any exhibits entered from Torquay will be forwarded by midnight train from Plymouth, due at Torquay at 4 a.m., so that exhibitors can enter for both shows easily.

The North Eastern Railway are running the following half-day excursions with bookings to Middlesbro' on Oct. 19:—Tynemouth, Newcastle, etc.; South Shields, Sunderland, etc.; Middleton-in-Teesdale, Barnard Castle, Winston and Darlington; Leeds, Bradford, Harrogate, Thirsk, etc.; West Cliff, etc., and Boosbeck.

I am glad to inform the cage bird fanciers of Wales, writes Mr. Daniel John, Sec., that the old chairman of the Llanelly and Dis. C.B.S., Councillor D. R. Jones, has once again accepted the office of chairman after a twelve months' grace. I am also proud to say that the society is in a flourishing condition; six new members this season. Our balance at the bank to commence the next show stands at £5 19s. 1d.

In the "Avicutural Magazine," the organ of the Avicultural Society, for October, Mr. Teschemaker concludes his very interesting account of the rearing of Black Redstarts in captivity. Dr. Gunther writes of the breeding in captivity of the Red-backed Shrike. Mr. F. Finn contributes an article, illustrated with a coloured drawing by Mr. Goodchild, on the two Nonpariels. Other items are, "August, 1912," by Miss E. M. Hincks; The Transport of Birds, Mr. F. Finn; Practical Bird-keeping (Cranes), Mr. R. Cosgrave; Bird Notes from the Zoo, by the Curator, and the usual correspondence and reviews.

SENSATIONAL RUMOUR FROM HUDDERSFIELD SHOW.

Reported Missing Entries and Fees.

A rumour has reached us of somewhat sensational character concerning Huddersfield show, held last Saturday. The fixture is the first on the season's programme of the Yorkshire Union. The rumour is to the effect that a large number of entries and fees are missing, not having reached the officials of the society—we are given to understand that at least fifty entries are affected, having apparently been "lost in the post." Mr. Frank Sykes, the secretary of the Huddersfield O.S., is dealing with this serious occurrence, and has promised to supply readers of Cage Birds with a full explanation of the mystery when the matter is cleared up, which everyone will hope may soon prove to be the case.

Messrs. Richardson and Fairman write thanking donors to prize fund for the Dulwich and Peckham show, on November 3rd, and would like to hear from all friends by return, as the committee meet on Tuesday next to allot specials. They are hoping for a record show.

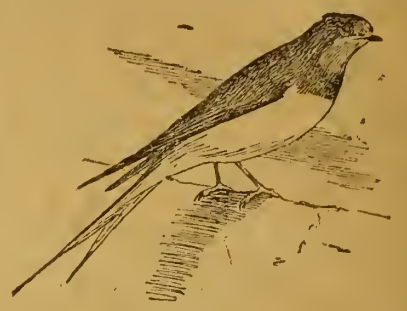
Will fanciers please note, writes Mr. Will H. Gibb, Hon. Sec., 19, Bond St., Brighton, that added prize money is being given in the non-colour-fed classes at the Brighton show, Nov. 14-15, making it 12s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s.; Mr. G. Chaude having kindly given the additional 5s. per class. Classes have also been made for Borders, also Novices, Yorks, and Nor. Schedules will be sent to any fancier writing. See this week's advt.

The numerous friends of Mr. Fred Hammond, the deservedly popular Bradford fancier, and treasurer of the Yorkshire Union, will be deeply sorry to hear that Mrs. Hammond has been seriously ill and under the doctor's constant care for the last fortnight. It is a great pleasure to us to be able to say that the latest report is more favourable than hitherto given, and we trust it marks the turning point to speedy and complete recovery.

We are adding to our classification this year, write Messrs. King and Joiner (Portsmouth C.B.S.) two special test classes, one for non-fed Norwich and the other for Cinnamons. If these are supported, we shall be encouraged to increase same next year, as we are doing this year with Borders. We are having six classes, including two for novices, open, instead of two; also five open novice Norwich, and six open novice Yorks. Our worthy treasurer's wife has kindly promised this year, as last, to have a cup of tea, etc., in readiness about 4.30 each day of our show, at which our exhibitors and visitors will be heartily invited.

One of the best-managed and oldest-established fixtures in the country is Plymouth Show, held Tuesday and Wednesday next, Oct. 15 and 16, and exhibitors should note that entries are extended, owing to the poor number received. Those sent to reach on Saturday (Oct. 12) will be in time, and if the senders have not a schedule, the secretary, Mr. T. Pope (98, Embankment Rd., Plymouth) will classify them if the birds are duly described. The entry fee is only 1s. 6d. and there are no fewer than five money prizes (10s., 5s., 3s. 6d., 2s. and 1s. 6d.) and a grand lot of special prizes in addition—very liberal treatment. Further, full prize-money is paid first day of show, and no amalgamation of classes is practised. Exhibitors should rally round Mr. Pope and his fellow-members.

Entries Extended.



Exhibitors should note that entries are short at the following shows, and that the date of closing has been extended:—Bedford, Blackwood (average not one per class), Plymouth, Torquay, Newcastle.

Wild-Bird Life.

Swallows and Martins.

At last we are having a spell of fine weather, and, although the autumn tints of the woods remind us that we are soon to witness the fall of the leaf, every fine day is one to be enjoyed in the open as much as our occupations will allow. The Swallows and Martins are still with us, and while these remain we feel that it is not yet winter. During the day they wheel and twist about the buildings and down the streets as joyously as they did in the early summer, but sometimes the nights are cold, and in the early morning they can be seen upon the roofs of houses facing the east, seeking a little warmth from the sun, struggling through the mist. They have not the bright alert look of other birds, but appear numbed and dazed, and one wonders why they are so loth to leave our fickle climate. Although they are at all times most interesting birds to watch, they appear to be unusually so in the autumn, when they gather in their hundreds preparatory to the journey southwards. To such strong winged birds as these, a jaunt of a few hundred miles can mean very little more than a day's flight. One would think that few would perish on the journey, yet from year to year we can see no difference in the numbers that spend the summer with us. They may have deadly enemies in other lands that sadly reduce their number during the winter.

OUR "SHOW GUIDE."

Fanciers should note the following additions and corrections to the "Show Guide," published last week.

Mr. R. J. Blackmore judges Belgians at Barnstaple show, Oct. 29 and 30; Mr. Heath the remainder. At Doncaster show, Nov. 22 and 23, Mr. J. Wilcock is one of the three judges, and not Mr. J. Walsh. Nov. 20, "Brighton," should be altered to read, Nov. 20, Reading.

Oct. 16, Witham (Essex); (20 mile radius).
Oct. 23, St. Austell (Cornwall).
Oct. 23 and 24, Hayle (confined to Cornwall).
Oct. 26, Braintree (Essex).
Oct. 26, Swindon (Berks).
Oct. 31, Northwood (Middlesex); Treharris (Glam.).
Nov. 2, Cleator Moor (Cumberland).
Nov. 6, Windsor.
Nov. 6, Bodmin (Cornwall), Maidenhead (Berks.).
Nov. 12, Haverfordwest.
Nov. 20, Cirencester.
Nov. 28, Chichester.

Rat Plague in France.

Rats are again devastating certain agricultural districts on the Eastern frontier of France, and the French Government has made a special grant of £8,000 to be spent on their destruction, which is being effected by the application of Danysz Virus in liquid form, prepared by the Pasteur Institute, Paris, who are at present sending out several hundred quart bottles of Danysz Virus daily. This same preparation can, of course, be obtained at the Danysz Virus Depot, 52, Leadenhall Street, London; it is regularly advertised in our columns, and has been very highly spoken of by bird-breeders.

New Cross Going Ahead.

It may interest some of your numerous South London readers to know that the New Cross and Dis. C.B.S. have decided to hold their annual members' show, writes Mr. G. Burton, the vice-chairman, at the People's Hall, Tanner's Hill, Deptford, on Nov. 7, and have engaged Mr. Norman to judge. Fanciers joining at once will be eligible to compete. This society caters specially for the novice, and is rapidly going ahead; a glance at the list of specials would astonish other societies with a much larger membership. We have also decided to set aside a sum for advertising the show, as we are alive to the fact that no show can succeed without this is done, and Cage Birds reaches a larger number of fanciers than any other paper.

The Musical Box of the Canary Family :

How the Roller Canary is Trained to Sing.

By J. TOMLINSON (Newcastle, Staffs.).

SOME birds may be kept in bad company during certain seasons of the year, and still refuse to sing a fault. I have heard it said that there is no probable danger of a bird learning any imperfection after its song is fixed, that is, about the age of nine months, when it has learned all it is likely to be taught. The only possible chance of it acquiring fault is during the moulting season, when itself out of song, is within hearing of the faulty. Yet I maintain an idea in contradiction of my statement as to the similarity of natures, when I assert that the percentage of faultless singers that come out of the breeding room at the close of a season's work, after being in bad company, is exceedingly small.

Do Not Procrastinate.

If the fancier has a bird with a good variety of tours, and say only one fault, while the rest of his cocks have the same fault coupled with another, or perhaps others, let him at once isolate this cock out of hearing of all his other singers. I have had several valuable birds' song spoiled through procrastination under the same circumstances. Yet again I have had others that have proved "White Hens," but I should add they had not a whole season in the breeding room.

The owner should study the temperament of his best songster, and, if after being given a little stimulating food (mixed seed, egg food) the bird is inclined to get excited, and to raise the tone of its voice, or sing short broken snatches of song, the diet must be cut down to the staple of best summer rape. The amount of light previously allowed daily should also be curtailed.

Placing the Young Under Tuition.

Coming to the question, "When should the tutor be placed in the training room?" I believe all will agree this should be done as early as possible, so that the youngsters can gain some benefit from the tutor's singing before he begins to moult. Should he continue his song during the moulting period, it will be a great advantage to his scholars. Place the tutor in such a position that his song will be easily recognisable to his pupils. He should not be allowed to song at his own sweet will all day long, but should be placed in a song cabinet, and the doors opened about twice each day, if oftener, the intervals when full daylight is given should be curtailed.

The above old-fashioned way of using the tutor is advantageous to the fancier whose occupation necessitates his absence from home for long periods; but it is likely to have a detrimental effect on the song of the tutor. It hears the calls of the young cocks; it will answer them, and repeatedly break into song on this inducement when the cabinet doors are closed. It would sing in a subdued tone of voice when closed up, but, I maintain that in the old-fashioned way of training, more tuition is given than is necessary.

I would advise the fancier who has the necessary time at his disposal, to introduce the tutor into the training room twice each day, and allow the bird to have full daylight during the period it is with the young cocks. When it is isolated again the cage doors can be kept closed.

How to Dodge Faulty Notes in the Tutor.

Instances may occur when a fancier, for various reasons, may be unable to provide a bird which has the necessary song qualification to merit its use for tutoring. Cases of this kind can readily be sympathised with as very disheartening, as it is our ambition to produce a paragon, or, at least, something better than we have had previously. A way out of the dilemma is to tutor with a bird that sings his faults only at the end of his song, as such songsters can be easily found. Let the fancier make himself thoroughly conversant with the bird's song, so that he will know the precise moment when it will break off from its good tours to the faulty ones. He can then bring the bird into the training room, taking up a position close to the cage with its doors opened, and when the bird has sung all its good tours, and is on the point of breaking away to the imperfections, gently but quickly raise the hand to the front of the cage. This interruption prevents it singing the faults.

After singing a few times, the bird should be removed from the room, and the process should be repeated on the same day, or on the following and succeeding days. It is obvious that if this procedure is strictly followed the young birds will only hear that which will be beneficial to them. I am fully cognisant that this modus operandi is a tedious one. I failed in its use myself some years ago, being unable to give the necessary time to its application, but I have recorded it, trusting that others may profit where I failed.

I have utilised considerable space in detailing the choice and care of the tutor, my excuse being I consider it so very important a subject to all who have a good strain of stock birds.

A Chip of the Old Block.

Mr. A. W. Spillman, a son of that highly-respected West-country Norwich Plainhead enthusiast, Mr. W. Spillman (Devonport). Mr. Spillman, junr., is also a great lover of birds. The photograph was taken in London, where he has been studying for an exam.

Combating Three Troubles.

To return to the young birds. After they are able to crack canary and mixed seeds, trouble will sometimes appear. As a rule, the first is inflammation of the bowels, then feather plucking and red mite. I believe everyone knows the first aid for the former—the bread and milk diet. If no benefit is derived from this, remove the seed and water, and substitute milk for a drink. One not acquainted with the ailment will notice on examination that the stomach is red and swollen. As the trouble becomes acute, the colour becomes deeper, red veins showing. Later, the outline of a large bowel can be easily traced—which is filled with a quantity of watery matter—proceeding in an almost direct line along the stomach, from the termination of the breast-bone to the vent.

An effective remedy, used effectively by myself as well as others I have advised, is brandy and glycerine, mixed in equal proportions. The dose is three or four drops administered directly into the beak from the end of a quill. Repeat the dose after an hour's interval. When an improvement is noticed in the bird's condition the doses may be given at longer intervals.

I think all know the remedy for feather plucking—isolation for the culprits, as also the victims. As for the red-mite plague, it is not everyone who is able to give the necessary time to that frequently advised camel-hair brush and bottle of some obnoxious-smelling stuff, so, to obtain the maximum of effect with a minimum of labour, it is advisable to use red-mite trap perches. Elderberry wood yields itself readily to the making of these, the pith being easily removed to a depth of one and a half inches from both ends of the perch. In making them, cut the perch long enough to project through the wire front one inch from the cage; cut out a socket from the perch to allow the punch bar to fit into it; this will hold the perch firmly, and by means of the finger-hold obtained in the outside projection, it may be easily removed, tapped over a fire, or a bucket of water, and replaced without putting the hand inside the cage. Small cracks in the woodwork should be filled with putty, allowed to dry, and then receive a good coating with enamel.

Unprolificacy in Canaries

By J. STEEL (Dalkeith).

A well-considered and intensely interesting article which will cause Canary breeders to think.

THE second, third, and fourth year my experiments were confined to ascertaining whether prolificacy could be engendered by crossing the offspring of prolific with unprolific stock, and I found that the tendency to unprolificacy far outweighed the better quality. This I have verified by experiments since, and, taking careful note of results, I have no hesitation in saying that only by absolute elimination of the unprolific can a standard of reproductive power be maintained.

My experiments proved that by adopting this method prolificacy can be engendered to a degree which is astonishing. I have myself bred seventeen Mules in one season from a hen which was itself bred from a sixth generation of stock bred for prolificacy by eliminating the unfit. Mr. J. Black, of this town, bred no less than 19 Canaries from her female offspring in one season. Bad feeding in the hens became so exceptional that I very seldom found occasion to apply the closure to a hen's career on that account.

Blamed for Eliminating the Unfit.

That my method was drastic I will not deny, and many blamed me for being cruel; I reasoned that it would be more cruel to bring a bird into existence so devoid of maternal instinct as to sit unconcerned while its helpless progeny starved to death. More cruel to bring into existence a lot of unhealthy birds whose life could only be a torment to themselves and a source of worry to anyone who had the misfortune to possess them. Let those who condemn my methods on the ground of cruelty involved, go into the fields and woods and see how nature holds the balance level. Her ways are more cruel than mine, aye, a thousandfold.

That success with a cult is in a great measure dependent on suitable conditions every breeder is aware, but a prevailing tendency to look on diet and accommodation as the Alpha and Omega of management leads to some peculiar reasons being advanced as the cause, when certain evils become manifest in a stock.

Thus, unprolificacy is often attributed to the way the wind blows. Who has not heard the unfortunate fancier whose hens have either failed to lay, or have been troubled with egg-binding, or have laid unfertile eggs, or eggs of which the majority failed to hatch, attributing all these calamities to the wind being from the east. The fact that some brother fancier is at the same time wondering where he is going to put all his young birds, so prolific is his stock, is lost on the unfortunate fancier, he sees no lesson in such direct contradiction of his wind theory.

Take him to where the flimsy nest of the delicate Sedge Warbler hangs on the reeds and sways in the breeze. Compare the species with a Canary, and contrast its exposure with the comforts of his own snugly sheltered stock. Tell him that thousands of Canaries every winter withstand climatic conditions which would kill these delicate migrants in a few moments, and still he will not be convinced that he must find a more tangible cause for unprolificacy than air in motion.

How many British birds do we find dead on the nest by reason of a failure to survive the task of parturition? How many British birds have clutches of sterile eggs, or eggs the embryo of which perish before or after hatching? Watch a Wren or Tit foraging for insects wherewith to feed a family of ten or twelve. Does she give up the task in disgust? Contrast her labours with those of a hen Canary which has every requirement supplied, and which receives high praise if she feeds half of that number.

Quality versus Quantity.

In making of bird-foods there is no end. I have visited bird-rooms where the owner was at his wits' end to invent some new form of food, having exhausted all forms from pudding to nuts, in a vain endeavour to induce his hens to feed. And all the while a brother fancier was rearing brood after brood and shouting the praises of—dog biscuits! I have seen (in a mirror) the budding enthusiast, on the strength of his success with a common, and prolific, stock, launch forth as a full-fledged breeder of Exhibition Canaries. He knew he could breed them, but what a falling off was there, my countrymen! Four young out of eight pairs, and a tale of mortalities which would have provoked the sympathies of an undertaker. No doubt he got good advice from an expert, but the value of that advice may be calculated by that expert's own results, two seasons later, three young from eleven pairs. He had been improving the quality of his stock.

Some fanciers attribute unprolificacy to providential intervention, or luck, and accept such with a stoical resignation which never fails to command praise in the results column, with hopes for a better season next year. But what course does he adopt to prevent a repetition of such unprolificacy? I could sum up all the remedial measures I have ever heard proposed as cures for inherent unprolificacy, and give instances of their failure, when applied, with the exception of that I have here proposed, and which cannot be termed a remedial, but a preventive or check on deterioration. I will now deal with a few of those manifestations of unprolificacy, beginning at zero, the barren hen.

Whether the term barren should be confined to those hens which never lay, or should include those which lay eggs which invariably prove sterile, is an open question. I think the term is often applied to birds which do not merit the epithet. Many fanciers are unaware that the vital spark of ability or the desire to reproduce may, for some reason beyond human understanding, remain undeveloped for a period of time equal to that at which reproduction would cease. Thus the failure of a hen to lay for a period of even six years is not conclusive proof of sterility, as I have seen hens which proved more or less reproductive after four or five years of that state which Sir Walter Raleigh described as maiden meditation.

Curiosities of Sex.

The difficulty of recognising hermaphrodism in the birds is the reason why so few instances of its occurrence in the Canary have been recorded. Such a specimen would simply be regarded as a sterile individual of what ever sex it most resembled in external appearance or characteristics. I have possessed one, and seen another, which provided good grounds for the belief that they were such, inasmuch that all attempts to sex them proved futile.

Mine appeared to be a female in everything short of laying eggs, and would brood and feed foster eggs and young notwithstanding that she did not lay. Being a well marked four point, I kept her for three years in hopes of her latent powers becoming developed. To my surprise her actions underwent a change, and her attitude towards other hens were characteristic of a male, inasmuch as she would drop her wings, and sing and dance round a forward hen, and never failed to get a good drubbing. I never saw a hen offer to receive her advances.

To sum up, barrenness in a hen may be described as a failure of the generative organs to perform their functions, either because of a malformed or diseased state of same, inherent or acquired.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

AVIARY (T. D. X.).—The aviary you propose building is really only a good size flight cage, and is much too small to accommodate two cocks and four hens for breeding. One cock and two hens would be ample to stock it, and even with this number in the space at disposal I cannot promise you certain success, as the hens would be apt to make a hash of the business by interfering with each other's domestic arrangements. You could utilise this space to far greater advantage by having four single breeding cages, each 20in. long, arranged in two tiers. Then you could run a hen in each cage, and use two cocks to mate alternately with two hens each. You would require another flight to which to transfer the young broods when able to do for themselves. Sorry I cannot tell you the best way to make front of the aviary if you decide to go on with it, as this naturally depends upon the position the aviary occupies. But the wire fronts now on the market are practically unbeatable taken all round, and they can be got made to measure to fit any place or size.

LIZARD-NORWICH CROSSING (C. H. F.).—If you will pardon the "bull," the best way to introduce Lizard blood into the Norwich is to leave it severely alone. In the old days of the small, chubby, tight-feathered Norwich the Lizard was often introduced to improve colour, but in these days the cross would be worse than useless, as it would only put you back and cause you the trouble to breed it out again. It is not unlikely that the person you refer to had introduced a Lizard cross—plenty of fanciers living to-day have done the same thing—but I seriously doubt such an introduction of late years. For information about both useful and detrimental crosses you should get Part XIV. of "Our Canaries," which our Manager could send you.

LIKE A FOOT ROT (W. Clay).—This seems a very peculiar case. It is not very uncommon for some old birds to peck off the scales of their feet whilst moulting, and sometimes even cause a little bleeding, but for the feet to peel as you say, and bleed so freely, is not very common. Have you been using any strong insecticide about the ends of perches, or bathing the feet in anything? Anyway, try the following, and if not considerably better after a week or so, write again, and give fuller particulars. Keep floor and perches of cage scrupulously clean. Catch bird gently, and bathe feet for a few minutes daily in a lukewarm solution of extract of wych hazel, say a teaspoonful of extract in a teacupful of warm water. After bathing absorb moisture from them with a wad of soft linen, but do not wipe or rub them at all. Then gently anoint with a little lanocylin.

YOUNG CRESTS COUGHING (John Hannaford).—There is certainly a fair chance to cure five-months-old birds of coughing, but they ought not to be troubled in this way. Judging from condition of the first-named hen I fear you are keeping them under very unfavourable conditions. Look well into the matter and see that the birds are not exposed to cold draughts, damp, or rapid extremes of heat and cold, and do not allow them to hang near or over burning lights in the evenings, nor high up near the ceiling. Keep them for the present in a comfortable and equable temperature, but not necessarily an overheated one. In addition to the usual seed diet give a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake in which you have mixed four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion, and sprinkled with maw seed, every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days twice each week give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, black rape, teazle, and broken groats, and a spray of green food four times a week. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece for three consecutive days. After this give 20 drops of whisky, five each of ipecacuanha wine, and oxymel of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus well shaken in the water two days in every three for a week, and every second day afterwards for another fortnight if necessary. Treat both birds alike, and remember that the preventive measures indicated are of much greater importance than any amount of dosing with drugs and nostrums.

SEED SAMPLES.—Two querists this week, "Avis" and "An Anxious One," refer to samples of canary seed sent with query. Only one sample reached me in a bullfish-white paper bag such as seedsmen use to weight out small quantities of a pound or so of seed and no mark to show to whom it belonged. The seed varies a good deal in size, but is clean, sweet, well ripened, and a good all-round quality. Querists should always pack samples very carefully, and place their non-de-plume on the wrapper.

MOVING BIRD OUTDOORS (W. H.).—You would certainly make a mistake in moving the bird at this season from a warm living-room to an unheated outdoor aviary, and just as it is starting to moult, too. The room, from your description, is not an ideal place for the bird by any means, but to place it outside would be almost certain to bring much greater trouble. If you can manage it, transfer the bird to another room within doors, where no fires are kept, but see that it is free from cold draughts and damp impure air. Keep it there until a mild spell of weather next March, or end of February, when you may place it in the aviary outside without running any grave risk of doing it harm. The sunflower seeds it filched from the Goldfinch when in the aviary before would be beneficial rather than otherwise.

FOR SINGING AND BREEDING (J.L.).—I think a well-trained Scifert, or a St. Andreasburg Roller would be most likely to give you full satisfaction. The pure, deep hollow Rollers, of which the class you mention is one, are not always so well appreciated as they might be unless one has a cultivated ear, so to speak, and the particular type you mention is not the best for keeping its song pure and uncorrupted. The novice practically always looks for greater variety of song than is usually found in these birds, and this you can get in the varieties recommended. There is practically no difference in a bird's ability to withstand our climate, whether it is bred in England or Germany. Yes, feed and treat the bird generally as advised in No. 10 Nutshell booklet on "The Roller."

BIRD SHELLING SEED (Avis).—It is usually done by birds in a very low condition, and is probably due to a fickle appetite. Give a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape in the seed-box. For a week give fresh each day a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, dusted with soft sugar. Every second day give a pinch of equal parts inga, teazle, and maw, and on the alternate days a spray of seeding chickweed or green plantain stalk. In the drinking water add every second day six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece. In the next week give the bread and milk every second day only, the mixed seed, with one part of hemp added, on the alternate days, and in the water add four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. The latter may be continued for a fortnight if necessary. See reply under heading "Seed Samples."

ALMOST LIKE BALLOONS (Old Ebor).—You should have been a little more definite in your description of the blown-out appearance. Is it merely the feathers that are puffed out loosely, or the skin that seems to be blown out around body? If the latter, it is blown by an accumulation of air underneath, and requires pricking with a perfectly clean needle to let off the air. In any case, treat any future cases the same as advised to "Avis" two or three weeks, and when they are first seen going puffy mix together two parts of brandy to one of syrup of buckthorn, and give one drop of this mixture in the beak morning and evening for two days. Should any more die, you would be well advised to send a body to Mr. Yates for post-mortem.

MECHANICAL TUTOR (T.W.W.).—The Queck Roller organ which you may often see advertised in our columns during the proper season, or one of a similar type, is the only instrument worth troubling with for teaching young Rollers to sing. I think the price is about £3 10s. Cheap organs or flutes and similar contrivances at a shilling or two are worse than useless for teaching good Rollers to sing. One or two good schoolmaster birds are an invaluable aid to an organ for tutoring. Young cocks should have been under tuition long before this time.

YOUNG DYING (An Anxious One).—See reply under heading "Seed Samples." If the sample belonged to you, it is certainly dear enough at the price you name, but you must remember it is getting rather dear now, owing, it is said, to scarcity of supply. You should have given fuller details of your system of feeding the young during the period when the deaths occur. Possibly you take them entirely off soft food a little too soon. I'm afraid your present treatment will not be of much advantage. When you feel tired of it, try what the following will do. Staple diet plain canary. Every day give a pinch, per bird, of summer rape separately, and a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Give this daily for a week, and then every second day for another two or three weeks. Every third day give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, teazle, and black rape, and a spray of seedy chickweed, or green plantain stalk three times a week. Stick a cube of hard common salt in the wires for a few weeks. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece for three days, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a week or fortnight as may seem necessary.

A TRIO (Invicta).—(1) A three-compartment breeding cage is certainly a very convenient and useful medium for running one cock with two hens, but I do not go so far as to say it is the very best way. Other methods often succeed quite as well, and much depends upon the owner making the most of any opportunities that offer. In using a three-compartment cage you should keep the cock in the middle compartment, and a hen in each end. When ready for mating run the cock in with each hen on alternate days, or if both hens are very forward run cock in each end for a couple of hours each day. When hens have laid and begin to sit, limit cock to the middle compartment until his services are again required. (2) As a songster pure and simple, the Lancashire cannot be deemed a great success. Compared with the Roller the song is more full, deep, and mellow—hoarse some might term it—and is more like a warble than a sustained rolling cadence. To use a simile, the song of the Lancashire is to that of the Roller about the same as that of Chaffinch to that of the Linnet. (3) I do not think there is any real cure for the deformity shown in your sketch. The best thing is to tie the toe alongside the middle toe, and keep it so. Part VI. of "Our Canaries" contains illustrations showing how to treat this particular deformity, and Part I. would give you full information about cages.

GROWTH ON HIND TOES (T.W.G.).—What you imagine to be growth on the toes is undoubtedly a mass of hardened dirt and sand, which has been collected from the cage floor, and formed a hard solid mass on the toes. Get a saucer of quite warm water, catch the bird, and hold the feet immersed in water for a minute or two. Then remove and try if the lumps are softened sufficiently to be easily removed. If not, continue the soaking a little longer, and try again. Do not use any force to pull it away, nor try to do so until it is well-soaked, or you may injure the toes. When sufficiently soaked it will come away with the greatest ease. Then wash the feet clean, dry them, and anoint sparingly with vaseline before returning bird to cage.

MOULTING AND WHEEZING (C.B.).—(1) If the bird keeps in good health and active condition I do not advise you to try to force it into moult. If you must do so, however, cover over cage, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cage, lightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternating days add 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece to the drinking water. Offer a bath daily in mild weather. If the bird is now in a warm temperature move it to a cold one, and vice versa, but see that it is free from draughts. (2) The most important point is to see that this bird is kept free from the exciting causes of the bronchial trouble. Give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, for a few days when wheezing is troublesome, and add 20 drops of the following mixture to the water daily for a week or so at a time. Mixture: Two drams each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one dram each of ipecacuanha wine and chlorodyne, and eight grains of iodide of potassium. You will do well to avoid breeding with it again.

LOST USE OF LEGS (E.O.).—It is quite possible the hen might have received some injury to the back or legs, which did not seem apparent to you, or it may have some disease in the ovary. Either of these would produce effects such as you describe. But I am rather inclined to think she was simply troubled with constipation. It is a pity you did not send the body to Mr. Yates for post-mortem, and make sure what it was. If another similar case occurs, separate bird and give one drop, direct in beak, of a mixture of two parts brandy to one part syrup of buckthorn every morning and evening until the bowels move quite freely.

INFLAMED FEET (Tender Feet).—See that cage is free from red mites. These pests are apt to be overlooked in an all-wire cage, which is just as likely to become infested as a box-cage. Also see it is kept out of cold draughts. Give a rather thick perch with a flattened surface to stand on for a time. Keep perch and cage as clean as possible. Once a day, until feet are well, bathe them for a few minutes in a warm solution of wych hazel extract—say a small teaspoonful of the extract mixed in a saucerful of warm water. After bathing, dry the feet, and paint on them a little of the strong extract with a small feather or a camel-hair brush, and allow this to dry on.

INJURED WING (H.J.F.).—It is not unlikely the wing may be broken, but I cannot say positively without seeing it. Had you placed the bird in a small low cage with perches near the floor, and kept it perfectly quiet for a week or two, as soon as you noticed the injury it would probably have come all right again. After this lapse of time it may require the wing binding in its proper position, with the ends of the fracture, if one exists, fitting neatly together, for a few weeks. This requires skilful handling, and is scarcely a job for one not well versed in the anatomy of the wing. As you value the bird it would be much better to ask a vet. to do it for you. You may, if you like, try the low cage and rest first—one about eight inches high, and the perch or perches two inches, not more, from the floor, seed and water inside. Keep in quiet place, so that bird may be induced to rest as quiet as possible. If you see the wing is held up in something nearly approaching its proper position when bird is at rest, continue this negative treatment, and the wing will come right. Keep bird as advised until it begins to move about voluntarily and preens its wings.

AVIARY QUESTIONS (Jay Bee).—(1) Providing only that the position is free from damp, it will do admirably for Canaries, and as you are starting with aviary-bred birds, they will thrive perfectly well all the year round without any heat. (2) An unlimited supply of Canary and rape in separate hoppers, with mixed seed and soft and green food, given separately as required, is the best method of feeding in such an aviary. Egg or other soft-food, give two or three times a week, according to season, and daily when your young broods are about, green food in variety, daily, except in very wet, and snowy, frosty weather in winter, when you may substitute a little sweet fruit three times a week. A seed mixture in small quantities two or three times a week—or daily when young are being reared, and in severe weather in winter and spring. This mixture may consist of two parts each hemp, millet, black rape, and broken groats, and one part each inga, linseed, teazle, and maw. (3) You could try for mules, of course, by introducing cocks only of one or two species, say, one or two cock Goldfinches, and ditto Linnets or Siskins. But this is an unsatisfactory way of mule breeding, and apt to lead to many mistakes of identity. (4) Judging from style of aviary, I take it you mean the birds to fly loose. In this case the aviary will accommodate from 45 to 50 birds, as its full capacity. For breeding one-third of this number is quite sufficient—say 12 hens and 3 or 4 cocks. You do not require an equal number of sexes. (5) Try following treatment for cock for a month. See cage is free from red mites. Keep in comfortable temperature; keep floor strewn with clean gritty sand, and stick cube of hard common salt in wires. In addition to staple diet give half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with equal parts maw and gold of pleasure seed every second day. On alternate days give a pinch only of above seed mixture, and spray of green food. If available, a mealworm a day would be beneficial. In water add six drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of columba, and aromatic sulphuric acid, every second day for a fortnight.

OUTSIDE AVIARY (Taffy).—(1) If the aviary is fairly sheltered, and the site free from damp or water-logging, I see no reason at all why you should not breed birds there quite successfully without any heating apparatus. All you need do is to be careful to get hardy stock bred and kept under normal conditions of temperature to begin with. (2) It is not easy to advise as to the number of birds you can keep for breeding without a sketch of the place showing all measurements, and position and size of doors and windows, and any other fitment. Assuming the door is in one end, and the window in front, you should be able to arrange twelve single breeding cages 20ins. long and 16ins. high, in three tiers, along the back, starting at 18ins. from the floor, and three flights, one above the other, 5ft. long, 16ins. high, and 20 to 24 ins. wide at the end opposite the doors. Then you could breed with twelve pairs, and transfer the young to the flights as they became able to do for themselves. (3) Cocks at 10/6 each, and hens of same strain at from 2/6 to 3/6 each, should make suitable stock to begin. A tutor at 20s. or 25s. should suit you. It is always safer to have two tutors to provide against one going out of song at a critical time, and both should have the same type of song. You could make the schoolmasters if you wished, but it is best to avoid doing so when convenient.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.,

SHRUBS FOR AVIARY (F.B.).—Privet, Euonymus, Box, Fir, and common Laurel all do well in aviaries, and ivy is a good evergreen climber, but it will only be throwing away your time and money planting living bushes in an aviary containing Budgerigars, especially in so small a one as yours. Budgerigars simply strip off the leaves, and nip off the ends of the shoots, without eating any of them, and give trees and shrubs no chance at all. You had better furnish your aviary with plenty of natural branches, leaving the centre of it fairly open for flight, and sow the ground with coarse grasses and cerea's. All other details you should find in the booklets.

MANNIKINS AND WAXBILLS (M. F. L. S.).—(1) Usually about the middle of our summer, but Waxbills are rather shy feeders under any conditions, save in a roomy natural aviary. The same applies in a lesser degree to the Mannikins, though Bengalese, Silverbills, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins and Java Sparrows (white variety) are probable breeders in a cage. I am afraid those you name are very improbable breeders, but nothing is impossible, and the unexpected often happens, but I think there are only about three records of Orange-cheek Waxbills rearing young in this country. The Mannikins should commence nesting about spring. (2) As you are keeping your birds in a cage, space is a desideratum, and coco-nut shell nests would be better than husks, being smaller, yet fully large enough for Waxbills. Hay will be all they require for nesting material. Zebra Finches and Cut-throats are usually almost certain breeders in a roomy cage, the former for preference.

WHAT CAN I KEEP? (Frederick).—In the first place you cannot put birds out-of-doors at this time of year, unless you procure them from some outdoor aviary, where they have been all the summer; otherwise you must wait to stock your aviary till the spring. I take it that you are quite a beginner with Foreign species. If so, you would do well to procure "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1½, post free, from our Manager. Again, it would be better for you to begin with the most hardy species and add the others as you gain experience. Get half-a-dozen pairs to begin with—Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, Red Avadavats, Silverbills, Green Singing Finches and Gold-breasted Waxbills would form a handsome series for you to start with; all are seed-eaters and most of them should be easily procurable from private outdoor aviaries.

RING-NECK PARRAKEET (Parrakeet).—Seed mixture: One quart each canary, white millet, and oats; one pint each hemp, paddy rice, and wheat; half a pint each shelled nuts, dari, maize, and sunflower seeds; one gill each grit (not sand), and chilies; well mix the whole and keep a supply continually in the cage. Do not give any tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. As it likes a little moistened bread, get some byno-phosphates or chemical food, take half a teaspoonful, add a tablespoonful of hot water, sweeten with a little sugar, and moisten a piece of bread or plain biscuit therewith. Also occasion it to ripe fruit, and give an occasional piece of dry biscuit, and a fresh lettuce leaf. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage. Yes, it should talk, but it is hardly likely to do so till it has lost its timidity—it will ultimately imitate what it hears, words, calls, cries, etc.; you must also teach it by constant repetition of words, etc., as soon as it is quite tame.

A SMELLY STOVE (F. G., Leicester).—The objectionable fumes given off by burning oil stoves are undoubtedly injurious, sooner or later, to the health of the birds. Placing camphor or vinegar in oil is absolutely useless to remedy the evil. The only way of combating it is to exercise the most scrupulous cleanliness about the stove, and give it unremitting attention. Never fill the oil tank to quite its full capacity; always use the smokeless wicks, and see that they are absolutely dry before being first placed in burner; discard the old wicks and put in new ones reasonably often; never miss trimming the wicks properly and cleaning the burner and top of tank of every atom of dirt or charred wick morning and night when stove is burning constantly, or every night if only used at night; when lit, never turn the flame on full until the burners have become heated, then turn them to the required height, but see that this is well below the smoking point; and, finally, never allow them to stand in a draught. Given attention to these essential points, next get a cover made of tin or sheet iron to go over the stove entirely, somewhat extinguisher fashion, but a few inches larger than extreme dimensions of stove, and with sufficient ventilation apertures round the bottom to supply the wicks with air for combustion. Into the top of this cover fix a small flue-pipe leading to the outer air, with a cone-cap over the end to prevent down-draught. This pipe will carry off the quite unavoidable fumes of the stove, and leave the air in room comparatively pure, and reduce the objectionable features of stove to a minimum.

WHAT BIRD (Dora).—It is an Australian species, viz., Pennant's Parrakeet, and its value at the present time, if in good feather, is about 80s. As a rule this group are not talkers, though there is scarcely a group of Parrots in which isolated specimens do not talk a little, but I have never come across a talking Pennant; these birds are usually kept in aviaries for breeding purposes, and as cage pets principally for their gorgeous colouring. A seed diet, the bulk of which is Canary and white millet seed, with oats, hemp, and sunflower seeds in small proportions, green food, fruit, cuttlebone and grit, with water for drinking and bathing, will suffice to keep this bird in excellent health.

AILING BARBARY DOVE (E. N.).—Age has something to do with it, also probably over-fatness. Put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in about 3 tablespoonfuls of water, and let this form the drinking water daily till the voidings are quite loose, then only give it every fourth day for a month, then only as required to keep the bowels moving freely. Do not give egg, and the other items are permissible, but the main dietary should be Dove mixture and some canary and white millet seed in equal parts. Do not omit cuttlebone and grit. Examine its mouth and if it is badly furred, put a little honey and borax on its tongue twice daily. Whenever you notice signs of excitement presaging a fit, dissolve 5 grains of bromide of potassium in a little syrup, and give the bird ten drops of this at hourly intervals during the day. By this means you may check the frequency of their occurrence. While there should not be extreme looseness, you must not allow the bird to become at all constipated. Report progress about a month hence, and give full details, as I do not retain queries by me. „

GREY PARROT ("Smudge").—Your supposed Grey Parrot is a Roseate Cockatoo! As a rule, many of these do not make good talkers, but I have met several really talented birds of this species, and if you take pains with your bird on the lines given in the Nutshell, your bird should prove responsive to some extent. It is a matter of time taming these birds, but it will ultimately respond and become quite familiar. Canary seed will not hurt it, but I should add some white millet to it, but the mixture given in our reply to "Parrakeet" in this issue, should about meet the case—the Nutshell will give you all other details of treatment, and will fully meet the needs of this species. As regards the

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

perch, instead of the ordinary fixed perch, give it a piece of natural branch with the bark on; this can be removed as often as it is chewed up; the chewing up of wood is very wholesome for the bird. It should take a bath, but till it is tame enough to come out of the cage, give it a light spraying twice a week with tepid water, during the winter months; do this at mid-day, and choose a genial day for the purpose, and guard against a chill till it is dry. It will be better to take out the grating. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage.

WHAT PARROT TO GET (A.P.).—Considering fully the conditions of your query, I should say get a young Blue-fronted Amazon, by quietness and kindness win its confidence. You can then begin to train it, by talking continually in its presence, and by constant repetition of words and phrases, especially when it is quiet and restful. It will pick up many things for itself which it hears going on around it, and also mimic laughing, crying, and other calls and cries which it hears. A Grey Parrot is perhaps the most accomplished, generally speaking, and takes less teaching than an Amazon, but they are more costly, and a newly-imported Grey is a risky purchase indeed, and as a rule there are several annoying losses before one is acclimatised. Get our Nutshell, the "Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free, from our Manager, and read it up.

GRENADIER WEAVER (W. T., Tulse Hill).—Canary and millet seed will form the main dietary, green food should be regularly supplied, and a couple of live insects (mealworms, etc.) per bird daily. It should have access to grit, and so long as it can be got free from frost and sound, flowering heads of grass to pick over. These will be safe to give for another month yet, if gathered at mid-day and kept indoors for a good hour before being supplied to the bird. Some individuals are fond of a piece of sweet apple to peck at during the winter months, when green food in scarce, but lettuce is usually available. It will delight in an occasional millet spray, and also a few crushed oats to pick over. Its cage ought to be roomy enough to allow it to take exercise, with a twiggy branch for perching accommodation at each end.

GREY AFRICAN PARROT (H. Coveney).—(1) Dust the bird's plumage with insect powder, especially under the wings, and rub a little paraffin oil with the finger over any bare areas there may be, but do not use sufficient to run among and grease the plumage. Give every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose, one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in three tablespoonfuls of water in lieu of the ordinary drinking. When not giving the magnesia, put half a teaspoonful of hyno-phosphates in the daily supply of drinking water. You must not use a metal drinker while giving the above. (2) I think it is not infectious; most prohably it merely arises from a heated condition of the blood, but there may be microscopical parasites on the bird. Spray it once a week with a dilute quassia solution, but keep carefully out of draught till dry, and well swill the cage (especially all crevices), perches and food vessels with boiling water. (3) Seed mixture: one quart each canary and white millet seed; 1pt. each hemp and oats; ½pt. each shelled nuts, dari, paddy rice, wheat and sunflower seeds; one gill each chilies and grit (not sand), well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, or stale crust of household bread, and cuttlebone. Keep it where it will get plenty of light and air, yet be out of reach of draught. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Our Nutchell "The Grey Parrot" should help you, 2½d. post free, from our Manager.

PEKIN ROBINS (Invicta).—(1) This very frequently happens with caged birds, and as there is no likelihood of their attempting to breed in a cage, I should suggest keeping them in separate cages, or better, make an exchange with your present hen for another cock, but if you want song, do not keep them together. (2) I should not give the hemp; you can give a teaspoonful of white millet twice a week, but their main diet must be Insectile mixture (those you are using will suffice), ripe fruit, and live insects. (3) Fine pent moss litter, earth, or sand. Note: Spiders are rather plentiful just now, and several of these per bird daily will be appreciated.

SEXING PARROTS (J.S.).—Your query is still a bit obscure, but if I have not gripped your meaning you must repeat it. A ready means of sexing the Grey Parrot is by the shape of the area of bare skin surrounding the eye. This is somewhat pear-shaped at the back of the eye in the male, and more or less rounded in the female; the bill of the male is longer and stouter than that of its mate, but this latter distinction is not great. There is so much individualism in Parrots that I cannot give you a definite answer as to which is the best talker. Some swear by one, and some by the other; it must suffice to say that I have come across talented birds of both species, and in about equal numbers.

A FEATHER PULLER (G. Barker).—As there is some improvement there is certainly hope for the bird; you must persevere with the treatment already advised, but diet your bird as under: Get one quart each canary and white millet seed; one pint each hemp, oats, and paddy rice; half a pint each wheat, shelled nuts and sunflower seeds; a gill each chilies and grit (not sand), well mix the whole together and keep a supply in cage. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, or stale crust household bread; a small leaf of lettuce may be given as opportunity offers. Keep a piece of cuttlebone hanging in the cage. If the bird will let you handle it, dip your finger in clean parraffin oil and rub this over the bare areas, but do not use sufficient oil to run among the plumage and grease it. Its a work of time and patience checking feather-pulling.

LOSING PLUMAGE (F. W. Murfill).—Providing the bird is not pulling out its plumage, I should not take much notice of this. Confine its diet to seed mixture (see reply to G. Baker in this issue), ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and green food. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage. So long as the voidings are not watery loose, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the usual supply of drinking water, every fourth day, and on the intervening days half a teaspoonful of hyno-phosphates also in the drinking water, permitting it to have clear water once a week. Continue this treatment for two months, longer if necessary. Do not use a metal drinker while giving drugs. Do not give any tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food whatever. A light spraying once a week with a dilute quassia solution would keep its plumage clear of parasites if there are any, but you must guard against its taking a chill while the plumage is damp.

WINTERING BIRDS (Avis).—All the birds you name should be successfully wintered in your greenhouse. A reasonable comparison to make is, observe our native Sparrows, etc., and if your foreign species do not appear to feel the cold more than these, you can safely leave them where they are; but if they appear more uncomfortable than our native species under the existing weather conditions, then they certainly should be taken indoors. The Whydahs most certainly do need a little protection in the winter, chiefly, I think, owing to their moult taking place during that period; all the other species you name I have successfully wintered out of doors, both in Warwickshire and Surrey. As the Napoleon Weaver has only just been put out, it should be caged again and taken indoors at once. You can materially increase the warmth of the birds' quarters by tacking (temporarily) bass matting or roofing felt over the glass on the N. and E sides and roof of the portion of the greenhouse given up to the birds. If the birds have been in their present quarters the greater part of the summer, they should not suffer where they are, save the exceptions given above.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

A WILD PLANT (W. Hartshorn).—The seeds and heads you send are those of the burdock. I have not found British Finches at all partial to burdock seed, and never trouble to gather it.

A HAWFINCH'S BEAK (Blue Beak).—The blue beak denotes high (breeding) condition. To obtain it you will have to feed your bird up well, giving him a little hemp (let it be good and sound) now and again, in addition to the sunflower. Sunflower heads out of the garden (containing ripe seed) are excellent; so is beech-mast; likewise the various nuts, especially the shelled kinds sold (mixed) at shops catering for vegetarians; while berries (black, privet, hawthorn, mountain ash, etc.), are very valuable. Don't too, forget two or three mealworms daily. You can't expect any bird to acquire a blue beak a few days after he has been moulted.

A LARK FOOD (J. Little).—I do not use this kind of food for my own Larks, but the ordinary kind of insectile mixture (as used for Nightingales, etc.), so cannot very well express an opinion as to its song-producing qualities. I am aware, however, that it is a kind of food very popular amongst Lark-keepers, and as they get plenty of music from their birds it obviously must answer very well. The basis is pea-meal, and there are also present crushed biscuit, crushed seed of various kinds (hemp, canary, millet, etc.). It is not, however, the food known as "German paste." Larks will eat it either dry or moistened with a few drops of water.

A LINNET'S TROUBLE (E. Eagles).—The seed diet would not cause the feathers to drop out. Thousands of Linnets are fed on "black and brown," with the addition of a little "white" (canary seed). The bird cannot have moulted yet, surely. Probably it was kept under unhealthy condition by its late owner (in a small cage in a hot, stuffy room, for instance), and may be troubled with red-mite. I presume you are managing the bird better now. If the skin has a healthy (normal) look, just rub it once daily for three or four days with a very little boric ointment, applying it with the tip of a finger and rubbing gently the way the plumage should lie. If the skin has an unhealthy look (dry or scurfy), use Kerol ointment. I have found this treatment successful, and several correspondents have written me stating that they have had good results follow its adoption.

IN A GREENHOUSE (E.O.).—Birds as a rule do not do well in a greenhouse along with plants, the atmosphere being two moist (damp) and heavy, while in the summer such a place tends to get oppressively hot. You seem to have done all that is possible to make the place satisfactory; you could whiten the roof when the hot weather approaches (or, rather, the season for it). Cats, I may say, can be a terrible nuisance on glass roofs! Their appearance there may send the birds into a panic, causing great damage to plumage, and even more serious injury. I should never have plain (clear) glass in the roof of any of my own bird-houses if there was any chance of a cat getting thereon. I think, too, you would find it safest and best to fit wired frames (half inch mesh) over the ventilator openings.

A SKYLARK (Learner).—Get one ounce of syrup of buckthorn from a chemist and stir half a teaspoonful into the bird's drinking water (two to three tablespoonfuls), for one or two days. This will soon bring the excrement to a normal state, and put a stop to the twitching." Don't, of course, give it for too long a period—i.e., make the excreta very loose and watery. I have often said that I do not care for Lark food that is composed almost entirely of pea-meal. If people will use it, I can't help it; they are, of course, entitled to their own opinion. Pea-meal is not an easily digested food-stuff. I have on occasions found it in the excrement, apparently unchanged; so it could not have been doing the birds much good, could it?

SEED SAMPLES; AND TWO OTHERS (J. E. Wood).—(1) I don't think the rape is all of the "German summer" brand; it varies remarkably in size, and some of it is very "mustardy" to the taste when chewed. I should say it is a mixture. The teazle seems to be very big, clean, and good. (2) It does not matter in the least whether the hen Bullie eats live food, so far as the laying of eggs is concerned; she will lay right enough, when the spring comes round, mealworms or no mealworms, providing she is in good breeding condition. I think, however, that her taste in the matter of live food will alter when the breeding season comes round—and before, if you can get her to taste a mealworm. If she is tame, cut the head off a mealworm and "plague" her with the body, causing her to bite at it—once she tastes the juicy morsel she will eat it with as much joy as I swallow oysters (when I can afford them). (3) The best way undoubtedly is to pair a cock Canary to a hen Bullfinch.

A GOLDIE AND A LINNET (J. Dalland, or Holland).—Evidently you are quite a beginner at bird-keeping, and you would gain much useful information at very trifling cost by reading the "Nutshell" booklets on the Goldfiuch and the Linnet. Our publisher would send both for 5d., post free. A brass Canary cage is not a good cage for a fresh-caught Goldfinch, neither is the inside of a window a good position in which to hang him. It is his wildness that causes him to be always trying to get his head through the wires. He would be better in a proper Finch stock cage (illustrated in the "Nutshell" booklet) until he steadies down. An all-wire cage is not a suitable cage (in my opinion) for any Goldfinch, though a very steady, house-moulted Finch would be unlikely to come to much harm in it. The young Linnet may pick up an odd note or two from the hen Mule, and strictly speaking, this will certainly not do his song any good, but it will make no difference to his singing his own (the Linnet) song, as they will only be additional notes. One of my own young Linnets has, I notice, picked up the call of a cock Goldfinch Mule.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

J. Andrews.—Have previously illustrated a similar notion.

H. Hill.—Your club notice did not reach us until after we had gone to press.

A. A. Vickers.—Nos. 1 and 2 we have utilised before; will try to find room for No. 3 in due course.

Well Wisher.—After due consideration we must ask to be excused the publication of your letter. Parts of it, in any case, were quite unprintable.

G. Mitchell.—Thanks for the excellent photo, which we will reproduce in the near future.

New Society for Keith (Scotland).

Sir,—We have formed a club, to be known as the Keith Cage Bird Association, and have decided to hold a show, with 38 classes, on Wednesday, Dec. 11. We have secured the services of Mr. Jas. Sandison, Aberdeen, as judge.

Song After the Moult.

Sir,—I found the following plan answer well with a Thrush which was slow to come into song after moulting. Put the bird in the same room with other singing birds, if you have any; also play and sing on the piano to him, or whistle tunes close to the cage. Miss B. W.

The Y.C. and C.B.S. of Ireland's Forthcoming Show.

Sir,—I am surprised to see by last week's Cage Birds the Y.C. and C.B. Society's show down to take place on Oct. 31st and Nov. 1st next. Is this correct? Knowing that nearly all the Committee had resigned, including the President, I was under the impression the show was defunct. Any information on this point will be thankfully received. Early Closing.

Redpoll Mule and Crested Canary Both in One Clutch.

Sir,—Has any reader had a similar experience to this? I mentioned the matter to an appliance maker to-day and he states it is not possible, and that both birds must be Canaries. I have given him the opportunity of seeing the birds for himself. The Redpoll cock (caught last October) was mated with the Crested hen and filled four eggs, but he ate them after the hen had been sitting eight or nine days. I caged him off after that little lot and paired the hen to a Plainhead cock, but they did not settle down to my liking so I changed again. I ran the Redpoll with her night and morning after the first egg was laid. She had a clutch of four eggs—result was one Crested cock Canary, one Dark Mule (cock), which he helped to rear. G. Mossop.

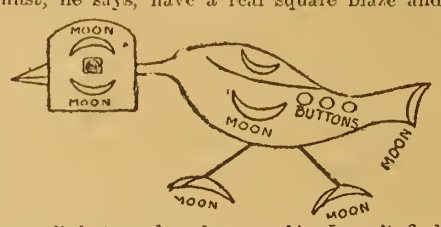
A Cage Bird Section for Appleby Show.

Sir,—During the past three years the Appleby Fanciers' Society have held a very successful show at Appleby and after persistent requests have secured a cage bird section. We are offering good money prizes: 10s. first, 5s. second, and 2s. 6d. third, for Borders, Crests, Norwich, Yorkshires and British. The show will be held in the Public Hall on Nov. 7th. I am sure that in this district there is a real good opening for a cage bird section. I hope that the cage bird fancy will send along their entries and that this section of the show will prosper and that we may in time establish a cage bird society in this district.

T. T. Balmer.

[Our correspondent should see that the show is advertised in Cage Birds by the Secretary and thus brought to the notice of all exhibitors. We shall be glad to receive and review a schedule in due course. We hope Mr. Balmer's wishes may materialise.—Editor.]

How Can We Make Our Shows Pay?



Sir,—Like "Sub Rosa," I was disappointed that my letter of the 14th Sept. had not brought some discussion. There is no doubt that if there were no shows the value of our hobby must decrease, while the occupation of others vanishes entirely. It therefore behoves us to make our shows a success. I am glad "Sub Rosa" agrees with me on some points. Where do we differ? (1) I said 4 classes were sufficient for Yorks. and Norwich in ordinary shows. My friend looks at this from an exhibitor's point of view. Ah! he likes that easy win in the variegated class; so do I, but does it pay the Society? That is my point. (2) I said that the Specialist Club patronage was a doubtful asset, and he thinks he does not agree, yet proves by his statement he does. He says, "given this, the society often loses a little in entrance fees, but this is made up in gate money." Now there is a 3 to 1 chance in my favour. For every 1s. 6d. entry that is kept away the society must get three visitors. Do they get them? I think not. Even if they do, what they lose on the swings they find on the roundabouts, and it has not benefited them. They must have 2s. worth of visitors for that lost entry. Truly a doubtful asset. Yes, that printer's bill must be kept down, and to advertise the schedule in Cage Birds will do it with no trouble to secretary, no wrappers to buy, no schedules to go astray, no stamps to lick, and no trouble to exhibitors. They will see the schedule and post entries before they have time to change their minds. I see the 2s. entry fee is out again this year. Must have it, they say. Ask Plymouth, they know how do do it. I say again it is absurd. It may suit a few, but it is too much for the working man. Who will it pay you best to please, the one or the many? There were other questions I raised, but, as you said, Mr. Editor, I answered them. Am I right? We shall see at the end of the season, when another society or two have gone under. Is it to be yours, or one of those I am interested in? "Wait and see" may be good enough in the House of Commons, but it won't suit the Fancy. To drift with the tide is easy, but, alas, fatal.

The Up-to-date (!) Exhibition British Goldfinch.

How it Should be Marked.

Sir,—I have enclosed you a sketch of a Goldfinch which a gentleman has sent me, requesting me to send him one like it. It must, he says, have a real square blaze and be well buttoned and mooned! I can't find such a bird in my collection, but perhaps some of your readers may possess one; if so, I should like to hear of same.

Weymouth Fancier.

The Suggested Cage Bird Society for Bucks.

Sir,—I saw a letter in your last issue from Mr. T. W. Fryer of the above subject. We are very busy at present, but in order to make a start, will be willing to do a little writing till a meeting can be arranged. We are of opinion that the meeting, time, place, etc., should be left to the majority of the fanciers who join; we mean that, should say a dozen be willing to join from Aylesbury, and a less number from either Wycombe or Slough, send in names, then hold the meeting at Aylesbury, or at whichever place is likely to produce the most members. We refrain from settling on Aylesbury, owing to residing there ourselves. The great advantage we have is the splendid railway service running into the town from all parts of the country, which has above a twenty-five miles radius. We should be pleased to hear from anyone willing to join. If they would send their names and addresses, together with suggestions as to time and place, we shall be happy to arrange a meeting in due course.

The Bell Tour in Roller Canaries.

Sir,—I was pleased to see in your last issue a letter from that sterling fancier, Mr. Fisher. He was the first, I believe, to criticise the merits of the bell tour. I was proud to think that one had raised an objection, and had advocated the sacrifice of a tour, at a time when there was an all-round cry of shortness of variety and monotony of song. I seconded the proposal, and one other letter appeared on the subject, and I thought it regrettable that the idea should have then been allowed to drop. When so many meaningless names are used to further the sale of the German Canary, will you allow me to point out, for the benefit of the uninitiated, that the term "Glucke strain" is no misnomer. For the present it is suitable for us to divide the Glucke strain into "Glucke" and "Water Glucke." The former is easily recognised by its similarity to the clucking of a broody hen—"Glucke-luck-luck." A resemblance to the "Water Glucke" is given off by the sound emitted when emptying a bottle of water; the bird delivers it more rapidly, but the sound is less distinct. The consonants in both tours are guttural—Latin "Guttur," the throat—and delivered with a closed beak. I am very much interested in that excellent article, "Unprolificacy in Canaries," by Mr. Steel. It is gratifying to note that this has not yet made itself noticeable to any extent in the Roller Canary. We can supply each year the steadily increasing demand. It will be noticed that I advised a similar method of using the tutor, though on a much lesser scale, to the one described under the heading of "Mormonism," by Mr. Steel.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

The Late Despatch of Show Catalogues.

Sir,—Now that the show season has commenced, I should be very glad if you would give me a little space in your valuable paper and fanciers' friend, Cage Birds, to draw the attention of secretaries holding open shows to what I think is one of the causes why open shows do not pay, and are a loss to the societies. It is the dispatch of the catalogue of awards to exhibitors who send their money for same. What is more disappointing to a novice who sends his money for a catalogue, so that he can see how his birds are going on before he gets them back, to find that he receives the birds before the catalogue. I think it is a shame he cannot get it at the latest by the morning post following the day of judging. I know that I shall not send for a catalogue, unless I specially want one for my own purpose, as I have had to wait two to four days; in fact, this year I sent money for one, and it had not come up to Sunday. I know that secretaries have a lot of work at these times, but I think one of their members should go through the entry forms and make out the wrappers and see that they are posted to exhibitors as soon as possible. It would lessen the secretary's work and worry, and be pleasanter to all concerned.

The Enamelling of New Wooden Cages.

Sir,—In reply to "W.H.," re the above query, I should like to point out to him that the use of size for an undercoat for enamel is one of the worst things imaginable. The reason is that the size must be sufficiently thick to stop all suction of the wood, so that if kept in a dry place it would crack and peel off. The proper way would be to prepare the work with an undercoat of paint, tinted to the nearest possible shade of the enamel. A quicker way, and nearly as satisfactory, is as follows: Get some "Hall's Washable Distemper," give the wood work two coats of this (near the tint of the enamel), when dry apply the enamel direct on the top of this. It is much better if "W.H." is not an expert enameller, to apply two thin coats, instead of one thick coat; he will make a much better job. The use of glass paper between each coat will make a much neater finish. If "W.H." will take my advice, he will not use a camel hair brush for enamelling, but get a small hog hair (flat) brush from any colour shop, price about 6d. This is very much stiffer and will allow the enamel to be spread much more evenly over the surface Don't do the enamelling in a cold room. Stand your brush in a small quantity of turps. when you have finished with it.

The Conveyance of Live Birds at Owner's Risk.

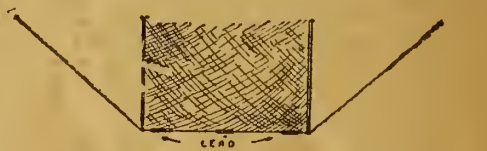
Sir,—In reply to your correspondent "Border," I should like to ask whether the birds were actually sent at "Owner's risk" rate, as stated. Although I am a railway servant, I have not heard of birds conveyed otherwise than at "Company's risk." As you are aware the railway companies made an increase of 50 p.c. carriage on live birds, and, at that rate they acknowledged liability in case of mishap, to the magnanimous sum of 5s. each bird. At any rate, there is no such thing as "Owner's risk" with the company by whom I am employed. If "Border" paid the usual rate of 4d., plus 50 per. cent for the package of birds, the weight of which did not exceed 2lbs., then he can claim 5s. for each bird lost in transit. I hope this will help "Border" to get the compensation to which he is entitled, if I am not mistaken. Coinage Hey.

[The writer of the letter stated that the birds were consigned at "Owner's risk."—Editor.]

Sir,—I notice you say no claim can be sustained, but you are wrong for once, as I have quite recently had a claim paid for a Bramblefinch sent from Handsworth Wood Station to Sidmouth. After eleven week's correspondence, I received the value of the birds and threepence for correspondence up to the time I made the claim; but I wrote lots of letters before I received the 1s. 6d. During the time of waiting, I received two or three nasty letters from my customer, although I had assured him the matter was having my attention. If this should meet his eye, I hope he will lose no time in acknowledging the receipt of 1s. 3d. for bird and an additional 3d., which I sent to pay for the very nice letters he sent me. Of course this case is rather different to "Border's," as the entire consignment was lost in my case, and no trace whatever could be found of it after leaving our station. "Border" would have to prove to the satisfaction of the railway company that nine birds were dispatched, and this would want a bit of doing. This raises another point: Who is the owner? I consider that the moment the seller received the cash the goods became the purchaser's property although he had a perfect right to return them at seller's expense, if wrongly described, or, in the case of live stock, if unhealthy; but for any other reason he must pay all expenses incurred. For instance, say they were not what he thought they were, then he returns them and pays carriage both ways, etc.

H. Lewis.

[Did Mr. Lewis sign a special "Owner's risk" consignment note, or were the birds sent under the usual condition, i.e., that 50 per cent. excess carriage was to be paid?—Editor.]



Is the Scotch Fancy on the Decline?

Sir,—As a visitor to Paisley Scots Fancy bird show on Saturday last I was more than disappointed to learn from some of the members present that the show had seemed to have lost to a good extent the sympathy and support that was accorded it in the past. Not only has Paisley cause to lament this state of affairs but others have equal cause to complain. As a regular attendant at the shows during the season for the past two or three years I have been surprised to find in some of our County shows classes for all varieties except Scotch Fancies, and all have the one answer to the query—Why not have Scotch Fancy classes? "No use, we can't get any support to warrant us in doing so," is the general reply. Why this state of matters should be I fail to see. Scotland, to whom belongs the credit of breeding the "Bird of Circle," and one of the most graceful and stylish of the Canary family, i.e., the Scotch Fancy Canary must surely be on the decline, and for what reason I certainly do not see, unless it be the high prices in demand for good breeding birds. To buy a fair pair of such at the present time certainly means pounds; up to £100. In fact, it is far beyond the reach of the average man's purse to begin with Scotch Fancies, and the result is that, being determined to go into the Fancy, he joins the ranks of the Norwich and allied breeders, where he can purchase a breeding pair and not feel the pinch so badly on his income. Unless these big prices come down with a thump the result will be that the Scotch Fancy Canary in a year or two will be like the Dutch Frilled Canary, once the pride of our friends over the border but now a breed of the past to a very great extent. I shall be glad to have the opinions, Mr. Editor, of some of your Scotch friends. Is the Scotch Fancy Canary on the decline and what in their opinion is the reason?

A "Tip" for Users of Small Clap-nets.

Sir,—I think this will prove useful to fanciers who capture their own birds with small clap-nets, etc. If the net is not pegged exactly square it is very likely that when same is pulled over it will not fall flat to the ground, especially if it is set in long grass. Now if some pieces of sheet lead are bent round the poles, etc., as shown in sketch, they will hold the net flat on the ground and prevent the escape of birds near the edge of the nets. I hope it may prove useful to some of our readers.

Does Hemp Seed Ruin Canaries?

Sir,—It will be interesting to know how the young bird of Mr. Newton's is going on. If he has saved it from the terrible "going light" disease, my note of warning will not have been sounded in vain. Fanciers can take it that the seed which caused my birds to go wrong was a very good sample. Good hemp weighs heavy and lies in a very small compass, but the best way to test is to eat some. Samuel Pratt says, give them a pinch and it will do them no harm. I quite agree with him but that pinch must be small, say about two grains every 24 hours. Good hemp causes copious excrement and when this is so there is always the danger of nesting diarrhœa. A hen that is bringing up a brood of young by herself is attempting a strenuous task and anything that tends to looseness is neither good for her nor the young. How can young Canaries be as sound when fed upon hemp as those that are fed upon Spanish canary? The value of the former in nutritive, nourishing and sustaining properties, is far below that of the latter and the young birds are bound to be weaker. Canaries are exceedingly fond of hemp, and if you only give them a little they will knock the other seeds all over the room looking for more. Good hemp causes nesting diarrhœa and many a valuable hen I have lost through using this popular seed. As for giving it hens whole, so as to keep them off the young, I will say this: hens that have to have such remedies applied to them are not much use. A hen that is worth its keep knows the time she should enter and leave the nest, and those that sit upon the young when they are restless and hungry are a great source of worry to the fancier, and the young are apt to take after them; such hens are never allowed in my birdroom. A good few of the large fanciers when giving their experiences to members of clubs rarely mention hemp, and when they do, put up the "red flag" and say, use very carefully and in small quantities. The expert I referred to in my letter was Mr. E. S. Lugg, and it was published some time before that of Mr. Claude St. John. Mr. Lugg gave us the various useful properties of different kinds of seeds and to say that he put hemp very low in the scale of useful seeds is drawing it mildly and if I am not mistaken he said it was a dangerous seed to use. I am only giving my experiences. Those who are doing well with hemp, keep on with it, and those who are not, let them try a season without it and I am satisfied they won't regret it. I agree with Jim Adams about celery tops; give them the stalks as well, Jim, they are very fond of them, and I am a great believer in celery.

JOHN CANNING.

In the Courts.

WELL-KNOWN LONDON DEALER FINED UNDER THE NEW ACT.

At Bow Street, London, on Oct. 7, Cecil Isaacs, a naturalist, of Shaftesbury Avenue, appeared in answer to summonses charging him with ill-treating a Thrush, two Linnets, a Goldfinch, and six Hedge Sparrows, which, it was alleged, had been kept in a filthy condition in small cages, with inadequate supplies of food and water. Mr. Harry Wilson supported the complaint on behalf of the Society for the Protection of Birds.

Defendant said there had never before been any complaint of negligence or cruelty against him or any of his predecessors during the eighty-one years the business had been in existence.

He declared that all the birds were perfectly healthy, except two which were moulting. It was not true that one of the birds had a broken wing; but it was a common thing for birds in captivity to break their wing and tail feathers. The Hedge Sparrows were for the purpose of "steadying" other birds which it might be necessary to keep in an outdoor aviary for a time for the purpose of improving their plumage.

The defence was that the birds were well cared for, but were moulting. A policeman said he saw little wrong with them, and a bird fancier gave similar evidence.

Sir Albert De Rutzen, in giving his decision, said in the course of a very long experience he had never had a case of exactly the same sort as this before him. The cruelty alleged was not the cruelty of catching wild birds and keeping them in confinement, but the complaint arose out of the way in which they were alleged to have been kept. With regard to the two Linnets, the Thrush, and the Goldfinch, he thought there was sufficient evidence to warrant him in saying that there was cruelty, both with respect to the want of food and water and the state in which the birds were kept. He proposed to take a very lenient course, but he hoped the case would be a lesson to others, because it was a very cruel thing—although it might not be cruelty in the eyes of the law—to catch these wild birds and put them in cages hardly big enough to hold them, in which they knocked themselves about. He ordered the defendant to pay fines and costs amounting to £3 11s.

Defendant: When this case is reported, hundreds and thousands of birds will be killed because they are not in perfect condition, and therefore it will not be safe to keep them. The effect of this will be that you must not keep a bird unless it is absolutely in show form.

The Magistrate: I have not said so.

A Cure for Diarrhœa.

A cure for diarrhœa in Linnets, Canaries, and other birds, is to put as much catechu in the water as will cover a sixpence (the catechu should be crushed to powder after it has been obtained from the chemist). The water will take it up in about an hour.—J. Belsham (Pemberton, Wigan).

Quick Way of Cleaning Cages.

[Winner of Half-crown Prize.]

When you have the cage drawer nice and clean, get a piece of paper that will just fit into drawer, and put the sand, etc., on top. Then when you want to clean out the cage again you have only to lift the paper with sand, etc., on top, and put in fresh in its place.—Cecil Yorke (Waterworks, Dosborough).

Glue as Substitute for Enamel.

I have found a cheap way to make show cages like new. For the outside get and use a pennyworth of Brunswick black. For the inside get two-pennyworth of white glue. Dissolve the glue in hot water and colour this with a little blue. Put it on, while warm, with a paint brush. It will do several cages, is equal to enamel and far cheaper.—W. Heal (St. Luke's, E.C.).

Wormwood as a Mite Destroyer.

[Winner of Half-crown Prize.]

My method to keep clear of red mite where the cages are placed on top of each other is to get a supply of wormwood and place some between each cage; also bore a small hole in the end of each perch and stuff some in the hole; likewise place some under the sand-tray. It won't do the birds any harm, and no insects can live where it is, as it is certain destruction to all kinds of such vermin.—Wm. Welsh (Jarrow-on-Tyne).

To Keep Paint Brush Soft.

When you commence to either paint or enamel your cages, and you find out that you cannot finish them in one night, don't wash out the brush in turpentine, just take and put it in a jar with sufficient cold water to cover the bristles. You will find this will keep the brush soft; then when you are ready to use it just take it out of the jar, shake the water off, and it will then be ready for use.—C. Oates, (241, Pitsmoor Road, Sheffield).

A Trap Perch.

My method of keeping down the red mite in perches is to use a straight piece of green elder, without knots, for the perches. Burn out the pith with a piece of thin iron rod, heated in an ordinary fire, so as to make the perches hollow. Burn with the same iron small holes on the top and bottom, about four inches apart, so the insects can get into the hollow of the perches by day. Take your perches out at night and push the heated iron through the stick, killing all the insects inside.—L. Woollacott (Kingkerswell).

NOTES BY THE SECRETARY.

A Note About Our Medals.

I have had several enquiries lately as to whether Associates of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE are entitled to win medals given for competition among members of the LEAGUE. I would, therefore, once more point out that the medals will be for competition among members only. Competitors need not necessarily be members of the society holding the show, the idea being to benefit societies which are entitled to the medals, by attracting entries from LEAGUE members generally, but winners of the Medals must be paid members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE at the date of the show, and must put the letters C.B.L. against their entries when filling up their entry forms.

A Dealer Convicted of Cruelty.

In another column, under the heading "In the Courts," appears an account of a case heard at Bow Street on Tuesday last in which a bird-dealer was heavily fined for having, as alleged, kept several birds in dirty cages, and without sufficient food and water. If the facts were as alleged, and the prosecution convinced the magistrate that it was so, no member of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE will have any sympathy with the defendant, and his statement that when the case was reported "thousands of birds will be killed because it will not be safe to keep them" must be taken for what it is worth. If there are bird-dealers who keep their stock in circumstances which render it possible for a prosecution to succeed, then the sooner they are taught the ordinary principles of humanity the better. There are, fortunately, very many bird-dealers whose shops are kept in such a way that they have no fear of the success of any prosecution which may be brought against them, and those dealers who do not bring themselves into line will have only themselves to thank for the consequences. They may rest assured that they will be reached under the new Act, and no bird lover will have any sympathy with them. The unfortunate part of the matter is that cases such as these afford a handle to those who fling accusations of cruelty to right and left against everyone who keeps a bird, and a success such as the last one atones in their mind for the many failures experienced by the over officious individuals who see cruelty where none exists, and who subject quite innocent bird-dealers to the indignity and expense of a prosecution.

Badges for Fanciers.

In the correspondence columns last week there appeared a letter from an old reader who suggests that if bird lovers would wear a small badge or token whenever possible, the badges would serve as a means of introduction between one bird lover and another. This is exactly what I have time and again pointed out in these notes. Many hundreds of bird lovers in all parts of our islands, and abroad, are already wearing the neat badge of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and I know that the badges have been in very many cases the means of setting up a friendship between bird-lovers who would otherwise have remained strangers to each other.

The badges are not for sale. They are supplied only to members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, or to Associates of the LEAGUE. CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE members are supplied with Rolled Gold Badges upon payment of their subscription to the LEAGUE, but button badges are provided, without any payment at all, to those who will take the trouble to sign the coupon which is to be found each week at the foot of these notes, and to get five of their friends each to sign a similar coupon. All that is then necessary is to send the six coupons to me, together with a penny stamp, and an enamelled badge will be sent in exchange.

Many hundreds of readers of our paper are already in possession of these badges, and the number of people who have signed the promise to treat their birds with kindness runs into thousands. This is a scheme which should appeal to all bird lovers, and I am exceedingly gratified that it has been so widely taken up during the short time in which it has been in existence. There are plenty more badges in stock, and I hope that the letter to which I have referred will be the means of a raid being made upon the large number which are ready for sending out.

For particulars of membership, badges, etc., see page 785 of last week's issue.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is to sign the coupon herewith, get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

ROUND THE SHOWS.

Clapham's Remarkable Success Continues

GREAT RECORD ENTRY.

Over 1,000 exhibits! Many classes contain phenomenal number of birds. All sections good. Management of the very best.

Most heartily are the Clapham executive to be congratulated upon the success which year by year attends their efforts. The manner in which our Clapham friends are supported by the Fancy is proof that their management is good, and that they ever try to do their level best to merit the goodwill of the Fancy. The entry this time was about 1,050, a splendid increase on last year's figures, and the show, which opened in the St. Anne's Hall on October 9th, was a credit to the society in every way. Most sincerely do we commend the executive for the manner in which all the details of working were carried out. Organisation is a great thing, and at Clapham they know its value. The stewards do not tumble over each other in their efforts to do the work. Each section has its own particular set of stewards and they each know their work and do it.

The excellent show committee is composed of Messrs. E. Sexton, A. C. Askew, G. J. Warley,—Osborne, W. J. Silverthorn, and H. Yeoman. The feeding, etc., of the various sections was seen to by the following stewards: Messrs. C. T. Maxwell (For. birds), W. H. Vale, A. C. Askew, W. Francis and J. Brighty (Brit.); W. H. Vale and E. Sexton (Hybrids); A. C. Askew, A. S. Healey, G. J. Warley, H. Yeoman and W. J. Silverthorn (Canaries). Mr. A. R. Coe made a most admirable secretary, and by his geniality, as also by his energy, did much to further the success of the fixture. He received excellent assistance from that old war-horse, Mr. A. C. Askew, who for a long time has been a great worker in Clapham birdy circles. The weather was exceedingly favourable on both the Wednesday and the Thursday, and there was a great gathering of bird-lovers to view the record collection brought together, the high quality of the fare being much appreciated. The excellent hall looked at its best.

Some of the Canary classes drew phenomenal entries, champion and novice sections being pretty much alike in this respect. There were 37 in the champion buff Nor. hen class; 46 in the novice unflighted class; while classes of over 20 were frequent in the Yorks. section, 33 unflighted birds being benched by the novices, 27 by the champions.

British birds were undoubtedly a good lot, especially for an early season show. The numbers were excellent, and the quality quite up to standard. The Goldies, Greenies, and Yellow Buntings were somewhat disappointing, but the Linnets, Redpolls, and Brambles made up for any shortcomings in the others. The Brambles were a very fine lot, level and good all through. The winner, owned by Mr. Brotherhood, was a most charming specimen, of good size and grand in colour, spangling, and polish; in fact, a very taking exhibit. The winning Linnet was also a real good one, and should annex more honours during the season. The Softbills were well up to standard, particularly the larger varieties, although the smaller Warblers were well represented, Mr. Frostick again securing honours with his well-known Dartford Warbler.

The judges were Messrs. C. A House (Yorks.), J. Robson (Nor., Bord., Crests and Hyb.), H. Norman (Hardbill Brit., Soft. and Memb. Hyb.), and A. Silver (Softbill Brit. and For.). The latter gentleman deputised for Mr. Fulljames, who was unable to fulfil his engagement. They had an excellent light, got through their work in good time, and we heard very little fault finding with the awards.

SCOTTISH METROPOLITAN (Open Derby) O.S.

The annual show of young Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries promoted by the above society was held on Sept. 28 in the Buccleuch Parish Hall, Edinburgh. This event, we heard, is still making good headway, the membership roll being a heavy one, and a good display of birds was brought together, despite the poor season's breeding many fanciers record having experienced. It was a favourable day, and the excellent hall looked at its best, while a very fair number of bird-lovers put in an appearance to look over the exhibits and talk about passing events. The judges—Messrs. Brown, Fulton, Hamilton, Keen, and Park—had a hard task in many of the classes, for the birds were very close together in point of merit, but their awards were very well received indeed. The cup and gold badge for best bird fell to Mr. W. McClure, and many congratulatory comments were heard on this addition to the Glasgow success of the previous week. Mr. J. D. Brown was the runner-up. The Belgian Cup was carried off by Herr J. Verlhies, who sent over a fine lot of birds from Antwerp. The management was sound and up-to-date. In Mr. J. R. Meikle the association has a first-rate secretary, who carries out his duties pleasantly and well; while the other officials, including the President, Mr C R Drysdale, and Vice-president, Mr. W. Thornton, make a splendid working committee.

HUDDERSFIELD'S SUCCESS.

Great Entry of Norwich Plainheads: 36 Buff Hens!

This show was held Oct. 5, in St. Peter's Street Assembly Rooms, and proved a great success, the entries, considering the earliness of the season and the backward condition of the birds generally, coming up quite well. The quality was also first class all round. The eight champion classes for Norwich totalled 163 entries, and amongst them were many high-class exhibits, combining, as they did, size, with type, colour, and quality of feather. The Amateur Section also contained many excellent specimens, which did their owners credit. Yorks. were a good lot, the competition being very keen in the majority of the classes. These were staged in the centre of the hall, and the Norwich in tiers, four deep round the one end and side, and made an imposing display. The hall is well lighted, and absolutely free from any draughts. All the exhibits had the best of attention from a genuine body of fanciers. The hon. sec., Mr. F. J. Sykes, had everything in smooth running order, and was most affable and courteous to all. He received valuable assistance from his assistant, Mr. J. Jackson. Mr. A. Hirst judged Yorks., and Mr. J. H. Payne Norwich.

Is there too much clashing of dates amongst Scottish fixtures?—Well-Managed Show.—A Light Mule Problem.

Eighth annual show held Oct. 5, in the Good Templars' Hall, a splendid place for the purpose, being well lighted all round. The whole of the staging was covered with a screen, which protected the birds from draught, while the staging was well arranged, which left plenty of room for visitors to inspect the exhibits. We are sorry to say that entries were down, numbering something like 330. This was partly owing to birds not having finished moulting, and also to the clashing of other shows, which unfortunately is quite common, the whole of the season, and must surely result in serious loss to many societies. Scotch Fancy were about the usual average as to numbers, 7 per class, and the quality fairly good. Crests were very disappointing, only 33 in seven classes, and were of average quality. The Norwich were also poor, both in quality and numbers, not averaging six per class. Borders were really the best feature of the show, being about 10 per class. The British were about seven per class, but the classification here could easily be improved, and would certainly bring more entries. The management was all right, the president, Mr. R. Carmyllie, being a real good old fancier, while the vice-presidents, Messrs. W. Keill and J. Campbell, worked hard to make the show a success, and Mr. R. Whitton, the hon. sec., had all his arrangements up to time and in good order. It is a pity that he had not more scope for the exercise of the abilities which he undoubtedly possesses, and we hope another year to find the entries largely increased. The officials and members thoroughly deserve it. Cup for best Scotch Fancy, bred 1912 by a member, was won by Mr. Henderson (Tayport), with a nice buff cock; cup for best young Crest or C.B. by Mr. Whitton, with a very good Crest. The Crest Club medal was won by Mr. J. Herschell with a good Crestbred hen; Hyde's spl. by Mr. A. Miller (Dundee). The judges were: Scotch, Mr. W. Beattie (Dundee) and Mr. T. Thomson (Markinch); Crests and Plainheads, Mr. C. Campbell (Glasgow); Borders, Mr. T. Arnott (Kirkcaldy); and British, etc., Mr. R. Baird (Bathgate); and their awards were generally well received, one exception being the winning light Mule, which was well examined by a great many visitors, who seemed unanimously of the opinion that it did not clearly bear out its reputed parentage, viz., as a light Linnet Mule.

Longton Commences the Record Breaking

The show-room packed with high-quality exhibits: Two fine young Norwich bred in the Potteries: Curious incident in the Hybrid section.

Fifth annual show Oct. 5, in the Assembly Room of the Swan Hotel, a change from former years, the original place (the Old Free Library) not being available. The entry was splendid, over 400, an average of 11 per class throughout—a record for the society. The room proved none too big to stage all the exhibits comfortably; indeed, it was taxed to its utmost capacity. An entry such as this was very gratifying to the hard-working officials, and if this early show is to be taken as a criterion, then we may safely predict a fine time for cage bird exhibitors this season. Not only was the entry good, but the quality of the exhibits was magnificent, especially among the Norwich. This section contained some fine specimens of the breeder's art; size was well maintained without any degree of coarseness in feather. The winner in the unlighted yell. class was a topper. Nor was the winner in the unlighted buff class far behind, and both birds were bred, we understand, within the area of the Potteries. The Yorks. were close on the heels of their chubby brethren, some typical examples of the long, racy ones, old faces and new ones, standing at attention. Mules and Hybrids were certainly a very select lot, and here a curious incident arose, a Canary-Bullfie standing at the head of two classes, incorrect wording of the schedule rendering this cross eligible for either class, therefore, in justice to the exhibitors the judge had no option but to let them in. The British section was well filled, though many of the exhibits were requiring a little more time to come into bloom and colour. This section was curtailed somewhat from former years, thereby causing such birds as Bullfies, Chaffies, Buntings, etc., to battle against such birds as the Clough and the smaller Goldbills. This, we understand, will receive attention another year. The open novice section was simply grand, especially the Norwich; a finer lot of novice exhibits, we never saw. We heard of £5 being offered the owner for one exhibit, which offer, by the way, was refused.

Of the management, we cannot speak too highly. A better set of stewards we never wish to meet. Although somewhat handicapped in the matter of room, they made the very best use of the space at their disposal. The way they looked after the exhibits entrusted to their care was indeed worthy of the highest commendation. We noticed some cases of birds which had been delayed in transit, not arriving until past mid-day, and these were given immediate attention, and their classes held back to give them a chance of competing. Also, while taking our notes we heard the order go forth in an unmistakable tone: "Pipes out; no smoking, gentlemen, please." Such actions of thoughtful officials will, we feel sure, meet with the highest appreciation from exhibitors. The secretarial reins were held by Mr. H. George, and right well did he handle them, having every detail at his finger tips, and nothing being too much trouble to receive his immediate attention, any reasonable request being readily complied with. Catalogues with awards printed in the margin, were on sale in an incredibly short time after the last slip was handed in. Members' special for best unlighted Yorks., ditto for best bird in open novice classes, and Hyde's spl., were captured by Mr. Ratcliffe; members' spl. best Canary in open champion classes, by Mr. Bagshaw; Sandiford's colour spl., Mr. Parker. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Members' show held September 28, at the Flying Dutchman Hotel, Leeds Road, when a good entry of 109 birds was staged. Mr. P. Mason, Windhill, judged Yorks., and Mr. H. J. Chittenden, Bradford, Norwich and British, and gave every satisfaction. Some good birds were benched, but it is rather early yet for them, but with another week or two some of them will hold their own in open competition.

Backward Birds Affect Dysart's Entry.

Good Show in Fifeshire despite the fact that Scotland's exhibition birds are not yet quite ready for the fray.

Fifeshire opened the show season on October 5, in good style, and fanciers were well represented at Dysart. Considering the backward season the exhibits were in grand order and some of the classes were keenly contested. Scotch Fancies opened the programme, but they were rather few in numbers. The quality all round was better than in former years, all the exhibits being well up in size, and several could hold their own in keen competition. The judge, Mr. Angus, was very painstaking, and after his awards were announced nothing could be found fault with. Borders were well represented, still we expected to see more forward, this being the first show of importance, and a splendid classification being given. The clear classes were the best, but where were all the variegs. and unevens? Are breeders just going in for clears at present? I know personally that many breeders won't have a variegs. in their room, and the field is being left open for a few good ones of this variety. The medal was awarded to a buff cock, well shown, by Mr. Patterson, Chirneside. The classes were judged by Mr. J. Craig, the well-known Brechin breeder, and his awards generally were well received. Crest and C.B. classes were all cancelled, but the Plainheads were forward in good numbers, especially the unflighted. There was to be seen one of the best bred in Scotland for years, a grand yellow hen, lovely size, monster for substance, and short in shape and beautifully staged by Mr. Simpson, of Airdrie. Variegs. were a nice collection, and all were carefully judged by Mr. J. McLay, who was exceedingly happy in his selections. Mules and Brit. were the outstanding feature of the show, all the classes being very keenly contested. Old warriors and new faces were out doing battle. The sp. for best Brit. was won by that noted warrior, the Song Thrush, "Border Queen," staged to perfection by Mr. J. W. Bruce, Coldstream, looking at its best, and as fresh as ever. Owing to pressure of business, Mr. L. J. Arrighi was unable to judge, and his place was ably filled by our old respected friend, Mr. J. Brown, of Edinburgh, who we were pleased to see now on the way to recovery after his recent severe illness. After Mr. Brown finished his task, comments were conspicuous by their absence. The society possesses an enthusiastic and hard-working committee, everything being in applepie order, no confusion, and all the birds staged comfortably; awards up as soon as slips returned, and all the exhibits carefully fed and watered by the various stewards. Mr. Russell, the energetic Secretary, is the ideal for a cage bird show, quiet and businesslike being his motto, while the worthy treasurer Mr. Harris, was a prominent figure in the management. The hall is a good one, being well lighted, and free from draught. The show was well patronised, and we hope to hear of a financial success. Messrs. Morton and Nesbit's birds arrived too late for judging.

Mr. John Angus' Classes.

A Further Slump in Scotch Fancies.

PAISLEY'S SPECIALIST SHOW

Our representative regretfully records another fall in the entries. An enjoyable exhibition otherwise.

Twentieth annual exhibition competition of Scots. Fancy Canaries, held in the George A. Clark North Minor Hall (one of the finest halls in Scotland), October 5, under distinguished patronage. Office-bearers,: Hon. Pres., Mr. Francis Percy; president, Mr. Niel O'Donnell; vice-pres., Mr. T. Hamilton; secretary and treas., Mr. John Kelly; committee, Messrs. A. M. Baird, John Kennedy, Wm. Neil, Jas. Paterson, Robert Neil, A. Kennedy, H. Powell, Andrew Livingstone, D. Kennedy, John Hart; judges, D. Caldwell, Bailliston; Andrew Ferguson, Renfrew; J. Hannah, Dumfries; J. Hunter, Irvine. The weather conditions were all that could be desired; the hall was in every way excellent for show purposes; ample classes were provided, and good prize-money, including cup, gold badges, and silver medal; yet with all these inducements there was a falling off compared with the previous year, which itself showed a decline. Some of the classes failed to fill, entailing reducing the prize-money in these classes to one-half, a disappointing result to exhibitors, and management alike. From the President to the secretary, the management is all that could be desired, comprising as it does gentlemen who are noted and well known in birdie circles. What became of our Edinburgh friends who made themselves conspicuous by their absence on this occasion? Although lacking in numbers a shade, the quality of the birds staged was excellent, some really fine, typical Scotch Fancies being forward. Secretary Kelly had everything in apple-pie order, being backed up by a hardworking committee. The buff pied hen belonging to Mr. Wm. Gray, cup and gold badge winner, was a gem of the first water, and was followed closely by Mr. John Muir's yellow piebald cock, so much so it took the judges some considerable time to come to a decision, but ultimately the cup and badge fell to the hen. These two birds are sure to figure on the prize list many times this season, and will be hard to beat. There was a fair turn out of visitors, especially in the afternoon. The judges' awards seemed to give all round satisfaction, no grumbling being heard. The following were the awards:

Opening of the Northern Season.

CHOPWELL'S GOOD SHOW.

Society breaks away from other sections and is well rewarded.

This society again led off the Northern show season, the event, as usual, taking place in the Workmen's Club Hall. Previous shows have always been held in conjunction with the fur and feather sections, but this year the cage bird section decided to hold their show by themselves, and their enterprise may be regarded as having proved a distinct success. The entry totalled 353, which may be considered good, all sections being well supported. Yorks. totalled 77 in 6 classes, and, although many of the birds were hardly ready, they made a very creditable display. Norwich averaged over 13 in 5 classes, and here again many of the birds were not quite cleaned up. Borders were about the pick, this variety appearing to be in a more forward condition than the colour-fed varieties. They averaged just over 12 in five classes, and were, on the whole, a very smart lot. British were well supported, the average being about 10 per class. Several well-known winners were staged, and the section all through was very good in quality and condition. The show hall is well adapted for the purpose, nice light, freedom from draughts, and plenty of room for visitors to get about, while the arrangements for staging, etc., were admirably carried out, and reflected the greatest credit on the officials in charge of the arrangements. The society is evidently well favoured in the matter of hard working officers, who comprise the chairman, Mr. M. Simpson; treasurer, Mr. W. Carr, and a committee of Messrs. Christer, Clement, Charlton, Stoddart, Betton, Robson, Flint, and Mason, all of whom gave of their best, and we feel impelled to give an extra word of praise to Mr. Flint, who got through any amount of work, and was here, there, and everywhere looking after the arrangements. In Mr. W. Tomlinson the society possess a very efficient secretary, painstaking and obliging, and although new to the position, he got through his work in an excellent manner, and no doubt under his supervision the society will make considerable progress. A word of praise must also be given to Mr. W. Christer, whom we again found hard at work assisting in the secretarial duties, and the value of his services cannot be over-estimated. The show was well patronised by visitors, and should prove a financial success. The judges were: Mr. A. Holden (Gateshead), Canaries; and Mr. J. Stanger (Pelton Fell), British and foreign.

FANCIERS WATCH THIS COLUMN

Seed Department; the finest procurable. Giant Spanish Canary, 2/6 st.; rape, 3/-; hemp, 2/6; Turkish, 3/- per stone; all warranted pure seeds, no adulterations. Send for seed lists, free. Millet sprays, 2/6 bundle. Cage Department.—Large, well-made double breeders, 35 x 18 x 11, loose sand trays, fronts well made, 3-ply backs, distempered blue or white inside, mahogany or black outside, complete with all glasses, nests, etc., price 9/6 each. Special price for quantities. Very fine box cages, 10 x 10 2/6, 13 x 12 3/6; distempered blue inside, mahogany stain outside. Note, the above are prepared with a special preparation, harmless to birds, but fatal to red mite; they cannot live where it is. The preparation is sold at 3/6 per gallon, carriage paid. It not only kills the insects, but preserves the wood, which cannot rot through getting wet. Linnet cages, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 each; with seed and sand drawers, 1/6 each. Open wire show cages, 10d. each; wheel mouse cages, 10d. and 1/- each. All kinds of cages made to customers' design in our works. Cage fronts, all sizes stocked or made. Brass and wire Canary and Parrot cages in stock. Linnets.—I have the largest stock of fine Norwich type Linnets in the North, magnificent specimens, fit for show or contest, 1/-, 1/6, 2/-, 2/6; several special birds at 5/-, 7/6, and 10/- each, well pencilled, fit for show. Hundreds being despatched every week. Roller Canaries.—My Rollers have arrived. I do not sell common songsters at high prices, but the very best birds at the following prices: No. 1, 20/-; No. 2, 15/-; No. 3, 12/6; No. 4, 10/6; broken songsters at 5/9, 6/6, and 7/6. All birds are safely packed with seed and water for long or short journeys, and sent at my risk carriage paid (on Rollers only) to your door, with a seven day warranty. Money returned or bird replaced at customer's choice. Testimonial: Sept. 25, 1912. J. McG., Esq., Railway Hotel, Ballinamore. —Just a line to let you know bird arrived safe and sound, for which I wish to thank you; I must say I am very pleased with it. (I have hundreds of similar testimonials.) Send your orders to me, any money to "Cage Birds": Hollins, The Zoo, Hull. PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL. The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

No. 23927), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; round or square-topped call cages, all wire tops and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers, and holds in rain, ½lb. 6d., ¼lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6, sample 3d., all post free. Please note, as the name of my lime is being copied by others, I beg to say I have no agents whatever, and it is of utmost importance that you should order direct from me if you want the genuine article. Loose thread netting, as used in my nets, ¾in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d. yard, ditto 9ft. deep 4d. yard, ditto 12ft. deep 5d. yard; extra stout netting, for use on rough ground, ¾in. mesh, 5d. yard; Lark or Starling netting, 1¼in. mesh, 12ft. deep, 4d. yard; all netting post free. Flirt pegs and lines, 6d. each post free; Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun by hand, free from snarl, 60 yards long, and strong as boat lines, 1/4 each, post free; brace swivels, three 3d., twelve 6d., post free; birds' calls for imitating call and song of all birds, 2d. each, six 6d., twelve 10d., post free; absolutely every up-to-date article required by catchers always in stock and ready for immediate dispatch; send stamp for full descriptive list, which also gives hints on net-making. Following testimonials speak volumes for quality of my appliances. "Gedney, Holbeach, Lincs., September 3, 1912.—Sir,—The pair 12-yard clap nets safely to hand. They are an exceptionally good pair, and thread so fine they are hardly visible, and they match the ground so well. Rather different nets for Linnet catching to the herring and garden netting offered for sale by many netmakers, who ought to know better than send such rubbish out. Without doubt, yours are best fine thread nets extant. I shall want more shortly.—Yours, Charlie Cubley." "Wood St., Guildford, August 22.—Sir,—Received the two pairs nets safely. I am well pleased, and so is my friend. We shall not take the trouble to make them when we can get them so good as these for the money.—Yours, S. Bowen." "4, Castle Place, Scarborough, Aug. 25.—Sir,—Please send 1lb. lime. It is best lime I can get. I caught over 200 birds with last lot.—Yours, W. Whitehead." "64, Main St., Renton, Scotland, Aug. 13.—Sir,—Please send 1lb. lime, as the last pound I got from you was the envy of all the catchers here. I cannot say enough in its favour.—Yours, J. McKinn." "52, Silver St., Nenagh, Ireland, Aug. 17.—Sir,—Please send following. The net trap was best I ever saw for the money. I caught 38 Goldfinches with it first day.—Yours, Dennis Hayes." "55, Rockdale Rd., Tunbridge Wells, Aug. 23.—Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from you 7 years ago, and am still using it.—Yours, H. England." If you want reliable serviceable appliances, send to the man who makes them; no connection whatever with any other advertiser.

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH CHAMPION

patronised by all the leading fanciers in England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales. I claim to have sold more British winners than any three dealers put together. Birds supplied by me have won in house-moulted classes at Newcastle, Blaydon, Alnwick, Hull, Sunderland, etc., and have swept the deck in field-moulted classes. I only do honest dealing, and have the confidence of every fancier who has tried me. My birds are sent to you on seven days' approval at my risk, for cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system. It costs you nothing if I fail to please you, but the man is yet to be found that I have not pleased. I have a grand lot of fierce singing cock Linnets, right for time singing or catching, 1/-, 1/6 each; with new back cage, 1/6, 2/- lot; a few with extra loud voice, sing anywhere, 2/6 lot. The Pride of the Singing World, cock Linnet, taught under my undefeated champion of England, cup winner, quality notes only, 2/- each; with new contest cage and book of secrets, only 3/6 lot. Everybody welcome to hear them run like German Rollers, daylight or gaslight. Contest singers wishing to improve their strain should have one of these. Real giant Norwich type cock Linnets, well pencilled, good rich colour, tame, and show themselves well, can win in house-moulted classes, 2/- each; extra gems, 2/6. If they don't win, return them. I can't say any fairer than that. Lesser Redpoll, truly a gem, 1/6; other gems, 1/-. Cock Chaffinch, ready to win, 1/-. Giant cock Greenfinch, a topper, 1/-. Real English peartree cock Goldfinches, will sing anywhere, and cannot be beaten for catching or muling, 2/- and 2/6 each; extra specials, 3/- each; gem Goldfinches, can win, real beauties for size and colour, 4/-, 4/6 each; cock Larks, singing lovely and fit for show, 1/- each; a few hand-reared, finger-tame, will sing anywhere, 1/6, 2/-; one a topper, 3/-. Lark, Thrush, and Blackbird food, the best in England, 4d. per lb., or 7lbs. 2/- Cock Goldfinch Mule, will sing anywhere, 5/6. I could fill a book with testimonials, but it costs money, and my birds are only at working men's prices. Give me a trial order, please. I guarantee you will not regret it. Hundreds of British in stock. State wants. Correspondence a pleasure.—Fred Allen, Bird Specialist, 548, Queen's-rd., Sheffield.

JUST ARRIVED

First consignment for the season of my world-famed Leipzig Rollers, all in superb health and condition. These Rollers have by far the largest sale of any Rollers in the kingdom, and this sale has been built up solely by the superior qualities of the birds. I now hold an enormous stock of cocks, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, jug-jug of Nightingale, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, and flute notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed entirely free from chopping or any other objectionable notes whatever, price 6/6 and 7/6 each; hens of same strain, 2/6 couple; all safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages and sent on full week's trial entirely at my own risk, either on receipt of cash, or deposit system of this paper, and money instantly refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given, and your every expectation realised. All cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am only importer of these birds, no other dealer is able to retail them unless he first purchases them from me. So send to fountain head and be sure of getting the genuine strain. See British bird and Appliance columns for further advts.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle." This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts, with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember, we lead, and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale, and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

UDDINGSTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held in reading rooms, Oct. 10th. There was a fair attendance. President Campbell gave a very clever exhibition of washing Canaries for the show bench. Meetings will be held every Thursday up to date of annual open show.—J. Cosgrove, Hon. Sec.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Meeting held Oddfellows' Hall, September 28, Vice-president J. Hunter in the chair. Mr. Andrew Gillespie was appointed treasurer in room of R. Gardner, who is going to Australia. The members here wish to thank him, and wish him every success in the land of his adoption. Next meeting, October 26, when a good attendance is requested. Business: Appointing stewards for the annual show.—Walter Clarkson, Sec.

COLINTON AND CURRIE PARISHES O.S.

Monthly meeting, Drill Hall, Juniper Green, Oct. 5. Mr. Begbie in the chair. Secretary intimated having received a cup from Major Hope, M.P. for Midlothian, for annual competition, and read communications granting specials for annual show, which were considered very satisfactory. A long discussion took place as to which sections the cups were to go to, and it was finally decided that the Hope cup go for best Scotch Fancy, and the Mitchell cup to best Border. It was left to the committee to allocate the rest of the specials, which number over 40. Decided to make an old bird class for each section. entry 3d. per cage for all old birds be charged, the entry money to go for a sweepstake. All entries not later than Oct. 26.—Jas. Napier.

LANCASHIRE & LIZARD F.A.

A meeting held Old Boar's Head, Manchester, October 12, only a moderate number of members turning up. Secretary read correspondence regarding Sheffield Show, and much satisfaction was expressed at the liberal way the Lanes. and Lizard sections were being treated in the way of specials, about 30s. being given in the eight classes from the society. There is also 2s. 6d. best bird in each of the four Lancs. classes, generously given by Messrs. Maitland and Vickers, and silver medal best novice Lizard, by Mr. J. Rukin. As this is a kind of a test for our varieties at Sheffield, it is to be hoped every member will do his utmost to make it a success. Secretary's action in giving our patronage to Grantham for Lizards only was confirmed. This show is held Oct. 31st, and Messrs. Lockton, chairman of the society, and W. P. Barnes, have guaranteed to forward all birds from Grantham on the Thursday, to reach Sheffield same night. Mr. Bishop, the Sheffield sec., has made arrangements to have the birds met, unpacked, and cared for, so that they will be rested before the judging on Friday. Decided that sec. write all Lizard members, giving particulars as to Grantham and Sheffield shows. Mr. W. Kay, Macclesfield, was elected a member. Next meeting at Hyde, Nov. 16, when it is proposed to discuss our annual club show, as to time, place, etc., and a good muster of members is required. I should be pleased to hear from any members who are willing to give specials at any of our patronage shows.—John Rukin, Hon. Sec.

HULL C.B.S.

The last monthly meeting was a very busy one, about 50 members being present, Mr. D. D. Longhorn giving a washing exhibition, which was closely followed by all present. A small members' show also was held. Mr. Longhorn judged Norwich as follows: YELL.: 1, 2, Harland. BUFF: 1, 2, Harland. Mr. A. Clayton judged Yorks. as under: YELL.: 1, vhc, Gilson; 2, Walker; 3, Stamford. BUFF: 1, Walker; 2, Barwick; 3, Stamford; vhc, Gilson. After the judging the two Norwich classes were amalgamated, and the chairman, Mr. Stamford, added three more entries, and the two Yorkshire classes were amalgamated, and the judges going over the birds again, a judging competition took place. Norwich section, Mr. W. H. Riley was the winner, having placed the first four birds in the same position as the judge. Yorks. section: No result, five members tieing for first place; decided to give prize-money to the special fund for open show, November 15th and 16th. It will be of interest to see how the members stand as regards points cups: Champion cup, Harland 145, Walker 117, Stamford 64, Frith 38, Stone 38, A. Clayton 24, Pepper 13, Mason 9, Barwick 8, Gibson 9, Douse 8, Prentice 8, Girling 5. Novice cup: Norwich: Sutton 40, C. W. Ware 30, Ridley 13, Calvard 13, Potter 11, Hope 10, Beckett 9, McKay 9, Cross 7, Clark 6, P. Potter 5, Heseltine 4, Thirsk 3, Longhorn 3, Riley 1. Yorksbire: W. E. Sowden 28, Chas. Ware 26, Smith 11, Girling 10, Murrey 10, Gilson 10, C. W. Ware 10, Oaks 8, Parkes 7, Horsley 4, Kemp 1. A.O.V. Can.: Ridley 7½, Howes 7, P. Potter 6½, W. E. Sowden 5, Cross 3. British: Riley 81½, Thirsk 36½, P. Potter 37, McKay 20, Lambert 11, Howe 9, Heseltine 8, Parkes 8, Beckett 9, Cross 6, Calvard 2.—E. R. Ridley, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Oct. 3 at Wentworth Cafe, Mr. F. Jones (President) in the chair. There was a good turn-up of members, and a very interesting meeting was held. Business in connection with open show, Dec. 14, and final members' cup show, Oct. 26, was further dealt with. The allocation of specials will be dealt with by the committee on Oct. 21, when the secretaries will sit at headquarters from 8 to 9 p.m. to receive all entries for members' show (please note rule re cup birds); the number of birds for the gift class at the open show are adding up, Messrs. Hemming, Waters, Simmonite, Bingham and Furniss promising birds in addition to those already published. Stewards for members' show are Messrs. Curley and Simmonite. Members who are having a breeder's card either in schedule or catalogue are requested to send in at once to our sec., Mr. A. Hobson. The novice rule, as recommended by the delegate meeting, came in for a good deal of discussion, and it was eventually decided to refer it to the annual meeting. Decided, that the definition of a novice at our open show be one who has not won three firsts in open novice classes or limit classes. Mr. G. Dodd, Whittington Moor, was elected a member. A very fine table show of young birds was held, the number staged being 80; some very promising youngsters were amongst them. Novices came up fine, and some good birds were staged, Mr. Simmonite being to the fore in both classes. Mr. G. Browning, of Rotherham, judged. CHAMP. YORKS. YELL.: 1, 3, c, Champion; 2, vhc, he, Drabble and Bennett; 4, Furniss. BUFF: 1, vhc, Furniss; 2, Thompson; 3, 4, Drabble and Bennett; hc, Jones; c, Tomlinson. NOR. YELL.: 1, 4, Waters; 2, vhc, Cowley; 3, Woolhouse; hc, Hobson. BUFF: 1, 4, Cowley; 2, Hobson; 3, vhc, hc, Woolhouse. NOV. YORKS. YELL.: 1, hc, c, Simmonite; 2, Webster; 3, 4, Lorsby and Billard; vhc, Wordley. BUFF: 1, Simmonite; 2, Webster; 3, Chadwick; 4, vhc, c, Lorsby and Billard; hc, Jennett. NOR. BUFF: 1, 3, Marcroft; 2, Sissen; 4, Woolhouse; vhc, hc, Curley; c, Bailey. BRIT: 1, 2, 3, Walding; 4, vhc, Bailey.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

WEST STANLEY C.B.S.

Meeting held Oct. 5; Mr. W. Butler, chairman. A good lot of members turned up to receive schedules for annual open show November 8 and 9. Stewards were picked for show. Will members bring all specials in on next monthly meeting night, November 2, on which date our entries close for show. Members please bring entries with you at next meeting. Our schedules are now ready, and those who do not get one can have same by writing.—W. Elliott, 15, Fairford Terrace, West Stanley, Co. Durham.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES C.B.S

Monthly meeting Sept. 28, in Good Templars' Hall, Mr. David Knox presiding before a good turn-out of members. The chairman read replies from judges, and the following gentlemen have accepted appointments at annual show on December 7: Mr. James Kerr (Perth), Canaries; Mr. R. V. Raine (Cathcart), the remainder. Classification was next gone into, and it was arranged to give 56 classes, a slight alteration from last year. Matter re prize cards and advertising was left over till next meeting. The following were elected members: Messrs. R. G. Clubb (Langside), J. Campbell, A. Findlayson, and J. Lilico (Alexandria). Mr. James Clark, Ascog, Rothesay, will lecture on Wild Seeds and Berries, at next meeting, Oct. 26. There will be over 100 different varieties of seeds and berries on view, and we trust there will be a good turn-out of members and friends.—Walter Connelly, Sec.

GATESHEAD AND DIST. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held Oct. 9, Mr. Almond in the chair. Committee's proposition re acceptance of Burt Terrace Drill Hall for annual show was accepted. Decided to have foreign classification as last year. Mr. Kelly will do the printing as in previous years. We are endeavouring to get catalogues ready as soon as possible this year by printing members' awards on separate slips, to be had on application to the secretary. We hope to have Ald. Gillies, J.P., to open the show. Popular judges have been engaged: Messrs. Harland, Norwich; Baines, Yorks.; Robson, Crests, Cinnamons, Lizards and foreign; Duncan, Borders, Mules and Hybrids; Maddison, British; Messrs. Robson and Duncan will judge Scotch Fancy jointly.

Special meeting will be held at headquarters Oct. 22, re specials and other show business. Members please make an effort to get specials as early as possible. Mr. Tindale's proposition to accept Mrs. Taylor as a member in place of her late husband was carried unanimously. Members kindly help the Secretary by sending in subscriptions as early as possible.—J. G. Greason, Sec.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

Meeting held Crown Hotel, Oct. 2, Mr. Broadhurst in the chair. Two nominations for membership were received. Offer of the M.C.Y.C.C. patronage at our open show was accepted for both champion and novice Yorks. sections. The oak smoking cabinet was on view and should cause keen competition at young stock show on 23rd inst., while, in addition to several cash specials, Mr. Jeffreys offers a Nightingale for second most points. Classification for open show, Dec. 4th and 5th, submitted by Committee, was passed after slight alteration. Nineteen championship Can. classes are provided, and 10 novice, 2 sell., 2 Mule, 4 Brit., 1 Foreign; also 5 members' £2 limit classes. Mr. J. Robson, judge. British Soft'bill class, birds not larger than Thrush, is guaranteed by Mr. Jeffrey. A few specials were given, and these will be largely added to. A resolution was passed regretting, in view of the inter-club cup competition, no Crest classes had been provided by our neighbours for Crests at their open show. We are pleased to see that at a later meeting (not then reported), the Crest classes were added, so that our resolution was really unnecessary. We look to our Crest fanciers to see that these classes are well filled.—J. H. Jones, Hon. Sec. (per J. H. de M.).

SCOTTISH NATIONAL C.B.S.

Committee meetings held Sept. 19 and Oct. 10. Mr. James Winter, President, presiding over very good attendances of members. The following names were added to list of Committee.—Messrs. Charlton (Pres. of Edin. Dist. C.B.S.), Stormont and Murray; to Hon. Prov. Committee, Mr. J. P. Baxter, Broxbarn (late of Leith). Correspondence was read from the following Specialist clubs who had granted patronage and which were approved, namely:—Cinnamon C.C., Border Fancy C.C., Foreign B.C., National British B. and M.C., Yorkshire C.C., Green C.A., Open Norwich P.C.C., Yorkshire C.C. of Scotland, Scottish British B. and M.C., Scottish Crested C.C., Scottish P.C., U.K. Belgian C.A. We thank the above clubs for the liberal way in which they have given us this support, making a record in patronage to our society. Further particulars anent all the above will appear in schedules. Additional classes added to those already published:—Young birds—Yorks. 2, Crest 2; one class added to the Cinnamons for novices. Staging will be by Mr. D. Kinlayside, prize cards Mr. Garrioch, Edinburgh, posters Leith Printing and Publishing Co. One or two pages in schedules and catalogues will be given for Breeders' Cards at 2/6. Next Committee meeting Oct. 24 for allocation of classes to Judges and other very important items.—J. R. Meikle, Secretary.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Monthly meeting held headquarters, Sydenham Hotel, Oct. 9. Mr. Wilmott took the chair before a splendid gathering of members; another new member elected, the Society still keeping up its record for new members at every meeting held since Jan., 1911. A vote of deep sympathy was passed to the widow of the late G. Walton. Classification, rules, judge, etc., were passed for the young stock show, Oct. 26, all birds to be at the room not later than 5.30. Numerous specials presented, although no appeal was made owing to the nearness of the members' winter show. The Chairman makes a special appeal for all to be present at the November meeting, as a very heavy agenda is down for discussion relating to show matters. Mr. Russell was introduced to those who had not previously made his acquaintance, and he again gave a brilliant exhibition of the correct way to wash birds. He has no equal in the Midlands in this capacity, and the Society are indeed fortunate in securing such a splendid expert. Questions were soon showered upon him, and his answers were all practicable and instructive. The Chairman, in proposing a very hearty vote of thanks, said that the winter programme was being carried out in every detail, and he hoped for better attendances at the meetings, although he was afraid that evening very few more could have been accommodated in the room. Mr. Russell suitably responded, thanking all present for the attention that had been given, and said it would always be a treat to him to assist any member of the South Birmingham Society, champion or novice.—J. Shepard, Sec.

In our Guide to the Shows, the date of Bristol show is given as Nov. 6, with Mr. Keegan, as Sec. The date should be Nov. 13; the Sec. is Mrs. Pool, 37, Manor Rd., Bishopston, Bristol.

For Stoke-on-Trent show, held Nov. 14, we are informed that a grand room has been engaged (not on licensed premises) and that no stone will be left unturned to make the fixture one of the finest in Staffordshire.

We are notified that schedules of the following shows have been sent out. Exhibitors desiring copies should write the respective secretaries, see show advts.: Old Shildon, Brighton, Halifax, F.C. and C.B.S. of Ireland.

Mr. J. H. Harrison, 17, Regent-street, Hebden Bridge, writes that he has been appointed secretary of the Sowerby Bridge, Hebden Bridge, Calder Valley, Heptonstall, Todmorden Inter Shows. All communications should be addressed to him.

Our hall, writes Mr. B. Coffin, assist. sec. Portsmouth F.S. is absolutely the best in Portsmouth, capable of holding 5,000 exhibits and all exhibits at our show, Nov. 27-28, will receive the attention and care of well-known cage bird fanciers.

Through a printer's error in our schedule, writes Mr. C. Rae, sec., Kirkcaldy C.B.S., Class 43 should read, cl. or tkd. yellow hen, instead of cock. Also our special numbers are two out of place, and will be sent out according to the section they belong.

It was an agreeable surprise to me to see my winning Yellow Cock at Clapham Show depicted on the front of our valuable journal, Cage Birds, also the photo of my son, writes Mr. W. Spillman (Devonport). I am sure it will be a red letter day in bird history for him.

Members of the Partick and District C.B.C. writes Mr. Priest, secretary, should note that entries close October 30th. Schedules for open Yorks. classes have been posted to all known fanciers. Anyone wishing one can have same by applying to the secretary at 6, Orchard-street, Partick.

Notice of the following additional fixtures has reached us:—Woodside (Aberdeen) Nov. 30, 46 classes, judges: Messrs. A. Chalmers, W. Bishop; Windsor, Nov. 6, judges, Messrs. D. Seth Smith, H. Norman; Consett, Blackhill, Nov. 23; Halifax, Nov. 8-9; judges, Messrs. W. A. Cowgill, A. G. Davies; Southampton, Nov. 20-21.

There will be six money prizes, writes Mr. Gibb, sec. Brighton and Hove C.B.A., in most of the British classes at the forthcoming open show, Nov. 14-15, 10s., 6s., 4s., 3s., 2s., and 1s., Major F. Johnson, a keen fancier, having promised the additional prizes. There are also two specials for Bullfinches, 5s. best field moulted and 5s. cage-moulted, kindly offered by Mrs. Partridge, a lady fancier of the Bullfinch. Additional prize money is also offered in the non-colour-fed classes, by Mr. G. Claude.

Mr. W. P. Barnes, of Grantham, has been engaged to judge the cage bird section at Spalding.

Stamford Show, the exhibitors' opportunity. Entries extended. See large advertisement. —(Advt.).

Will show secretaries please send on schedules, writes Mr. Wm. Hornby, 17, Noster St., Beeston, Leeds.

In our "Guide to the Shows" we have Mr. J. Wilcock down as one of the judges at Doncaster Show, Nov. 22 and 23; this should be Mr. J. Walsh, of Blackburn.

Leigh show, held Nov. 23-24, is only for members, writes Mr. R. Charleson, the secy., but I have had some applications for schedules from outside fanciers.

I have opened new premises at 401, Ashton Road, Openshaw, writes Mr. F. Washbourne, with a large selection of British birds, seeds and all requisites for the Fancy.

The Leith Jubilee Ornithological Society's 25th annual show will be held in Kinnairds Hall, Leith, Saturday, 2nd November, Messrs. J. Dalgleish (Trinity) and J. Carson (Easthouses) acting as judges.—(Advt.)

Will you kindly announce, writes Mr. H. Boothman, sec., that there is an extra special at Manchester Belle Vue Show, that is not in the schedule, viz., 10s. cash, for best Yorks., given by Mr. W. E. Kearns, Rawtenstall.

Mr. R. Grainger writes: Will the gentleman who enquired for me on Wednesday evening, Oct. 9, at Darlaston Green, please communicate with me at 3, The Oaklands, Richard St., the Green, Darlaston, as I think he was wrongly informed, and sent to a man of the same name as my partner (viz., Harper).

OBITUARY.

Mr. A. C. ALLAWAY (N. Shields).

You will hear with regret that Mr. A. C. Allaway, the well-known fancier of North Shields, passed away on Oct. 6, writes Mr. W. Hunter. He will be known almost all over the world as a great exhibitor of Larks. From what I can gather, he first showed at the Crystal Palace about 33 years ago, and he, or birds procured from him, have won first at the Palace about 29 times, including only this year (1912)—truly a record in itself. As a judge of British birds, few were his equal, and only a little while ago when in conversation with him he told me that he could judge a show himself, consisting of Canaries, British birds, rabbits, cavies, and machinery. To his widow we tender our sincerest condolences.

Mr. C. W ALTRY (South Shields).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. W. L. Smith, hon. sec., South Shields C.B.S., that I have to announce to his many friends the death of Mr. C. W. Altry. His mortal remains were followed to the grave by a large number of mourners: the day was of the very worst, but it did not deter the many that knew him as a man, as a friend, and as a fancier, to pay their last respects to one of the very best of nature's gentlemen. Mr. Altry will be sorely missed. He always got through a lot of work for this society, and none will miss him more than your humble servant. He was a good ticket seller, grand collector, and a hard worker at the show, ever ready to do what he could for everyone. The society sent a beautiful wreath suitably inscribed.

Mr. W. Reid, of Pallion, near Sunderland, is engaged to judge the Hetton-le-Hole C.B.S. annual members' show on Dec. 7, writes Mr. A. J. Notley, the Sec.

The prize-money at Old Shildon show is good, and we guarantee specials for every class, writes Mr. J. H. Ewell, the sec. We hope fanciers will give their best support to this fixture.

The third annual members' show of the Croydon and Dist. F.A. has been fixed for Nov. 6th, in the large Public Hall, George Street, Croydon, writes Mr. F. W. Capell, hon. sec. Schedules have been sent to all fully paid up members.

Please express to readers my regret at delay in sending out schedules, writes Mr. A. Harrison, Hon. Sec., Stamford Show. Owing to a misunderstanding, we were unable to get the entry forms until Oct. 11. Shall be glad to send one to anyone overlooked.

The Holborn Hall (formerly Holborn Town Hall) where the L. and P.O.S. show is being held next Wednesday and Thursday (see advertisement) is most central. Motor 'buses and trams from all parts pass the door. From Victoria, take a Leyton 'bus No. 38. 'Bus No. 18 is most convenient from Paddington, Marylebone, Baker St., Euston, St. Pancras, King's Cross, as it passes the door. This service also applies to visitors from London Bridge and Cannon St. From Liverpool St., the Central London Tube to Chancery Lane is most convenient. From Waterloo Station, take the tram from the Embankment.

WHERE ADVERTISING PAYS.

Now is the time to advertise surplus stock: But don't waste money—send to CAGE BIRDS where results are sure.

I always get good results from CAGE BIRDS when I advertise. Long live CAGE BIRDS!—E. Cockram (Chard).

Through my last advert. in CAGE BIRDS I had offers from all parts of England, and Wales.—Lovell (Long Buckby).

Having received too many replies to my advert re Exchange in "CAGE BIRDS" to answer individually, I should be obliged if you would thank those who sent offers, through your valuable paper.—Mr. H. Simmonds.

Pleased to inform you (writes Mr. J. Martin, Castle Douglas) of the good sale I am having for show cages, etc., through my advts. in "CAGE BIRDS." It is the best birdy paper for results that I have come across. I wish "CAGE BIRDS" every success.

I advertised in "CAGE BIRDS" the stock of a gentleman who is going abroad (writes Mr. R. J. Witton (Colchester), and I am very pleased to tell you I had a splendid response. I could not answer all the postcards, but I answered all the letters, and I must say I found some very straightforward, honest customers. I wish "CAGE BIRDS" all the success it deserves.

At Bodmin annual show, 6th November, the Committee have very wisely arranged to stage the birds in a separate room, which will prove much warmer and cosier than in former years, writes Mr. A. E. Jago, the Hon. Sec. This is the twentieth consecutive show, and the Society has a substantial balance at the Bank.

The Entry at Newcastle Show.

Mr. J. W. Reed, sec., writes:—Entries to Tuesday night number 1,600.

Prize Money Paid.

We are notified that prize-money, etc., has been paid for the following shows; anyone overlooked should communicate with the respective secretaries: Broughty Ferry, Longton, Leeds.

Well-Known Judge's Indisposition.

We very much regret to hear that Mr. J. Patterson, of Chirnside, is laid aside with influenza and will not be able to judge the Borders, etc., at Newcastle Show this week-end.

Norwich Inter-club Championship.

At the inter-club competition held at the annual show of the Norwich Alliance C.B.A., the Hand-in-Hand won with 273 points. Nine clubs competed. The interest in the competition is very keen in "Canary City."

To Walworth Bird-lovers.

We learn that Dr. A. E. Read, the well-known Roller Canary enthusiast, of Walworth, is a candidate for the Borough Council in the St. Peter's Ward. We are sure that all bird-keepers in this area will be anxious to support so excellent a fancier.

Remember Harrogate this Time.

The Harrogate C.B. Society's Hon. Sec., Mr. G. H. Barnwell, is, we hear, spending a lot of time in trying to save expense for the Society by copying schedules with a copying block. They were at a great loss with their show last year, and they are trying to recoup this, and hope fanciers will rally round this time and give them a bumping entry.

Cage Birds League Medals.

The Sheffield O.S. are offering for competition at their All England Show, Nov. 1 and 2, 8 silver Cage Birds League medals, one each for most points in the following sections —Yorkshires, Norwich, Crests, Lancashires, Lizards, British, Hybrids, Foreign. Members of the League should not overlook this very important offer; also through the generosity of Messrs. A. J. A. Marley and G. Lawrence further medals will be offered in the British and Hybrids. Messrs. P. Walsh and T. Dawn kindly guarantee a class for Albino and Rare Feathered British Birds, and Mr. J. Rukin gives a silver medal for Novice Lizards.

Portsmouth C.B.S.'s Big Effort.

The officials of Portsmouth C.B.S. are anticipating a big success for their open show on Nov. 5th and 6th. The enterprising secretaries, Messrs. King and Joiner, have been busy among local people, and have got together a splendid list of "specials," a photograph of a selection of which appears on another page. They make a fine array, and 90 per cent. of them, including a 400-day clock, are "open to all." Messrs. King and Joiner, too, are giving splendid publicity to the event. The result is the large announcement among the show advertisements in this issue, which, giving the full open classification and specials, will no doubt be read with interest by all exhibitors. The efforts of Portsmouth C.B.S. are certainly worthy of recognition by all aspirants to show honours, especially as there are so many good things going. There is a fine list of open classes, and the hall is second to none in the South. Entries, which close Oct. 31, may be made from the advertisement, or schedules may be had from Messrs. King and Joiner, 80, Stubbington Avenue, Portsmouth. Now, exhibitors, let them have big post-bags during the next few days.

Wild-Bird Life.

Autumn Songsters.

The hedgerows and woods have lost much of their density, for the leaves are falling fast. Autumn tints prevail, and the countryside is as beautiful now as at any time of the year. With the continued fine weather, wild birds are rapidly recovering from the moulting sickness, and here and there we hear joyous music that reminds us of summer days. That persistent singer, the Skylark, flutters overhead, making wide circles in the blue, and only coming to earth after a considerable period of delightful music.

The Song Thrush is another of our autumn performers. Many have passed the recording stage, and sing quite lustily; one near the writer's garden is a charming singer. Perched upon a bare branch in an old elm tree he has passed much of the daylight in practising, and even when the sun has gone down and the usual evening mist overspreads the landscape, he competes with the Robin for the last passage before retiring for the night. Although he is a young bird (being reared on the premises, so to speak) his notes are wonderfully tuneful and mellow, and at present he appears to possess only the rich wild notes of the open.

That independent little wanderer, the Common Wren, has now left the woods, and mostly frequents the hedgerows and gardens. Although such a tiny creature, he is a delightful little fellow to watch. How he hunts the rose trees on the walls and the standard fruit trees for stray insects; but his chief hunting ground is the rubbish heap of the garden.

THE NORWICH FUND.

Subscription List in Aid of the Sufferers in the Recent Floods Closes Next Week.

Since our last list of subscriptions in aid of the fanciers who suffered in the recent disastrous floods at Norwich was published (page 785), amounting to £12 12s. 6d., we have received, and have pleasure in gratefully acknowledging, sums of: 7 Stirling C.B.S. members—Messrs. Bishop, Cooper, Auld, Parker Denny, Summers, Neil and Clubb, 1s. each; Mr. J. Shiers 2s.; Mrs. West 1s.; bringing the total up to £13 2s. 6d.

In addition, we have to acknowledge a most generous gift from a lady bird-lover—Miss H. Hall, of Lewisham—who very kindly offered 14 Canaries (seven pairs) for distribution amongst the Norwich sufferers. These were duly packed and despatched on Friday last by Mr. G. E. Weston, and their safe receipt has been duly acknowledged by Mr. F. Cullington, who has been good enough to take charge of them until their disposal can be arranged. We are sure Miss Hall's generosity will be deeply appreciated.

We purpose closing this fund next week and therefore shall be glad if those readers who care to support this very worthy object will let us have their subscriptions, etc., at once. Any amount, however small, will be most acceptable.

Fifty Years of the Yorkshire Canary.

Some instructive answers to pertinent questions arising out of Mr. Mallinson's paper read before the London Cage Bird Association.

A full report of the lecture appeared in our issues of Sept. 14, Sept. 28, and Oct. 5.

AT the conclusion of the reading of Mr. Mallinson's paper, several points were raised among the members present, and the Chairman announced that Mr. Crisp had in anticipation addressed some questions to Mr. Mallinson, and had received replies. These Mr. Crisp had sent to be read, as he had found himself unable to be present. The questions and answers, which were read by the Chairman, were as follows:—

(1) What is the difference between the Yorkshire of fifty years ago, and the present-day birds?—Answer: The present-day Yorkshire Canary is a very different bird to the Yorkshire of fifty years ago. The old-fashioned Yorkshires, I may venture to say, were a mixture of Lancashire and Belgian blood. They were nice lengthy birds, showing the Belgian very much about the head and shoulders; in other respects they were equal to our present day specimens. They had fine length of wings, with tail carried to perfection, but when you get to the shoulder then you find the difference between them and our present-day birds. The birds of to-day may be a bit better in quality of feather, being more silky and of finer quality. The old bird had too much of the Belgian and Lancashire to show the extra fine silky feather that we see to-day.

The Value of Outside Crosses.

(2) What are the advantages of the various crosses used in building up the present-day Yorkshire?—I do not think that the Norwich has played any part in the building up of the present-day Yorkshire. Years of careful breeding and the drawing up of the various standards during that period have brought the present-day Yorkshire into the beautiful bird it is. I have never introduced the Norwich into my Yorkshires, or any birds I thought touched with Norwich blood. In my opinion, there is little to gain by its introduction, except colour, and may be quality of feather. But in getting these advantages you lose length, one of the main features, get bulky bodies, and large heads, with heavy thick beaks, also bad position. The Norwich stands too much across the perch. Whoever may have used the Norwich to better the Yorkshire will have made a sorry mess of it.

On the other hand, the Lancashire has no doubt played a great part in building up the Yorkshire. We used to go to Littleborough and all about there for our large stock birds, and they were Lancashires. Some of them were nice feathered birds. These suited the Yorkshire fancier to break in for length. To obtain length to-day we do not go to the Lancashire, but we use long cocks, with plenty of wings and tail. You must have carriage, no dropping of the tail or leaning over the perch. This latter, in my opinion, is the worst fault you can find in a Yorkshire, and should always be avoided.

I do not advise running small hens, however large the cock bird may be. I like a good lengthy hen, with fine quality of feather. I think it best to have good quality in the hen to tone down the raw material of the long stock cock. I have never had much success with small hens, and seldom use them. To keep up length you must avoid these small light-boned birds, or you will soon get on the small side, which it is so easy to do.

Belgian blood has been introduced to get position, and birds that are touched with it will have beautiful position and carriage, that is if it is the right sort of Belgian. I have known it introduced and it has spoilt any number of birds. These were the faulty, bad-positioned birds that might be used to advantage in breeding Scotch Fancies; but for Yorkshire breeding it is disastrous, and you get the tail-dropper, a common fault we see in hundreds of Yorkshires to-day.

The Most Difficult of All.

If a fancier should go in for a bit of Belgian blood direct, he should be very careful not to get this class of bird, or he will be worse off by 50 per cent. Whenever I have introduced Belgian blood it has usually been on the hen's side. I think it does not appear so prominently in the offspring as when the cock bird is used.

(3) How are Cinnamon marks bred?

Cinnamon-marked breeding is the most difficult of all to tackle. I have bred hundreds of well-marked birds, some real eye-openers, others just the reverse; and I may say I could not give any guarantee which is the best method of pairing to produce good marking. They are so treacherous; one nest may be extra good and the next nest from the same pair may be the opposite. I have bred well-marked birds from marked cock and clear or slightly ticked hen, but my very best show birds I bred from clear cocks and marked hens.

The cock we sold to Mr. Crisp was bred from a buff cinnamon-marked hen and a clear pink-eyed cock. The hen was a big winner, and out of the same nest as my yellow cinnamon-marked cock which won two firsts and a second during three years at the Crystal Palace.

I never had much luck with any of my best yellow-marked cocks in the way of breeding winners from them. I do not advise double-marked breeding. Get marked cocks and clear or ticked hens, or vice versa.

Good marking can be got either way; I do not mind which, so long as I have good position and quality combined, though I like one to run a bit on the heavy side, so long as I know how it is bred. It keeps one more in touch with the markings. I have bred lots of winners from birds on the heavy side, but it was usually the heavily marked hen that I used. I am of the opinion you do not get so many variegated youngsters that way as by using a dark cock.

(4) Are the cinnamon or pink-eyed birds more delicate than the green- or black eyed birds?—I am of opinion that they are.

(5) What are the most difficult points to obtain, and faults to get rid of in a Yorkshire?

The most difficult faults to deal with in Yorkshires are of position, head qualities, length, and a breast frill. The latter it is a very difficult job to avoid, and I do not think anyone has ever done it yet. No matter how good your stock, you will breed a few of these frilled birds, and usually they are not bad ones if the frills were not there.

Pointed breasted birds that have plenty of Belgian blood in them will breed this sort of bird, and if not too bad it is not so difficult to deal with. There are double-frilled birds, those in which the frill runs right under the neck. I never like them to breed with, and should advise anyone to give a wide berth to this fault, as you can do nothing with it: it is most difficult to breed out.

I always think cinnamon blood is an advantage for producing colour and good quality of feather. It is often used to obtain quality in the dark-eyed Yorkshire.

In cinnamon-marked breeding you have the markings to deal with, and this is the most difficult task of all. You have to put the good marks on to the right bird, which is no easy matter. You may get an extra well-marked bird, and as likely as not he is either too small or too bulky, bad in position, or with some such fault. On the other hand, you may get a really fine specimen of a Yorkshire, except that he is too heavily marked. This has been my experience all through my life.

I have known fanciers who have been very successful with the clear and green ticked birds, and they thought they could breed cinnamon marks as easily, but most of them have been satisfied with two seasons of it. They don't like the off-markings, which always have to be dealt with in breeding cinnamon marks. Fanciers may buy good birds, and may be successful with clears and dark ticks, but those who think they can breed winning cinnamon marks all at once are sure to be disappointed. They have to be worked for, and it is no use throwing up the sponge because of a few "darkies." I have bred scores in my time, and am not afraid of trying to breed the most beautiful of all Yorkshires because of a few dark-coloured birds, which, with judicious breeding may be greatly modified.

(6) Will you enumerate a few of your winnings with Cinnamons?—We have won at the Crystal Palace eleven firsts, six seconds, seven thirds, five fourths, four vhc's, four hc's, and two c's. Our best year was in 1902, when we secured three firsts, two seconds, three thirds, two fourths, one vhc, and one c. This, I think, is a record amongst the cinnamon marks. All these birds were of my own breeding, except two, both yellow cinnamon marked hens. I did not have the pleasure of going to the Crystal Palace. I had to send my son, owing to ill-health. I should like to have the acquaintance of the Southern fanciers, but I am afraid I shall not be able to stand the travelling; since my bad attack five years ago, I dare not take any big risks; when one is in the last year of seventy, one has to be careful. Again I wish you every success, and I hope my advice will enable some of you to place a real winning "topper" of a yellow cinnamon-marked cock on the show bench at the Crystal Palace at no distant date, a bird I have always admired most amongst all the Canary tribe.

At the close of the debate, a very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Mallinson for his paper, which everyone present agreed was far above the average in point of interest and instructiveness. The vote was carried to the accompaniment of loud applause.

A FEAST OF GOOD THINGS.

Some of them fine Specials to be won outright at the show of the Portsmouth C.B.S. held Nov. 5th and 6th (note advt. in this issue.)

THE MUSICAL BOX OF THE CANARY FAMILY.

By J. TOMLINSON.

Discriminating the Indifferent from the Good.

Unlike the German fancier, we cannot allow ourselves to appreciate the hollow roll strain. It has not a sufficiently pleasing variety of tours to suit us, yet it is free from faults as we view them at the present time. Our favourites are the Glucke and Water Glucke strains, and faulty tours with these strains are hereditary. We are advancing to eradicate them. When we have reached our ideal, it is probable we shall proceed to perfect the tours our birds then sing.

The uninitiated may ask what are the Glucke and Water Glucke strains, and why we prefer them to one adopted by those who are past-masters in this variety of Canary. In a word, the Hollow Roll strain is "one of the has beens," and to-day "all that is left of them"—the remains of a craze for a pure song, from which ruthless hands indiscriminately severed every fault, and with them also went some fine tours (let us trust not irretrievably lost). Our ideal is a bird that will sing all the good tours and rolls of the Hollow Roll strain, combined with the Glucke and Water Glucke tours appertaining to these strains, excluding the faults which are hereditary to them.

How the Youngsters Differ.

A perceivable difference will soon be recognised in the demeanour of the young cocks in the flight cages. Some will sit quietly rehearsing their song, others will sing a little, then break off, and commence to race the perches; in fact, they will do anything but sit quiet and study. Further, others will be conspicuous by the manner in which they open their beaks when singing. This is a bad sign, as it predicts some imperfection in the song.

When the warbling gradually unrolls itself into a recognisable song, it is time to remove them into the song cages. No benefit would accrue from an earlier transfer, and a detrimental effect on their song might be the result if they are allowed a longer period in the flight cages. It is an unwise procedure to allow youngsters to get too loud in song in the flight cages, trusting to tone them down when caged separately in the song cages. They will certainly sing in a subdued tone of voice when closed up, but immediately full light is given, they return to their former style of singing. Some of them will yield to our efforts of treatment, others we can do nothing with. The quiet, steady singers will be found to be the best, as their earlier demeanour predicted a connected song.

An Aggravating Type.

The second described rarely make good singers. They remind one of the human suffering with nerves. If they do not settle down to an evenly connected song in the song cages, dispose of them, for they are an aggravating type of bird to their owners. It is a rare occurrence for these birds to sing their complement of tours without disconnecting them.

The third class will be found faulty singers. One or more of their tours or notes will be too high, but it is possible that they may tone down a little as their deeper tours develop. So little reliance can be placed on this, however, that it is hardly worth mentioning. Neither is it just for me to raise hopes which are never likely to be realised. Still it is possible, but hardly probable, that they will tone down. Whether they should be removed from the training room, must be decided by the song quality of the tutor. Assuming that they have had a faultless education, then isolate them with alacrity the moment a faulty note is perceived. Don't put it off till a later day, as by the arrival of that day another youngster will have learned it, and so on the fault will go if not checked in time.

Perpetuating the Excellences.

Whether these singers should be entirely disposed of, must depend altogether on the other portion of their song. One or more may be found to excel in some particular tour, or may be singing one that is not found in its schoolmates.

In either of these cases, I advise the turning of a deaf ear to the imperfection, until that excellence is fixed into the strain. To discover which of the parents this good quality is derived from, judiciously pair son to mother, and sire to daughter, and, if convenient, choose for the latter one bred in the same nest as the chosen son which is to be mated to its dam. The object is to fix the quality first, and careful attention to this is necessary if we are to attain our ideal, otherwise we shall find ourselves with birds of such merits as to make us wish we had accepted the hollow roll strain, for their tours and rolls excel those of the same variety found in the Glucke and water Glucke strains.

Questions and Answers.

For rules see page 802 last week.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mule and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

BLEEDING FROM MOUTH (A Constant Reader).—The bleeding was due to the rupture of a blood vessel caused by the bird's violent efforts at singing. Whether it will recover sufficiently to sing again depends solely upon the extent of the internal damage. But such birds rarely do any good after these attacks. Continue giving a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and liberally sprinkled with maw every second day for a fortnight, and then every third day for another month. Give a spray of green food four times a week, and a pinch of mixed seed twice a week. In the drinking water add six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of dilute sulphuric acid three times a week for a month.

FORCING A MOULT (Enquirer).—As the birds moulted last April, it is not likely they will moult naturally again before spring, and as they are all in such good health and condition, I cannot advise you to carry out your suggestion of forcing them into moult prematurely. You do not say how old the birds are, nor the breed to which they belong. If they are past their first youth, say, three or four seasons old, I would rather advise you to discard the hens as breeders, and keep the cock for a tutor only, if you are breeding songsters. By doing this his moulting in the spring would be a decided advantage, as he would resume his song when the youngsters would benefit most from it, and retain it all through the autumn moult, when the other cocks were out of song. But if you prefer moulting the birds now, proceed as advised to "C.B.," in last issue.

SWELLING UNDER EAR (Novice).—Carefully remove a few of the small feathers which cover the swelling, so as to leave the top of it bare. Then touch the swollen part with a small feather or camel-hair pencil dipped in tincture of iodine every fourth day until you have done it four times. Keep bird in a cage by itself until the swelling has disappeared, which it may do quite suddenly, as these growths frequently drop off, or get rubbed off when they are "ripe."

HEN PLUCKING OUT FEATHERS (Eccleshill).—Have you well examined bird and cage for insect pests? If not, do so at once, and if any are found take steps to exterminate them as frequently advised in this column. For dealing with lice, which live on the bird, see reply to "E.G.," in this issue. If no insects are found, feed the bird as advised to "John Williams" for two or three weeks, but give the bread and milk and maw every second day for a fortnight. In the drinking water add 20 drops of glycerine, as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence, and half as much chlorate of potash every second day for a week.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); Rouse's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1½); Rouse's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

SONGLESS AND SONGSTERS (H. R.).—(1) It will be useless giving the bird anything unless you first remove any exciting causes of bronchial trouble. See to this first. Keep the bird in a comfortable place, not necessarily a very warm one, but in a pure atmosphere, free from cold draughts and fumes of burning lights. Then treat the bird for a month as advised to "T. Clayton," in this issue, giving also the paste prescribed in that reply, and in the water give the mixture as advised to "C.B.," in last issue, for a fortnight. (2) You could, of course, mate a Goldfinch with the Roller hen, but the song of the resultant mules would be inferior to that of the pure Roller. Next to the pure Roller the best songsters are a Roller-Border, Roller-Yorkshire, or Roller-Norwich cross in the order named.

BIRDS DYING SUDDENLY (John Williams).—There seems something unusual about your losses, and I would strongly advise you to send immediately to Mr. Yates for post-mortem the body of the next that dies. My first impression on commencing to read your letter was that the birds were probably closely inbred and weakly, the symptoms being so like those of the epileptic taint that not infrequently runs in such strains, but your closing remarks upset this theory. I suppose it is not likely to be due to nervous shock, brought on by some alarming object coming in sight of the birds occasionally. If not, then I'm afraid it is of a bacillary nature, which only a post-mortem could satisfactorily ascertain. For the present, in addition to your staple diet of canary seed, give half a teaspoonful, per bird, of summer rape separately every second day, and, on alternating days, twice each week give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of maw seed, and the two other days half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts inga, millet, teazle, black rape, and broken groats. Give a spray of green food every second day. In the drinking water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a week, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid.

BATHING AND SONG (Novice, S. A. A.).—(1) As a rule a Canary is very easily induced to take to the bath by removing its drinking water, hanging a bath on the open doorway, or placing inside, and then giving a bath to another free bathing bird where the non-bather can see it splashing in the bath. Or it may be placed in a flight for a time with one or two other bathers. If kept alone, give it just a light spraying, sufficient only to bedew the plumage, then remove drinker and hang on bath for an hour or so. At first a tiny spray of green food placed in centre of bath will act as an extra inducement. Repeat this three or four times a week until bird takes freely to bathing. (2) If you wish to get a really good class of Roller song, it is essential to breed with Roller parents and train the young under good singing Rollers. If you bred with Norwich birds and trained the young under Rollers, you would get a better type of song than the pure Norwich, but it would be far below the quality of the Roller song pure and simple.

RESTLESS AT NIGHT (A. Lee).—The feet may be a little inflamed, but I have not the least doubt the real trouble is that the cage is infested with red mites. Bathe feet for a few minutes in a warm solution of boracic acid, a teaspoonful of acid dissolved in a teacupful of warm water. Clean them well whilst bathing, and if the claws are overgrown, trim them back to a proper length. Dry feet and anoint sparingly with a little vaseline. Repeat bathing once or twice at intervals of one day. Examine cage carefully, probing if necessary any open joint or hole with a pin, and if any mites are found, thoroughly overhaul cage as frequently advised in this column to exterminate them. Add a few drops of quassia essence to the bath twice a week for a time.

NOT SINGING (T. Clayton).—It is not unusual for a cock after the first few seasons to take a few weeks' rest after moulting before resuming song. Continue your present seed diet, but give in addition half-a-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with a mixture of equal parts maw and gold of pleasure every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days give a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle, and a spray of some green food. Make a paste with a teaspoonful of honey, as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, the same quantity of grain of paradise, and a sufficient quantity of finely crushed biscuit to make a paste about the consistence of putty when mixed on a hot saucer. When cold, it will cut solid. Stick a piece in the wires for bird to nibble away at will. Its behaviour in the breeding cage was merely the result of that faint-heartedness which it is said, never succeeds in affairs of the heart.

YOUNG BIRD HAVING FITS (Jos. Jarvis).—The bird is an epileptic subject. Such birds are sometimes closely inbred, and are usually of a weakly anæmic habit. The result of treatment is not very satisfactory. Keep birds under healthiest possible conditions; feed well, but do not overfeed it with rich oily seeds; keep bowels regular by a judicious management of food supply rather than the use of drugs. If you know when a fit is pending, at once add to the drinking water as much bromide of potassium as will cover a threepennypiece, and continue giving this for three consecutive days. Then give it every second day for the remainder of a week. If the attack comes on, keep bird as quiet as possible, and treat for a week as above. Repeat the treatment after each attack, or if they occur frequently, then treat every alternate week for a couple of months.

BLACK FEATHER LICE (E.G.).—The quickest and most effectual cure for all lice on Canaries is to hand-wash the bird, mixing a little creolin in the first two basins of water used—a teaspoonful of creolin in a pint of water is the proper proportion. Whilst bird is drying well clean and wash out cage with a solution of creolin of twice the above strength. Repeat washing of bird and cage after an interval of a week. If you cannot wash bird, catch it, and dust it very liberally with a good insect powder, working it well beneath the feathers, particularly around the neck, base of tail and under wings. Then roll bird in a small handkerchief, leaving only the beak exposed for free breathing, and lay it down in an old cage for safety, for fifteen minutes. Then unwrap it, and when it has shaken the powder out of its feathers and preened itself, give it a bath in which a few drops of extract of quassia has been mixed, and allow it to bathe and dry itself before returning to its own cage. Whilst this process is going on, wash out cage as above described. Repeat this process twice at intervals of a week each time.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

BERRIES (Hilda).—So far as I can see they are just the berries of the common hawthorn; and these, far from being poisonous, are excellent to give to any birds which relish berries. It is quite time, now, that all Linnets and Bullfinches had made a start upon the moult. Many have already finished.

TWO BIRDS (G. Wigley).—When did you catch these birds? The smaller one would probably be the Willow Warbler, and the larger the Hedge Accentor (commonly called Hedge Sparrow). But your descriptions are so very vague that it is almost guesswork to try to name them.

MULE WITH A CREST (J.P.).—Mules with "top-knots" are not at all uncommon, but they are not often exhibited at shows (though I should think they would be eligible in a class headed "Any Other Variety of Mule"). I remember a really lovely crested Goldfinch Mule being shown at the Crystal Palace some few years ago; but I forget the fate it met. I have an idea, however, it was "very highly commended. Fanciers don't try to breed crested Mules, or they would soon become common enough.

AILING GOLDIES (Constant Reader).—Of course, as no doubt you well realise it often happens that birds contract some complaint which it is beyond the power of medicine to cure. The first bird you mention (I don't remember seeing any query concerning it) I should think had some stoppage or irritant, internally, which would account for the symptoms, and doubtless there was no chance of a cure. Regarding the second bird, I do not consider that the food has anything to do with the matter—a bird needs feeding generously when casting its plumage. Some birds, however, feel the strain of the moult more keenly than others; any weakness of constitution is sure to be exposed at this period, and is very liable to start the bird on the downward path. Your bird for instance was probably not as strong as he might have been owing to the recent cold of which you speak. Give him a course of tonic, building-up medicine. Get one ounce of compound syrup of hypo-phosphites (B.P.) from a chemist, and stir a good half-a-teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of water. Give fresh daily, and not in a tin or zinc drinker. Give every day for one week, then every other day (plain water in between) over a period of a fortnight.

Owing to the severe pressure on space several Answers have had to be held over until next week. —Editor.

THE CASE OF A LARK (Mrs. Tweedale).—Get from a chemist a small jar of combined malt extract and hypophosphites, and well mix a small quantity of this (say a good half-teaspoonful) amongst its soft food daily. It will soon make a difference to the condition of the bird—unless, of course, there is something organically wrong, and, this, judging from your letter, is not the case. A few mealworms now and again would be helpful.

A RESTLESS SONG THRUSH (Enoch Matthews).—Unfortunately, you do not tell me whether the bird has been long in a cage, or is comparatively fresh caught. Nor do you say whether you have tried any likely remedies. Have you tried covering over the cage with a black cloth, or removing it to a dark, quiet room at night (or both)? It takes some birds quite a long time to get used to artificial light; they become restless and fidgetty as soon as it is brought into use. Your management seems all right, except that I should prefer to change his food daily and clean out the cage every other day—not the reverse.

A LINNET MULE (J. W. Buxton).—(1) I hardly understand this question. The stuff to get a Linnet Mule into show condition is colour food, given during the moult. A non-fed bird stands practically no chance of success. Otherwise the bird only wants the usual seeds and opportunity for regular bathing. (2) Young Mules are often very hard to steady. Change its cage frequently (i.e., from stock cage to show cage, and vice versa), and keep it in a room wherein people are constantly on the move. A journey or two to a few shows also help very much to steady down a bird; likewise—and even more so—one or two hand-washings.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS

should consult Boulton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Dr Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Moult British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A MOULTING MEDICINE (Linnet Novice).—I should think that the "moulting medicine" of which you speak would be saffron (sometimes termed hay saffron, or meadow saffron). You can buy it at the chemists. It is in shreds, of a peculiar red colour, and when a few shreds are steeped in the drinking water (the usual way in which it is given to birds), it gives the water a red tint and a curious "oily" appearance. You will find a recipe for a seed "singing mixture" given in the "Nutshell" booklet. The saffron, by the way, is held to assist the bird in beginning to moult. Sometimes it is given in rum (the recipe has often been printed in CAGE BIRDS). Tincture of saffron is put up in bottles by many of the large seed and food firms.

REDPOLL-GREENFINCH HYBRIDS (J.B.).—Redpoll-Greenfinch Hybrids do not resemble the Redpoll in their chief features—at least, all those I have possessed and seen have not done so. In build they look like small Greenfinches, though traces of the Redpoll are clearly discernible (for instance, in the size and shape of the beak). The colour (when fed) is a warmish brown, with traces of olive, and the edging to the flights and tail is golden. I have never seen one showing the bib and heavy flank lacing found on most good Redpolls. Still, until recently I had never seen a Redpoll-Siskin Mule which carried a bib worthy of the name; my friend Mr. Botting is now showing a beauty, however, with an excellent bib. By the way, have your birds moulted yet, i.e., cast their nestling plumage?

COLOURS OF SHOW CAGES (Cymro).—I said only the other week that there are no standard colours for the show cages of British birds—each man uses whatever tint he considers the most suitable. Hence I hardly see how my opinion can "settle an argument," for the next "expert" you might ask would probably think some of my tints wrong! All of your little lot (Linnet, Redpoll, Chaffinch, Bramble-finch, Goldfinch, and Hawfinch) look fine in show cages enamelled a medium shade of green (but not a green with any blue tint about it). I prefer a dark green, however, for Goldie and Hawfinch, and a medium blue (a little darker than turquoise) suits the Redpoll A1. Some like the latter colour for the Chaffinch; and others like a very dark blue for the Hawfinch. So there you are; take your choice. Crests and Crest-breds are shown in pale blue cages.

DIET FOR GOLDIE MULE (F.F.).—The following makes a good dietary for a Goldfinch-Canary Mule. Give the following stock mixture: Canary 3 parts, teazle 2 parts, summer rape and linseed 1 part each. Reduce the linseed when the moult is over. For variety, give now and again a dessert-spoonful of cracked sunflower seed, a teaspoonful of cracked hemp, the same of a good wild seed mixture, ditto Finch mixture (as sold in packets), and a little coarse oatmeal (not all at once, of course, but separately, the idea being to afford variety in the diet). For green food, ring the changes on chickweed and shepherd's-purse, with occasionally groundsel tops; thistle and hard-heads, plantain stalks, and other "wild foods" are also excellent. When these are unobtainable a sprig of watercress, or small inner leaf of lettuce, makes a good substitute.

AN AILING BULLFINCH (Woodside).—I am afraid your trouble arises more or less from your distaste of handling the Bullies. For instance, some Bullfinches (the majority, in fact) are very dirty when in a cage, so far as their feet are concerned, getting them clogged with dirt. If this dirt is not removed whenever present, by washing with warm water and carbolic soap, using, say, a tooth-brush, hard lumps soon collect about the toes and the ball of the foot, resulting in warty-looking growths, and in bad cases in the loss of claws and even toes, which rot away. Some Bullies are very annoying in this respect, needing constant attention, even though the cage floor is kept scrupulously clean. If the beak gets badly over-grown, too, it must certainly be trimmed down to its normal size and shape. Attention to little details of this kind is expected of the bird-keeper, and they are really simple matters, calling for no special skill. I don't think it necessary to destroy your bird; if you could get someone to attend to his beak and feet he would probably soon be all right again. A little of a good healing ointment (Kerol, for instance) should be applied to the feet after they have been washed and dried. You should occasionally offer a few (12 to 20) cracked white sunflower seeds; and twice a week give a heaped teaspoonful of mixed teazle and summer rape, equal parts of each.

LINNET NOT MOULTING (Harry E.).—If the bird does not moult it will probably not survive long. Remove it from the large flight into a smallish cage (say, a small-sized Finch stock cage). Hang the latter in a warm corner in a heated living room, and keep it covered almost entirely over with a cloth—so that the bird is almost in the dark. In the drinking water daily steep a few shreds of saffron (get this at the chemist's). I think the bird will soon commence to moult, then, when the cloth can gradually be removed and the cage be retired to a cooler spot in the room. It is not pleasant to have to resort to these tactics, but desperate cases oft-times need "desperate" remedies, and your bird, judging from your letter, will succumb unless relieved.

A TRIO (T.W.H.).—(1) A friend of mine near London successfully wintered a Blackcap Warbler in a cage in an outdoor bird-house, although the water in its drinking vessel often froze. He stated that it did not seem to feel the cold much, if at all. A great deal depends upon where you live. For instance, down in Devonshire and the near neighbourhood, I feel sure you might successfully winter Nightingales and Blackcaps and Reed Warblers in a sheltered outdoor aviary (I assume you to be skilled in their management and feeding). But if you live in Cumberland, it becomes a very different matter. I advise you (this answers question two) to keep all three species indoors. I found my 'Gales looked very miserable and cheerless in my own indoor bird-room when the cold weather came along I soon transferred them to warmer quarters. (3) Try one or other of the large firms such as De Vou, Hamlyn, or Hollins (note advert. columns), who all deal in waterfowl and the other birds you name. My own knowledge of these species can be summed up in two words, viz., practically nil.

A QUINTETTE (Avis).—(1) See reply given "Cymro" this week. Siskin and Twite look well in the blue recommended for Lesser Redpoll. Dark green shows up the Mealy Redpoll well. (2) I never heard of gentian being used to spray birds being got up for show. Use boiled water in the spraying bottle, and in each pint of water well shake up (mix) a teaspoonful of the finest quality glycerine—don't exceed this quantity. A spray every day for a week before a show (especially if after a hand-wash) puts a fine gloss on the plumage. If the glycerine is overdone, however, it makes an unsightly mess of the plumage. (3) Five shillings to seven and sixpence would be a very reasonable price for a good newly-caught bird. Hawfinches are frequently advertised; anyway, a "wanted" advert. would no doubt bring you plenty of offers. (4) Evidently you have two good-coloured (jonque) hens. The young Bullies, when in moulting plumage, have no cap, and both cocks and hens are like their mother in colour. But when the youngsters get their caps (after first moult), the cocks also get red breasts, whereas the hens retain the modest colouring peculiar to Bullies of the gentler sex. (5) It doesn't make the slightest difference if dock is given in the branch; I always use it myself in this way.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

ZEBRA FINCHES (Bunty).—I never take the trouble to separate the sexes, but as yours have not mates let them remain as they are till spring, as I do not consider it wise to pair up at this time of year. They certainly would attempt to breed as soon as they had settled down. They are so precocious, that I saw (last week) a young bird (male evidently) whose beak was only just beginning to change colour, dancing about in front of an adult female with a piece of hay in his beak! There is a risk with newly-paired birds at this time of year, though I have found that pairs which have been together all the year, take no hurt if they do attempt nesting. At the same time, the young are not always reared and frequently lacking stamina when they are.

WHAT BIRDS? (Bell).—I gather from the nature of your query that you want as many as you can get within a small space, and I think a dozen small Waxbills would give you as much pleasure as any, and also a good variety of colour. Use twiggy branches for perches, leaving the centre of the cage open, and fixe up several coconut-shell nests, pushing in a little hay as night shelters. You must, if the cage be an all-wire one, stand it where wind or a draught cannot pass through it. Pairs each of Orange-cheek, Grey (Common), and Golden-breasted Waxbills; Common Avadavats, Cordon Bleus, and Silverbills. If you require birds the size of a Norwich Canary, you ought not to put in more than six. If you want to breed, then put in a pair of Zebra Finches only, a couple of the nests, with nesting material, and leave them to take their own course. If you are not acquainted with the above, it would be well if you got our Nutshells, "Avadavats" and "Waxbills," 2½d. each, post free from our manager.

INDOOR FLIGHT (H.Y.J.).—You cannot keep a general series with anything like regular breeding results, and the odd Weavers would be best left out. I must also state that the majority of Foreign Finches do not breed with the same precision as Canaries, though since the adoption of natural garden aviaries results have been more regular. Try 1 pair each—Ruficauda Finches, Long-tailed Grass Finches, and Zebra Finches (you should be able to obtain the 3 pairs for about 60/- the lot). Add one pair each Red Avadavats and Green Avadavats for colour, value 5s. 6d. to 6s. 6d. pair. You could have a pair of Couldian Finches in lieu of one of the other kinds of the trio, but they are difficult to establish and rather costly. Furnish the back and end flight with twiggy branches and hang up behind these, say 3 each, cokernut husks, Hartz travelling cages, and small boxes. Keep the front two feet of long area of flight quite open and without any branches or perches overhanging it.

WAXBILLS IN OUTDOOR CAGES (W. Ashfill).—Repeat your query in full next week, giving size of cage; is it double-boarded? also your county. I shall then be in a position to give you a definite reply. You should procure a cocoa-nut shell nest for each pair of Waxbills, and cocoa-nut husks for the other pairs. The birds will be safe outside for another fortnight at any rate. What is the aspect of the position you intend to keep them in, and for what period of the day does it get the sun when there is any?

AILING GREY PARROT (Anxious One).—Get the following mixture from your chemist: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts. Put half a teaspoonful in the daily supply of drinking water for a week or ten days, though a drink of clear water (chilled) should be offered daily. Continue to use the honey and borax twice daily, it will materially assist the bird, also clean the beak and nostrils daily with a solution of one part Glyco-thymoline and 2 parts water, it will do no harm if the bird swallows a little in the process. Also give a dose of Dinneford's Magnesia, as required, to keep the bowels moving freely (you can easily spot about 10 drops over its soft food). For the present give only a mixture of canary, white millet, and hemp, in equal parts—continue to supply the boiled maize, which must be prepared fresh daily, and you can moisten stale crusts of household bread or pieces of plain bread, with a little sweetened water. Also supply any kind of fruit the bird will take. Report progress about 14 days hence.

GREY PARROT NOT PERCHING (J. G. D.).—The bird appears to have made some progress, but it is a pity you cannot manage to foment, as this would give much relief. You might, as the alternative, get two mop camel hair brushes, and with one of them paint the partially disabled foot with hot water (not hot enough for discomfort), then take off most of the wet with the dry brush, then after squeezing the first brush almost dry, use it to paint the foot with neat whisky this should ultimately give the bird much relief if carried out daily or even twice daily. Fix both your perches, one high, the other low, across corners of the cage, the lower perch to be as thick as your wrist. You must keep the claws cut back to normal length. Much of its awkwardness may leave it as it loses its timidity; avoid hurried movements, noises, or anything calculated to scare it in its vicinity. Continue the bynophosphates for some time, and so long as the voidings are not watery, a weekly dose of Dinneford's magnesia will be beneficial. A weekly spraying even in winter is good for the bird; during severe spells it can be omitted, but there are few weeks it is not possible to choose a genial period about mid-day. Continue the glyco-thymoline till relief is given; it is neglect (before you got the bird) that has caused the blockage. These variegated specimens are called Kings. As the bird regains general fitness, it will reproduce its plumage in a normal manner. Save as qualified above, continue treating as in a previous reply.

YOUNG AMAZON (W. H.).—It is evident the bird was suffering from the effects of importation, and the quicker you get it on to a seed or partial seed diet the better it will be. Re your present treatment. Boiled rice, I should boil this in water and slightly sweeten with sugar or a little honey and not use milk at all. The boiled maize should be prepared fresh daily—boil till soft, but the grains of corn should remain whole, lightly dust the daily supply with flowers of sulphur for a week or ten days, then in lieu of the sulphur soak into the maize 10 to 15 drops of Byno-phosphates. I should give one dose of Dinneford's Magnesia—half-teaspoonful in two table-spoonfuls of water, giving this as the supply of drinking water for the day, repeating the dose after a week's interval. It will be beneficial to give several doses of ammoniated tincture of quinine, with a day's interval between the doses. Also bathe or spray the nostrils daily with a dilute Glyco-thymoline solution, so long as the running continues; it will do the bird no harm if it swallows a little of the above during the operation. Offer the bird a little ripe fruit, and pieces of plain biscuit (if the latter is moistened use only sweetened warm water for the purpose). Keep a tin of the following seed mixture in the cage:—One quart, each canary and white millet, one pint crushed oats, half-a-pint hemp seed—well mix the whole together and add a small pinch of grit (not sand) when filling the hopper. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage and an occasional shelled walnut will be wholesome. As soon as the bird begins to take freely of the seed mixture, which it ultimately will do, lessen the quantity of soft food and gradually discontinue the boiled rice.

AILING WAXBILLS (Woodside).—I am inclined to think the details you supply point to senile decay; but they may happily exist with you for some time yet. Keep them fairly warm, yet where they will get light and air. Twice a week put half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the daily supply of drinking water, and on the other days the same quantity of Byno-phosphates, but you must not use a metal drinker while giving drugs. Add a little canary seed to your dietary. Get, say, seven thumb pots, and pot up some tufts of grass, this will give you one for each day of the week, to put in the cage and so changed, if kept in your window and watered regularly (as required), they will keep fresh during the winter and amuse the birds to pick over, as also will canary seed sown in similar pots. Keep your cage tray covered with sand, and sprinkle over this daily a pinch of small bird grit (not sand). Use twiggy branches in your cage for perches, and let them have a daily bath, the latter should be of the kind to hang over open door of cage, so that the interior of cage is kept dry.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

B. Hatton.—The two perches you send, or very similar notions, have been previously illustrated.

C. Shinleer.—We are unable to give you the information, but have put your letter, as requested, in the correspondence columns.

A. G. Burnham.—Sanitary distemper is quite safe for breeding and stock cages; one of the best possible coverings, in fact. If the gas fire is free from fumes it can certainly be used; as you mention there is a flue pipe fitted we take it there can be no objection raised on this score.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

Members' judging competition, at headquarters, October 1. A good number of members and friends put in an appearance, and were much interested in the proceedings. 22 birds were staged, 13 Nor. and 9 Yorks. A good even lot all round. Mr. J. Hazell judged. Fourteen members took part in the competition, which was very keen. Honours eventually fell to Mr. Cole, who took 1st with 32 points; Mr. Crawford 2, with 31, and Mr. Hodson 3, 27. A vote of thanks to Mr. Hazell brought a most interesting evening to a close.—W. Hodson, Hon. Sec.

Monthly meeting held Oct. 7th, Mr. W. Smith in the chair. A report was given regarding specials competed for over the selected shows, the committee having decided to buy a set of bronzes, value £3 10s., for champion section, to be won three times; also gold medal, value £1, for novice section. Table show at next meeting, classes (1), Clear or mkd. yell. ck., (2) ditto buff ck., (3) hen, any col., (4) Green or Cinn., in both champion and novice sections. Mr. C. Farrer, judge. Mr. A. Moutgomery (Wallsend) gave a washing exhibition, which was very interesting. A few questions were asked and were satisfactorily answered. A hearty vote of thanks was given the lecturer, which brought a very interesting and largely attended meeting to a close.—M. C. Potts, Sec.

LEITH O.S.

Monthly meeting, held in Liberal Club, Hope Street, Oct. 12. The principal business was the final arrangements for show. The President intimated that he had secured a silver cup for the Border Fancy section, the generous donor being Mr. Duncan, jeweller, Bark Street. Dr. Robertson, the medical officer of health, has presented £1 as a special for the best Mule or Hybrid. Agreed to get awards printed this year, and to make the charge for catalognes 3d. This no doubt will be a great benefit to the members and visitors. A good few specials were promised, but we hope to have a much larger number before show day. Classification sheets and entry forms were handed out, and those not present will receive theirs in due course by post. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.—George Brown, Sec.

READING AND DIS. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held October 2, before a good attendance. Five new members—Messrs. Price, Maidenhead; Turner and King, Windsor; Mrs. Bartlett, Henley, and G. Larkcom, Reading—were elected. This makes nine in the last two meetings. The Secretary gave an explanation as to cost of printing, and said he had accepted adverts and specials as last year, which was considered very satisfactory. Decided to include two open selling classes at £1 and 12s. 6d. instead of members' selling and Softbill class. A warm discussion then ensued on the limit for members' classes. It was finally agreed to raise it £1 on all sections, and it now reads: Champion £4, amateur £3, and novice £2. It was felt that this would allow better birds to be shown. The Treasurer (Mr. G. H. Acton) gave a forecast of the expenses likely to be incurred over the show, and pointed out that the members ought to do their best to make it a thorough success. A vote of thanks was passed to him for taking so much trouble. Mr. Dearlove promised a Canary for the amateur class, and Mr. Avis a set of certificates to go with the 4 silver cups. Mr. Pike's cup for most wins with birds bred by exhibitors was finally decided to be for a 10 miles' radius limit. Secretary would be glad if members and others desiring to give specials would send at once before the committee meeting.—W. H. Pyke, Hon. Sec.

WELSH C.B.C.

General meeting, held Heathfield Hotel, Swansea, 12th October, Mr. D. A. S. Longden presiding. New members elected: Messrs. E. Richards (Treorchy), D. Ray (Burry Port), W. Jeremiah (Ebbw Vale), Chas. Price (Kidwelly), W. J. Mock, and W. J. Bancroft (Swansea), A. Maggs and J. Dugmore (Cardiff), and R. E. Griffiths (North Wales). Present:—Messrs. E. Powell, J. E. Jeffreys, W. J. Mock, S. H. George, J. W. Ford, Fred Heal, G. L. Harber, D. A. S. Longden, and A. E. Brown. Nothing could be decided re exchanging medals with Toronto C.B.S., not having received their reply. Decided to pay travelling expenses of committee to and from committee meetings. The £5 we are giving as members' cash specials, at shows held under our patronage, has been decided as follows:—Swansea and Cardiff, 30s. each, to be given 10s. for most points Canary section, 5s. 2nd ditto; 5s. novice section; 10s. British section. Pentrebach and Pontypridd, 10s. each, 5s. most points Canary section; 5s. British. Newport (Mon.), 20s., 5s. most points Canary section, 5s. 2nd ditto, 5s. novice, 5s. British. All entries for above specials will count. Decided to run club show at Swansea, Mr. S. H. George, the well-known Swansea secretary, being elected club show secretary. Judge has to be elected by a ballot; papers will be sent every paid-up member in the course of a few days. Date, classification, and other arrangements are left entirely to Mr. George and his committee. Club medals this season will all be competed for at club show as follows:—1 for most points champion Canary section; 1 ditto novice; 1 ditto champion British; 1 ditto Novice. All entries will count, and not the three highest, as in previous years. The only medals in addition to above four are those which will be given to the cup winners. We have this season enrolled 15 new members, and should like to take the opportunity of advising all fanciers to join the club without delay, to enable them to compete for cash specials at Newport, Nov. 7th. Patronage this season is given: Mumbles, Oct. 24th; Swansea, Nov. 13th and 14th; Cardiff, Nov. 20th and 21st; Newport, Nov. 6th and 7th; Pentrebach, Nov. 28th; Pontypridd, December 4th. All these societies are well managed, and I trust every member will do his best to support them.—A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec. (66, Clare Street, Merthyr Tydfil).

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else, 9d.

Roller Canaries in Australia.

Sir,—I would like to know if there are any breeders of high-class Roller Canaries in Australia, or shall I have to take some with me, in order to make a start when I get out there. Perhaps some kind reader may be able to tell me.

C. Shindler.

Keeping Canaries Warm in the the Winter.

Sir,—It may interest some of your readers to know how I keep my Canaries warm during the winter in my outdoor aviary. I tie a quantity of hay up into the form of a bundle, and suspend this from the top of the aviary. The birds sleep in the bundle quite snug and warm.

The Cleansing of Closed-top Glass Water Fountains.

Sir,—In your issue of September 14th I read about cutting off the top of glass "blue-top" fountains to facilitate the cleansing of them, but instead of so damaging them I can clean them with small trouble. I take a strip of rag about 1in. x 2in. and push it in at the bottom. Then I put in a small quantity of dry soap powder, fill up with water and shake well. I find the fountains very clean when the soapy water has been poured out and they have been well swilled with clean water—the rag comes out with the water.

Canaries and Mules In the Same Clutch of Eggs.

Sir,—In reply to your correspondent, Mr. G. Mossop, I have had the same experience as that he mentions, only with a Goldfinch and Canary, instead of a Redpoll. I put up the Goldfinch with a hen Canary, and then, not being sure if the Goldie was in breeding condition, one morning I let a cock Canary into the cage. But this Master Goldie did not like, and he and the Canary fought so much that I removed the Canary again. The hen had a clutch of five eggs, of which four hatched, three Mules and one Canary. Two of the Mules died at a week old, but I still have the other Mule and the Canary, both of which are cocks, and now singing. The Mule is a dark one, with a deep yellow blaze and the Canary is marked on head and both wings. I left the Goldie with the Canary, and he helped to feed the young ones. I have seven Mules from him, three from a later nest, with the same Canary, and three with another Canary; one is a light variegated one, marked on head and wings.

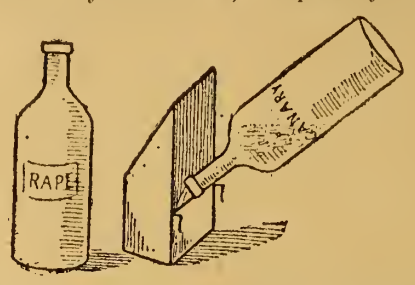
The Type of Present-day Norwich Plainheads.

Sir,—I just happened to be glancing through the correspondence in your issue of Sept. 28th, when I saw "Sub Rosa's" remarks about a meeting held in Norwich a short time back. "Sub Rosa" seems to be trying to raise Mr. Payne in the estimation of the Fancy. One is almost led to believe that Mr. Payne and "Sub Rosa" are identical, or, at least, that Mr. Payne is "Sub Rosa's" tutor. I can assure "Sub Rosa" that Mr. Payne had very little to say at that meeting, he being the last one to speak. There was very little room left for him to say anything, except to repeat what had already been said. Now, Sir, "Sub Rosa" hints that Norwich judges are going to judge for mere size alone, without considering the defects that usually accompany size, i.e., harsh feather, overhanging eyebrows, long hinge tail and narrow chest, when he knows full well that all this arose through a certain judge doing this very thing. Why, only just recently I have seen birds winning that had bad wings, and a twist on the throat running quite down the breast, whilst others, almost perfection, were taking a back seat; and this was not done by Norwich judges either. I would like to say that I read Mr. E. Barron's, (of Glasgow), article on the Ideal Norwich Plainhead (in your issue of August 10th, 1912) to that meeting, which was highly appreciated; also the letter in your issue of August 3rd, 1912, by "Cornishman," giving the scale of points of the S.N.P.C., viz., head 15, neck 10, back 10, chest 15, wings 10, tail 5, legs and feet 5, quality 15, colour 15; total 100. He also says that if birds were judged by the points, we should not see so many different styles of birds with the first prize card on. I wish to say that I quite agree with "Cornishman," and I would like to tell "Sub Rosa," as I told fanciers at that meeting, that if birds were judged by these points, it would be impossible for a bird that had nothing but size and colour, or head and neck, to recommend it to beat even a small typical Norwich. I also told the fanciers at that meeting that I was not an advocate for a length limit, and for this reason: Some birds, although under 6½ins., are not of the right type or quality, and I myself should not like to have to place a bird of this description in front of a good one a trifle longer. At the same time, if we have two birds on the show bench of equal substance, and equal in all other points, the shortest bird should win; therefore they must be the birds to breed for.

A. Woollard.



Use of Marking Rings Results in Bad Legs.

Sir,—I am very much obliged to you for answering my question, re Yorkshire hen. I had a fancier call on me, and he told me the trouble, the swelling and bleeding on her foot and leg, were caused by putting a ring on her leg, which I did to know one hen from another. He said he had lost birds the same way, pecking their legs trying to get the rings off. So I took off this ring. His remedy was to bathe the leg and foot in Condy's fluid and warm water, and I find this is putting her all right. I wish "Cage Birds" every success.

Bottles Useful in the Bird-room.

Sir,—I herewith send you a sketch of what I call a useful seed utensil, although it is only an ordinary bottle. Still, it is perfectly dust and vermin proof, whilst it very easily fills any kind of hopper, without spilling any seed over the room.

G. Warrilow.

A Society for Bishop Auckland.

Sir,—Cage bird fanciers will be pleased to know that Bishop Auckland fanciers intend coming to the front once again. A very enthusiastic meeting was held last Thursday night, Oct. 10, amongst a few fanciers, with the result they formed a Cage Bird Society, with that old bird fancier, R. Elliot as hon. sec. I hear there's quite a rush for membership. "Won't they make things hum once they get started."

J. T. Button.

Judging for Second-best Bird.

A Possible Injustice.

Sir,—I should like to call attention to a very common practice on the part of judges when selecting the runner-up to best bird in show or section, as the case may be. Many, indeed, I may say the majority, ignore the second prize bird in that class which contained the champion. That it should be included with the other first prize birds is my opinion. The absurdity of debarring it from competing for runner-up to champion becomes very apparent when, as sometimes happens, it has given the latter a close race for that position. After witnessing a very glaring instance of this happening, I ventured to ask the judge why he did not table it in judging for the runner up, as the latter honour included a handsome special. He ridiculed the idea, on the grounds that the runner up must be the second best first prize bird in show or section. This despite his admission that the second prize bird was as near as nothing to beating the champion, seems rather paradoxical. I should like to have the opinion of others on the point, as I have never seen it threshed out.

The Conveyance of Live Birds at Owner's Risk.

Sir,—I beg to thank your correspondents for replying to my query, re loss of birds in transit. After reading Mr. Hey's letter I made inquiries at the railway station and found that the birds were consigned in the usual way, i.e., 50 per cent. excess charged. But the first time I made inquiries I was led to believe the birds were at owner's risk, and that the package having arrived safe, and no sign of it having been tampered with, I had no claim. However, I put in a claim a fortnight ago, but have had no reply as yet.

Does Hemp-seed Ruin Canaries?

Sir,—Just a line on the discussion re hemp seed. I use a lot, and I always give some in a separate egg-drawer when I have young birds in the nest. I find it is best not to crush it. I have had birds that would not eat egg-food, but which have reared their young on hemp seed. It is a good thing for birds in cold rooms, especially in winter. But I quite agree with your correspondent, who says it must be good. I have bought it and found it mildewed, dirty, etc. It is the same with hemp as with other seeds, you want it sound and good. Be careful in this, and you need not be afraid of using even hemp.

The Yorkshire C. and C.B.S. of Ireland's Forthcoming Show.

Sir,—In reply to "Early Closing's" letter, which appeared in last week's issue, may I inform him that the above society's show will take place on Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 next, with a large number of specials to be competed for, which will show that we are far from being defunct. As for your correspondent's signature, I don't think much of it, as there is nothing manly about anyone writing above such a nom de plume. I did not intend to answer any further letter without the person's name under it, but I don't want his letter to mislead others.

How Can We Make Our Shows Pay?

Sir,—I wrote on the above subject in July last and was disappointed to find that it was of such little interest to show secretaries and officials, seeing that there was no reply. I quite expected some response on such an important matter. However, in your issues of Sept. 14th and Oct. 12th, I read with pleasure letters from "Ex Show-Manager" on the same subject, and agree with most of his remarks thereon. In my last letter, I said that it was doubtful if a show benefits by having the patronage of specialist clubs. I think the time has come when show committees should make their own terms when accepting such patronages. These clubs demand so many classes without any risk of loss to themselves, but if the larger societies in each district combined to resist such demands, it would be soon put a stop to. Four classes for each variety are ample, and if the clubs want more they should be prepared to guarantee the extra classes. I agree that the novice should be better catered for. With respect to the printer's bill (a very serious matter) the schedule must be cut down to the very lowest; and, as I said in my last letter, the specialist clubs should print their conditions, and issue them to their members, for they are of no interest to others. I agree with "Ex S.M." that it would be a good thing to advertise the classification in the Fancy Press, and save cost of schedules, postages, ets. But you must get every society to do so. It would be useless for a show here and there to do it. I know one show which did so last year without success. There are so many fanciers so pettish, that unless they receive a schedule without asking for it, they will not show. But what a boon to shows if we had no schedules to print. And there is the question of catalogues. Can we not do without them? Very few shows make them pay. We could rely more on the show reports in Cage Birds, which are always excellent, and fanciers not attending the show, and wishing to know how their exhibits have fared at the hands of the judge, could be notified by post, if they paid postage, or perhaps a small fee. A board showing the names of exhibitors in each class, with awards could be placed in a prominent position in the hall. "Ex S.-M." evidently has experience of shirkers who do little, but say much; every society has them. I hope this question of "How we can make our shows pay" will not be allowed to drop here, but that it will be discussed in society meetings, and the views of more experienced fanciers given in your valuable columns.

Roller Canaries at Portsmouth C.B.S. Show.

Sir,—Good English-bred Rollers are seldom if ever heard in Portsmouth, so to give bird-lovers a treat, and encourage the breeding of our little favourites, the Portsmouth C.B.S. give two classes for them at their show, Nov. 5-6. The B.R.C.C. have also given their patronage, and as I have promised to do all I can to make the contest a success, will all Roller fanciers do me a kindness and send along a few good birds? Judge, Mr. Roehl (London). All exhibits will be staged in a separate room. See advt. of the show.

Some Absurdities of Bird Protection Orders.

Sir,—I quite understand that your contributor's letter was intended not as a protest against the incompleteness of the Surrey County Council's Bird Protection list, but rather as an indictment against its authors on the grounds of ignorance and inconsistency. But it was, and remains, my contention that they did not display these faults in any marked degree, but rather deserve commendation for their sense and discrimination. I still fail to detect any special proof of ignorance in the retention—probably for convenience sake—of the names of summer migrants in the list of species accorded winter protection, and in the omission from it the Feldfare and Redwing which, in some districts of England at any rate, are shot as food by the poorer farmers. The statement that the damage done by the birds during the spring and summer months far outweighs that caused by them in the autumn and winter, is one which I cannot accept without reservation. I would suggest that in the event of any fresh legislation being enacted in the interests of our wild birds, it would not be a work of insuperable difficulty for a person possessing a sound practical knowledge of the habits of birds, combined with a readiness to accord fair treatment to the agriculturist and the true sportsman (as distinct from the collector or wholesale murderer) to decide what species are harmful, and consequently deserving of limited protection, or none at all, and what is a suitable close season for wildfowl. Some powers of local legislation should, however, be left with the counties, for certain birds may be harmful in one district and beneficial in another—there is, for instance, no more useful neighbour than the Starling in a purely pastoral country, and no more unmitigated plague in a fruit-growing one. Lastly, if your contributor had read the concluding portion of my letter more carefully, he would see that it is the killing of birds which I should like to see prohibited throughout the year. By all means let the birdcatcher continue to practice his craft—out of the breeding season—provided he does so in a humane manner, and in a place where he knows he is not acting contrary to the wishes of the local proprietor or occupier of the land.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

The list of patrons and vice-presidents will be found on page 805 of our last issue.

NOTES BY THE SECRETARY.

As was only to be anticipated, the fining of a London bird-dealer for keeping some of his stock in dirty cages and insufficiently provided with food and water, has resulted in a chorus of hysterics denouncing in its entirety the keeping of birds in captivity.

Chief among the diatribes is the one printed in the London "Star," which paper fairly excels itself in its exaggerations. It is only fair to that paper to say that its statements purport to be the expression of opinion of a Mrs. F. Lemon, who is accredited with being the secretary of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. I was under the impression that this post was held by Miss Gardiner, but we will let that pass.

Mrs. Lemon is made to say, among other things, that "60 per cent. of the birds die in the first few days after capture." "The whole business reeks of torture." "I (Mrs. Lemon) cannot understand why the trade in wild birds should not be entirely suppressed." "One in six survives to find a purchaser." "An every day form of torture consists in keeping the wretched creatures within a few inches of a glaring light. Birds are more saleable blind—they sing better. So there is money in this hideous detail of the torture craft." "The two-penny ones are sold for public-house Sunday shoots." And the "Star" professes to believe it all, and publishes the balderdash under the heading "A Black Traffic."

Of course, most of the remarks attributed to Mrs. Lemon are simply a re-hash of the statements published some time since in a pamphlet entitled "The other side of the Bars," and which I dealt with at the time, but that a lay newspaper can be prevailed upon to re-publish them, shows to what lengths the fanatics are prepared to go in the dissemination of their wicked accusations against a trade which has no greater a proportion of undesirables amongst those who live by it than could be found among any other collection of persons, and against a hobby which is pursued with intelligence and kindness by hundreds of thousands of working men throughout our country, and in which people of every degree find a delight. And this is the outcome of the fining of one bird dealer!

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is to sign the coupon herewith, get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

At meeting held in Masonic Hall, September 25, Mr. Bowman, of Glasgow, delivered his lecture on "Wild Seeds" to a large number of fanciers, which was very interesting, and appreciated by all, as shown by the hearty cheers. Also on 9th October, Mr. Barron, of Glasgow, delivered a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead before a crowded hall, illustrating his lecture with a team of birds possessing both good and defective points. Mr. Barron stated that this was his first lectnre, but the points which he brought forward showed him to be no novice.—H. B. Young, Sec.

CODNOR PK. & EASTWOOD C.B.S.

Adjourned general meeting held Queen's Head, Riddings, Oct. 12, when a good attendance of members turned out. We are nearing our open show, and have a grand lot of specials. Some of them are not stated in schedule, as the schedule was in the printer's hands before some specials were known. Members who have not paid their subscriptions are requested to do so on or before Nov. 9, or they will not be allowed to show as members at the open show. There is a 10s. cash special for the best self green shown by a member, the Taylor's Challenge Cup for most points, and four other good specials for the runner-up, besides numerous other specials. Those wishing to join the society can do so up to Nov. 9, sub. 2s. 6d.—J. H. Mitchell, Hon. Sec., South Street, Greenhill Lane, Alfreton.

LOANHEAD.

The sixth annual show was held Oct. 12. The entries showed an increase over last year, the Norwich section being particularly well filled. The Society is making rapid strides in this popular variety. Border Fancy were a shade down in numbers, although the quality was well sustained, especially in yellow cocks and hens, the winners in these classes being birds of grand type and quality. The Cup and B.F.C.C. medal were won by that popular official, Mr. W. B. Smart, the energetic secretary, with his yellow cock, the runner-up being Mr. Jas. Hamilton's yellow hen. The Scotch Fancy section contained some real toppers. The President, Mr. Jardine, secured this cup with a yellow pied hen, third in her class at the Edinburgh Society. The runner-up was a buff cock belonging to Mr. Dunn, of Portobello. The Masonic Hall, where the show was held, is well lighted and free from draughts, and well adapted for such a purpose. In the afternoon Ex-Provost and Mrs. Kerr presented the cups and medals to the respective winners. The judges were: Scotch Fancy, Norwich, etc., Mr. Wm. McAdam, Lasswade; Borders, Mr. Thomas Spence, Dunbeath. The Secretary, Mr. W. B. Smart, is a very capable and painstaking official, and was ably supported by a good working committee. The show was well patronised during the afternoon.

SELKIRKSHIRE.

The 24th annual exhibition, held in the Union Hall, October 12. The birds were staged along two sides of the hall, and seemed to be very comfortable. The entry was a good one, showing, an increase on last year. Quality was first-class, seeing the season is only starting. Borders here have ever been, and are yet, the magnet that draws the exhibitors from long distances. Selkirk has always been famed for the even marks., and this year is no exception, an even ben shown by Mr. John Watson winning the B.F.C.C. medal. She is a gem of the first water, being perfect in eye markings, something very difficult to procure. The Clears contained many notable birds of high merit, particularly the winner of the Clear Buff hen class, shown by Mr. T. Halliday. There was shown for exhibition only, a mottled Bullfinch. This bird was caught in mature plumage, during the first moult. Its head and breast became mottled with a black and red feather alternately. Mr. Jas. Robertson, the secretary had everything well in hand, every reasonable request being attended to by him at once, and was ably assisted by Mr. Gill and a host of hard-working committee members, while the stewards were all that one could wish for. Mr. J. Patterson, Chirnside, made the awards, and they were well received.

The Critique.

BORD., CL. OR TKD. YELL. CK. (25): 1, H. Bennet, foul cap, extra sound in col., quality and condition, splendidly laid on wings, nicely rounded head and back; 2, G. Plymouth's Great 53rd Show Magnificent Display of the Famous West-Country Plainheads: The Last Word in Excellence of Management: Exhibitors Liberally Treated and Liberally Respond.

It is usual to expect a good show of birds at Plymouth, and this year's 53rd annual exhibition of the W.C.O.S., held October 15th and 16th, did not belie the reputation of the premier society in the West of England. Staged on the society's own benching, in one of the best halls in England, the birds made a grand show, the quality generally being equal to anything seen for a long time in the West. Yorkshires mustered 197, but the committee very much regret that they had to cancel most of the novice section owing to insufficient support. Are the novices afraid to show out of London? Norwich, as usual in Plymouth, were the feature of the show, grand feathered birds being strongly in evidence, whilst size is certainly improving in this part of the country. Mr. Rowden's clear buff, which wins Silk cup for best Norwich, is fit to win anywhere. Crests, as a whole, may have been better in quality at Plymouth on previous occasions, but still they were a collection that any show might be proud of. Mules and British constituted a record for the society in point of numbers, a class of 23 Goldfinches and Bullfinches being staged, whilst the lark Mule class was also a strong one. The society are to be congratulated on their method of arranging prize money, the new departure of giving 1s. 6d. for the finding great favour amongst exhibitors.

As usual, the management left nothing to be desired, judging starting at 8 a.m. and finishing at 2.30 p.m., catalogues with printed awards in margin being on sale at 3 o'clock, and before 6 p.m. the whole of prize-money and special prize-money was either in the hands of exhibitors attending the show or in the post to reach prize-winners on Wednesday morning. The old firm of Pope and Dyer, the secretary and assist.-secretary, were again at the helm, and the committee responsible for the management were Messrs. C. Hoar, C. Garland, F. G. Snell, W. W. Saule, C. Jewell, E. Lott, G. Pridham, G. Haskell, C. Large, F. Wills, J. Bavage, W. Spillman, H. Coath. They were ably assisted by a willing staff of stewards, everything going off in an easy and smooth manner. Prominent amongst those who were noticed assisting were Mr. Chas. Dart (chairman), Messrs. Jewell, Large, Yates, and Bavage, Mr. Heath judged Yorks., Crests, Border, and Selling classes, Mr. Robson taking the remainder.

The members' challenge cups were secured by Messrs. W. Collings (Norwich), T. H. Boundy (Yorks.), F. G. Bale (Crest), W. A. Dyer (A.O.V. Can.), F. A. D. Wills (Mules), and F. Collins (Brit.).

EXETER AND DEVON.

The Exeter and Devon Society held their 23rd annual show in the Lower Market, Exeter, October 4th. The cage birds were placed in a corner free from draughts, and staged in a very efficient manner. The entries, which numbered 220, were rather more numerous than at the last show, and the quality throughout was excellent. Yorkshires were the strongest section, Norwich also showing up well. Some real good dark mules were exhibited. Mr. Cornish, as usual, proved himself an able and willing Hon. Sec., and the stewards of the section, Messrs. B. Bealey, P. Stiling, and F. Smith laboured effectively to make the cage bird part of the show worthy of the good reputation Exeter has always held. Mr. J. Lashbrook, of Sidmouth, judged, and his awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

DERBY'S 53rd SHOW.

A Good One in Every Respect.

Fifty-third annual show, Oct. 11 and 12, in the Lecture Room adjoining the Albert Hall, when a grand collection of birds was staged. The entry numbered about 350. Fanciers from all parts of the country were represented, with the result that the exhibition was a good one in every respect. An entry such as this was very gratifying to the hard-working members of the Derby Club, for at the early shows, such as this, a great many birds are not ready for the fray, and we have had a wet and bad season. Not only was there a fair entry, but the quality of the exhibits was magnificent, especially among the Norwich. This section contained some fine specimens, size and type being well maintained throughout. In the novice section competition was very keen. In the Yorks. classes competition was keener still, for some typical examples of the slim and racy ones were staged. The Crests, Mules and Hybrids, and the British classes also included some good specimens, though the show was rather early for some of the Britishers. The Cornish Chough and Magpie were much admired. The President of the Society is Mr. F. H. Rainsford, whilst among the vice-presidents are Ald. T. Fletcher, Councillors J. Newton, J. Hill and W. Finch, Messrs. J. Bosson, G. Colledge, J. H. Roe, W. Stevenson, J. G. Fox, R. Rhodes, and T. B. Griffiths. The committee of Management consists of Messrs. J. H. Sharman (chairman), W. H. Eley (vice-chair), J. Watts (treasurer), and J. Thomas, J. Pegg, J. H. Drakeley, E. C. Johnson, B. Ramm, W. Stevens, J. Sharam, J. Baker, J. Pass, G. York, J. Cockeram, F. Thompson, A. Hicklin, and many others, and one and all worked hard and well. The secretaries, Messrs. G. H. Wharam and H. T. G. Bamsey, were responsible for the arrangements, and the excellent and smooth-working result testified to their abilities as holders of their responsible posts. The judges were Mr. J. H. Roe, and Mr. G. Colledge (Derby), the latter taking Crests and selling, and Mr. Roe the rest.

CLAPHAM.

It was a case of "all smiles" with the officials, those good old fanciers, Mr. W. H. Vale (chairman) and H. Yeoman (vice-chair) being particularly pleased at the magnificent manner in which exhibitors had supported the society. The sales, too, were splendid, close on £50 being taken, while the gate receipts were excellent. Three of the Norwich went for £6, £5 10s. and £5 respectively, the latter having only a "highly commended" card on its cage. First appearances on the show bench were the Porphyry-crowned Lorikeet, a pair of Purple Sugar-birds (Mr. Maxwell), the Bee-eater and Chilian Siskiu (Mr. A. Ezra).

Our reporter's notes upon the Hybrid section unfortunately went astray and so could not be given in our last issue. The classes were only moderately filled (we heard that many birds are backward in the moult) and nothing new was on view, though the exhibits were as interesting as ever. Mr. J. Robson judged.

The Hybrid Section.

LIGHT CAN. MULE (10): 1, Lawrence, head tkd. buff Goldie, fair size, bonny bird for quality and condition, shapely, stylish, nice colour, but we thought very hard pressed by 2, Martin and Archer, almost cl. Greenie (grizzled on each cheek), extra good in size and bold in build, rare quality, beautiful condition; 3, Botting, pretty lightly mkd. buff Goldie, nice size, shape and style, excellent colour, will improve yet; 4, Locke, good, big, unev. mkd. yell. Goldie; vhc, Gunnell; hc, Lamb; c, Buckingham. DARK GOLD or LINNET (7): 1, Pope, the well-known "Brown Prince," a grand Linnet Mule, rare size, magnificent chest and head, very sound, rich col., romps home, will want some stopping; 2, Rees, very nice buff Goldie, excellent size and shape, good face, not hot enough in colour; 3, Brownlie, Linnet, also a very decent specimen of its kind; 4, Lawrence, cinn.-col. Linnet, pretty example, could have gone up a step; vhc, Norris; hc, Fairman; wrong class, Wilkins. A.O.V. DARK CAN. (13): 1, Buckingham, the noted Redpoll Mule, Palace, etc., winner, in grand form once again, very fine specimen; 2, Casemore, rattling big well-built Greenie, fine head and chest, exceptionally good and sound colour; 3, c, Miss Bousfield, really good Twite, hot, level colour, well built and stylish, nicely marked; 4, Gibb, nice Siskin, good in shape and carriage, prettily marked, excellent col.; vhc, Pearce; hc, Shipton. BULLIE HYB. (4): 1, Walsh, one of the best coloured Can.-Bullies we have seen, in marvellous condition, sleek and shiny as one's Sunday topper, but unfortunately very small, which seemed to us to put it behind the 2nd, a Redpoll-Bullie (Lamb), of really fine size, shape, colour, and markings, which, however, at present carries its secondary wing flights packed badly; 3rd a lovely Linnet-Bullie, was also staged by Mr. Lamb and will be a beauty when up in colour and bloom, rare size and shape; 4, Howick, buff Can.-Bullie, fine size, well built, inclined to be unsteady. A.V. HYB. (8): 1, Martin and Archer, Chaffinch-Greenfinch, the sensation of last season, looking fit and well, though not fully up in bloom, has apparently not been fed and so seems a little dull in colour; 2, Lamb, well-known Goldie-Redpoll, splendid little fellow, rare good markings, coming a fine colour; 3, Botting, one of the best marked Siskin-Redpolls we have seen, shows parentage very plainly, excellent size and shape; 4, Wren, well built Goldie-Greenie, nice condition but short of colour, excellent shape and markings; vhc, Mrs. Easterling; c, Marley.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1. By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Beswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/-, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1½.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardhills," and Part 2: "Softhills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 15 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet—all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Published in 8 Monthly Parts at 6d. each, post free 7d. Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Normar. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a modern Hybrid. The practical and comprehensive work for which all Hybrid breeders have been waiting.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

Morpeth's Magnificent Record

ENTERPRISE REWARDED.

A one-day fixture that will take some beating: Norwich average 24 per class; the Borders 28!

A record entry rewarded the efforts of this enterprising society at the annual show, held October 12 in the Town Hall, and we have no hesitation in saying that as a one-day fixture this show will take some beating. Entries totalled about 630, a matter of about 30 over last year's record. In such a hotbed of Canarydom it was only to be expected that the exhibits would be of the finest quality, and herein we were not disappointed, every section containing birds of superlative merit, true to type and teeming with quality. Norwich made a beautiful display, the nine classes allocated to them bringing forth the grand total of 212, an average of nearly 24 per class, the unflighted hen class accounting for 34, the winner here being a magnificent wing-marked yellow, exhibited by Mr. G. Harland. The Novice Norwich class was another stormer in point of numbers, 36 birds being staged, many of them being marvellously true to type, and brimful of colour and quality, and quite fit to hold their own in open competition. Borders were also grandly represented, 113 in four classes, an average of over 28 per class, the majority of them being birds of outstanding colour and quality, clothed with feather of the finest texture. Cinnamons and Yorks., although not so strong in numbers, made a capital display, and the collection of British and Foreign birds and Hybrids, left nothing to be desired, the pick of these sections being a magnificent clear Goldie Canary Mule, a real stormer, and without a doubt one of the best out. We heartily congratulate the owner, Mr. J. Maddison, on possessing such a specimen.

A splendid body of fanciers control the affairs of this society, headed by the President, Mr. George Renwick, with Messrs. E. B. Atkinson, J. B. Creighton, A. G. Marshall, and Mrs. Robson, as Vice-Presidents. The Chairman of the society is that well-known and esteemed fancier, Mr. H. Seely, and he is ably backed up by a grand committee composed of such sterling fanciers as Messrs. Summers, G. Seely, Rowell, Neal, Griffiths, Clark, Rigg, and Richardson. The record of the genial Secretary, Mr. E. Cowling, speaks for itself, and this additional success only enhances the great reputation he possesses as an organiser of cage bird shows. We are glad to think that the efforts of this well known fancier, on behalf of his society, are rewarded each succeeding year by an increased entry, which in itself speaks volumes for the splendid manner in which he gets through his secretarial duties. May he always go one better. Mr. T. Mitford, the assistant secretary, also deserves a word of praise, and his assistance in the secretarial duties cannot be over estimated. The day was rather dull, but this did not deter a great number of fanciers from visiting the show, the hall during the afternoon and evening being simply packed, and we have no doubt that the gate receipts will have gladdened the hearts of those in authority. The judges were Mr. H. W. Battye and Mr. A. Brown.

Mr. Battye's Classes.

A RECORD SHOW.

Best collection of Yorkshires at a Northern fixture. Splendid management rewarded by good entry in all sections.

The third annual show of the Lochgelly C.B.S., held October 12th, proved a record success, no less than 956 entries being forward, every class of exhibition birds being represented. Scotch Fancies headed the programme, and a sweet collection was drawn together, the birds all round being of a very level stamp, and competition was keen in a few of the classes. Mr. Maxwell won cup for best with a good buff hen, well put down. Mr. J. Black (Arbroath) judged these classes, and his awards were well received. Borders followed, and these were well forward, some good ones being staged. Sp. for best went to a grand yell. cock shown by Mr. Peters, a well-known Fifeshire breeder, and it was a credit to him and a popular win. Mr. J. Arnott judged, and his awards were well received, no grumbling being heard. Yorks. were a feature of the show, such a collection never having been drawn to a Northern show. All the classes were keenly contested, and this variety seems to be making a stand in Scotland, judging from the splendid response that exhibitors gave to the selection of Mr. J. Ford as judge; this gentleman carefully handled the exhibits, and his awards left little to be desired. The cup for best in section was secured by a splendid yell., well staged by Mr. Heggie. Crests and C.B.s were a fine lot, level competition in the various classes being very noticeable. However, the executive of this society seem to have foreshadowed the entry, and the experienced judge, Mr. J. McLay, proved in every case equal to the occasion, as his awards were exceedingly well received. The cup for best was secured by a lovely Crested cock, an old warrior, exceedingly well staged by Mr. Howie, and the award was a popular one. Norwich Plainheads were a grand collection, some extra good specimens being staged, the unflighted and non-fed classes, however, being the best, and here was found the cup winner, a grand buff hen, well put down by the worthy show secretary, Mr. Grewar. Special comment must be made of the grand winning non-fed cock shown by Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Smeaton judged these classes, and his awards were well received.

The North is a stronghold for Mules and British, but the collection brought together to-day was a surprise. What a show! Quantity and quality, and some shining stars among them. Mules were extra good, some clinkers being staged. The cup for best in section went to a grand cl. Goldfinch Canary, exquisitely staged by Mr. Jamieson—a real beauty, well deserving the honour. Hardbills were a grand lot, the tip-top Bramble, so delightfully shown by Mr. Sykes, receiving the unstinted admiration of all bird-lovers. Softbills were good, the team forwarded by Mr. Taylor being classic. We noticed a few rather high-coloured birds among the Hardbills, and there were a few comments on same among some of the fanciers. Mr. J. F. Dewar, of Edinburgh, judged these classes right well, as after his heavy day's work very few adverse comments were to be heard. The society is flourishing, and the reason is easily found, for the officials are of the best, hard working and obliging, headed by their genial chairman, Mr. Dow, and backed up by an enthusiastic committee, and all under the personal supervision of their worthy secretary, Mr. W. Grewar, and his right-hand assistant, Mr. Kelly. Everything went off as smooth as a marriage bell, the exhibits and public being carefully catered for. The hall is well situated for a show, but a shade on the dark side. The show was well patronised, and we hope to hear of a good balance.

The Scotch and Border Fancies.

SCOTCH FANCIES—CL. OR FOUL YELL. LEEDS PUTS UP A NEW RECORD.

NOVICE CLASS OF 55!

Magnificent all-round display of Canaries; Hen in Novice £3 3s. Limit Class Fetches £9!

The 22nd annual show of the Leeds C.B.S. was held in the Salem Lecture Hall, Oct. 12. We are pleased to say that there was a record entry of upwards of 650 birds, a great increase on previous shows. Messrs. W. A. Wilson and J. P. Moir make excellent secretaries and show managers. They had everything in systematic working order. Both are hard workers and obliging, and are backed up by a good working committee, comprising Mr. C. E. Hall (chairman), Mr. H. J. Mennard (vice-chair); Messrs. J. Chambers, A. G. Rhodes, W. Johnson, J. Owen, F. Farrar, W. H. Norton, W. Bristow, H. Smith, J. R. Beckwith and T. Baldwinson. The Salem Hall is an ideal place for a show, being large, splendidly ventilated, and well lighted. Malcolm Kitchen, Esq., opened the exhibition, and made a happy speech. After the show was closed, all birds were quickly despatched homeward. The fixture proved a great success in every way, and a great treat to the many bird-lovers present. Mr. W. Mundell judged Yorks. and Mr. J. H. Roe Nor., Brit., etc. Their awards seemed to give general satisfaction, and we heard very few complaints.

The Yorkshires were a very fine lot, two hundred and forty-nine facing the judge. In the novice open (limit £3 3s), unflighted class, 55 birds were entered, and some rare good exhibits had to be left cardless. Many birds were claimed.

Special winners:—Ramsden's, won by H. J. Mennard; Sandiford's, T. H. Mason; Foreign Bird Club special, W. H. Pickles (with a splendid Blue Budgerigar). The Malcolm Kitchen medal, G. Fletcher; the president's medal, H. S. Davies.

Gratifying Success at Norwich.

Canary City's Consummate Conducting of Canary Carnivals Crams Corn-hall with Cages.

In spite of the disaster that overtook the Canary City during the past month, the men of Norwich managed by hard work and perseverance to get together a record gathering of cage birds at the annual show of the Norwich Alliance. All England C.B.A., held in the Corn Hall, Oct. 10 and 11. The thousand odd birds looked well in the fine building, being neatly staged so as to allow plenty of room for visitors to inspect the exhibits without inconvenience. The chubby Norwich Canaries were, of course, the most numerous in this fine collection, and although we have recently heard a good deal about the six and a half limit, big ones were not so much in evidence as birds of the correct Norwich type. In fact, type appeared to be the keynote of the snatches of conversation heard from time to time during the show. Although type was much in evidence, size was by no means lacking, and here and there one could find birds of exceptional size; and the judge, Mr. Vardy, had to be very careful in awarding the special given for the best bird under six and a half inches. This was secured by Mr. W. Morris, of Stamford Hill, with a lovely buff unflighted cock. Throughout the show Mr. Morris did extremely well. That old fancier Mr. E. J. Rippon, of Chelmsford, pressed him severely in some of the classes with birds of wonderful type. Other well-known exhibitors in this section were Messrs. Howard, More, Irons, Harper, Jee Thomas, Payne, Ebbage, etc.

One expects in a big show of this kind to see the champions stand out clearly from the amateurs, but at Norwich there is not that marked difference in the two sections; in fact, here and there one could find birds that fairly held their own when compared with the old stagers' best. Notable amongst such was a lovely buff hen shown by Messrs. Keymer Bros., of Gorleston, acknowledged by the knowing ones as the best hen in the show. Needless to say she was quickly claimed at a rather low figure. Crests and Crestbreds were an excellent lot, and it did one's eyesight good to see such a delightful array of yellows. Mr. Carlton, of Norwich, led off with a beauty of good size, neat thick crest, of good formation. Messrs. Sadd, Clapham, Horsely, and others, showed good specimens. Compared with our London shows, Hybrids and British were only fairly represented. Some good birds were, however, undoubtedly staged, particularly in the class provided for Song Thrushes, but we missed the classes for Linnets, Green Birds, Chaffinches, etc., to which we have now become accustomed, but, of conrse, Canaries "fill the bill," and, judging by the huge classes in the amateur section, are likely to do so for some time to come.

An Auspicious Opening Ceremony.

There was a fine attendance at the opening ceremony, performed by Lady Coke. Dr. Darrell presided, and on behalf of the association extended a hearty welcome to Lady Coke, who in felicitous terms wished every success to the show, which, she said, struck her as very wonderful. Mr. Freestone, in proposing a vote of thanks to her ladyship, said the show was one of the best that had been held in Norwich. That day's collection was the finest he had come across locally. Mr. Piggin seconded the vote. At this stage Miss May Roll stepped upon the dais and presented Lady Coke with a beautiful bouquet of autumn blooms, the gift being gracefully acknowledged by her ladyship. Lord Coke, in voicing his wife's thanks, said they had often heard a great deal about the Norwich Canary, but they never until that day had an idea what a delightful Fancy it was. He congratulated the members in producing such fine birds.

Respecting the management, we need only say that it was quite up to that of previous years, and that is to give the highest praise. The same careful attention and watchfulness were given to the birds committed to the care of the association that we so vividly remember in past years. The hard-working secretary, Mr. R. Roll, was as usual at his post early and late, and kept a watchful eye upon the birds, the gate, and the clerical work of the show. Good secretaries are undoubtedly born to the job, and Mr. Roll is just "all there." But however good the secretary is, he must have some assistance of the right kind, and the chairman, Mr. Freestone, and vice-chairman, Mr. Freeman, also Mr. Piggin, the treasurer, lent valuable aid, which was well backed up by the willing band of genial workers, consisting of Messrs. A. W. Russell, W. Drury, G. Wilkinson, W. Goodson, F. Cullington, A. Shearing, J. Tarlton, E. P. Gilbert, A. Bann, J. Cutmore, H. F. Bartram, J. Parsons, S. Roberts, etc. The sale of birds was good, many changing hands at all kinds of prices. The demand appeared to be more for high quality hens than cocks, quite as much money being given for hens of the right stamp as for birds of the stronger sex. The gate was up to the average, and one met here and there fanciers from some considerable distance. The judges were: Messrs. W. E. Greeves, Crests and C. Breds, and W. Vardy and J. Robson, Plainheads, Hybrids, Brit., etc.

The Plainheads and Crests.

MANNINGHAM.

Good display at this Y.U. fixture : Very fine classes in the novice section : The £5 5s. novice birds commence to change hands.

The second show under the Yorkshire Union was held October 12th in the Drummond road Council School, by the Manningham C.B.S., when 360 birds faced the judges, Messrs. H. W. Walsh and F. Allen, the former, as the official of the Y.U., taking all the open classes, the latter placing the tickets in the novice section. The awards of both were well received. The management is in very good hands. The excellent secretary, Mr. H. Grange, knows his duties, and he is ably assisted in his work by Mr. Pearson and the committee of management, Mr. W. Holroyd (president), Messrs. Huddleston, Hellas, L. Holroyd (vice-presidents), Mr. W. E. Dent (treasurer), and Messrs. F. Grange, Ward, Powell, Dewhirst, and Newton, as show stewards. Everything passed off well, all birds being packed up in good time for their return journey. The society are fortunate in having such a splendid room for a show, it being very lofty and well lighted, free from draughts, and within a short distance of the trams.

PONTARDAWE.

Held Oct. 10, at New Public Hall. Entries, considering the earliness of the season, came up well, and in point of quality were excellent. Special for best in Canary section was awarded to Mr. S. H. George with a really typical yellow Nor. of good size and quality. Best British, to Mr. D. J. Barcroft's Bramble, a lovely exhibit. The Secretary, Mr. W. Jenkins, and show manager, Mr. Jno. Symonds, were very able and courteous officials. Mr. D. A. S. Longden judged.

Mr. Exhibitor! Have you got

"Cage Birds Annual" for 1912.

If you have, you will find it of constant use to you during the present Show Season. If you have not, you will have to hurry up, THERE ARE NOT MANY LEFT. In addition to full particulars of all Cage Bird Societies will be found the following helpful articles:

THE FIRST PRINCIPLES OF CANARY BREEDING. Some advice that will ensure a good start. By W. M. Thomson. A volume of excellent advice as to the methods to adopt to ensure success. The cages and appliances to use, how to feed the parent birds before and after the eggs are hatched, the colour feeding of the youngsters, and numerous other important points are dealt with.

THE DIFFICULTIES OF BIRD BREEDING: HOW TO OVERCOME THEM. By Claude St. John. One of the best and most useful articles ever written on this most interesting subject. Every phase dealt with in a manner of absorbing interest to all bird-keepers, novices and old hands alike.

EXHIBITION FINCHES AND HOW TO KEEP THEM. By Messrs. A. and F. Hartley. A budget of hints and instructions on the caging, feeding, exhibiting, and general management of British Finches.

AN IDEAL BACK-YARD AVIARY. Its Construction and Fitting Up. By O. E. Brooks. A highly instructive and practical article, illustrated, telling simply yet fully the best way to construct cheaply an outdoor aviary, suitable for almost any bird kept in a confined space. Full dimensions are given, and the furnishing of the interior to the best advantage is thoroughly explained.

A GRAND COLOURED PLATE OF THE GREEN FINCH-CHAFFINCH HYBRID, which won the Dewar Challenge Shield at the Scottish National Show, and many other prizes. Also many other art plates and sketches. Also full standards and descriptions, of use to buyer, seller, exhibiter, and show secretary.

These and many other useful items make "Cage Birds Annual," for 1912, wonderful value.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee he paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

Please note, as the name of my lime is being copied by others, I beg to say I have no agents whatever, and it is of utmost importance that you should order direct from me if you want the genuine article. Loose thread netting, as used in my nets, ¼in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d. yard, ditto 9ft. deep 4d. yard, ditto 12ft. deep 5d. yard; extra stout netting, for use on rough ground, ¼in. mesh, 5d. yard; Lark or Starling netting, 1½in. mesh, 12ft. deep, 4d. yard; all netting post free. Flirt pegs and lines, 6d. each post free; Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun by hand, free from snarl, 60 yards long, and strong as boat lines, 1/4 each, post free; brace swivels, three 3d., twelve 6d., post free; birds' calls for imitating call and song of all birds, 2d. each, six 6d., twelve 10d., post free; absolutely every up-to-date article required by catchers always in stock and ready for immediate dispatch; send stamp for full descriptive list, which also gives hints on net-making. Following testimonials speak volumes for quality of my appliances. "Gedney, Holbeach, Lincs., September 3, 1912.—Sir,—The pair 12-yard clap nets safely to hand. They are an exceptionally good pair, and thread so fine they are hardly visible, and they match the ground so well. Rather different nets for Linnet catching to the herring and garden netting offered for sale by many netmakers, who ought to know better than send such rubbish out. Without doubt, yours are best fine thread nets extant. I shall want more shortly.—Yours, Charlie Cubley." "Wood St., Guildford, August 22.—Sir,—Received the two pairs nets safely. I am well pleased, and so is my friend. We shall not take the trouble to make them when we can get them so good as these for the money.—Yours, S. Bowen." "4, Castle Place, Scarborough, Aug. 25.—Sir,—Please send 1lb. lime. It is best lime I can get. I caught over 200 birds with last lot.—Yours, W. Whitehead." "64, Main St., Renton, Scotland, Aug. 13.—Sir,—Please send 1lb. lime, as the last pound I got from you was the envy of all the catchers here. I cannot say enough in its favour.—Yours, J. McKinn." "52, Silver St., Nenagh, Ireland, Aug. 17.—Sir,—Please send following. The net trap was best I ever saw for the money. I caught 38 Goldfinches with it first day.—Yours, Dennis Hayes." "55, Rockdale Rd., Tunbridge Wells, Aug. 23.—Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from you 7 years ago, and am still using it.—Yours, H. England." If you want reliable serviceable appliances, send to the man who makes them; no connection whatever with any other advertiser.

Specialist Help in Canary Breeding.

Its value to Bird Cage Fanciers.

The value of the specialist book of reference is coming to be universally recognised in every department of knowledge. If you want to succeed in any line to-day, you must not waste time and effort in experimenting on your own restricted knowledge alone; you must profit by the knowledge and the patient experiment of those who have excelled in the same direction.

This being freely granted, it follows that the man who means to make a success out of his Canaries, must have a specialist book on the Canary. He must take advantage of the gathered knowledge of the Canary experts, and then try to go one better still—if he can.

"Canaries, Hybrids and British Birds" is the latest, the newest, the most complete, the most scientific and the most practical work on the increasingly important subject of Cage Birds that has, so far, been published. It covers the whole ground; its pages include—of every kind of British Bird, so that the owner of this one compact book never needs another work on the subject as long as he lives.

"Canaries, Hybrids and British Birds" tells you how to make a success of your birds; how to select them; how to feed and treat them; and—if you go in for owning valuable specimens—how to wash and dress them for exhibition, and how to care for them at the Shows.

It describes every known variety, giving exhaustive descriptions of the points of each specimen, and accurate and reliable coloured plates of each kind of bird, which show the fancier exactly what to breed to.

It tells you when to mate your Canaries, when to breed, when to feed, when and how to breed or to feed for colour or for style or form; when to doctor them and when to let them alone; when to strengthen your stock and when to weed out the poorer birds; when to buy and when to sell.

For the Beginner and the Expert.

Thoroughness is the note in this grand book—every detail is thoroughly explained, every point is made clear, and every known variety treated. The book is admirably planned so as to help the beginner equally with the experienced man who has bred for years. The specialist authors do not take for granted any knowledge on the reader's part. They give detailed information as to site, arrangement, accommodation, sanitation, ventilation, temperature, and heating of the breeding room, just as thoroughly as they give all particulars for the man who has only a couple of birds—or even one bird—in a cage in his room. This book is as useful to the busy man who loves his one bird and is therefore anxious to know all about its history, habit, care and comfort as to the earnest scientific student and the breeder and the dealer. And there is no doubt that its possession will lead many an owner of one or two birds into the delightful hobby of scientific breeding, even though he has not hitherto been attracted in that direction.

Hybrids and Crosses.

This important subject is fully treated by experts. Here we have sound and practical specialists writing on the British Finch and Canary Hybrid, and on the inter-breeding of the Canary and the Goldfinch, the Bullfinch, Linnet, Siskin, Twite, Greenfinch, and Redpoll—and between these birds themselves. This difficult subject is one of growing interest to the aviculturist, and it is certain that the very beautiful birds, embodying the charms of both parents, that so rarely reward the breeder, are the result of exact scientific knowledge on his part, such as is here tabulated for the first time. There is a notable and most useful section on "Mendelian Inheritance" that is almost priceless in this connection; it presents knowledge that has never before been available.

Test Before Buying.

We would particularly draw the attention of readers to the fact that—good as the book undoubtedly is, and as the practical cage-bird man can judge from this short epitome of the points covered—they can satisfy themselves personally as to its value to themselves without spending a penny, and without any obligation to order the book at all.

A Free Approval Form will be found at the right hand base of this page. Any reader of CAGE BIRDS who fills in and dispatches this Approval Form to the Publishers of "Canaries, Hybrids and British Birds" will receive one of these splendid books on approval for four days' Free examination. If he decides it is not the one book he needs in order to make a success of his Canary breeding, he may return it carriage forward on the fourth day. And if he decides to order it he can pay for it on the simplest terms ever yet associated with a new standard specialist work of this description.

This is a rarely advantageous chance for the man who likes to see what he is buying, and we venture to think that every Canary lover will make haste to seize it.

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of Insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Full-James. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

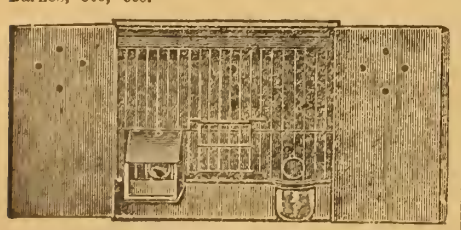
JUST ARRIVED



First consignment for the season of my world-famed Leipzig Rollers, all in superb health and condition. These Rollers have by far the largest sale of any Rollers in the kingdom, and this sale has been built up solely by the superior qualities of the birds. I now hold an enormous stock of cocks, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, jug-jug of Nightingale, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, and flute notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed entirely free from chopping or any other objectionable notes whatever, price 6/6 and 7/6 each; hens of same strain, 2/6 couple; all safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages and sent on full week's trial entirely at my own risk, either on receipt of cash, or deposit system of this paper, and money instantly refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given, and your every expectation realised. All cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am only importer of these birds, no other dealer is able to retail them unless he first purchases them from me. So send to fountain head and be sure of getting the genuine strain. See British bird and Appliance columns for further advts.

There Cannot be Any Doubt about the matter. I hold the largest and finest stock of high-class birds in the kingdom, and in proof of this I give an open invitation to all fanciers to come on any day but Sunday to see for themselves.

As regards the quality of my stock, see reports of Newcastle and Great Horton in this issue. My customers also are winning week by week.

Mr. S. Pygot, 6, Chamberlain St., Shelton, writes, Oct. 17, 1912: "I received Yorkshire cock safe on Wednesday and showed him in the open champion class on Thursday. I am very pleased to tell you he won 3rd in a class of 11, and they were all very good birds in the class. I am quite satisfied with him."

Scores similar letters are filed for inspection of my visitors.

"I have now for sale a number of Grand Lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, feathered to perfection, and on full song, at 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6 each upwards. ROUND THE SHOWS.

London and Provincial O.S. Holds Excellent Autumn Show.

The Holborn Hall was the venue of the annual show of the London and Provincial Ornithological Society on October 23rd and 24th. Entries came up fairly well, but not quite so well as they should have done. May this not have been due to the rule which stated that classes of eight and under would be given the benefit of the sliding scale system of prize money? The quality generally was good, and especially was this so in the champion Norwich, in which Messrs. Baker, Spillman, Richardson, Rippon, and Hodder staged a remarkably fine lot of typical well balanced exhibits. Yorkshires were not so high in quality as we expected. Unfortunately for Mr. Dykes, his team arrived after the classes were judged; had they been in time there would doubtless have been some considerable alteration in the awards. Mr. Wilcock's yellow is grand. Crests and Crest-breds were good without being exceptional. Most of the birds looked as though they had not quite got through the moult. Mrs. Thynne won the special with a very fine typical exhibit. Mr. Lazarus's Crest-breds were much admired. Borders made a most attractive class, and very little divided the different exhibits. The veteran Nason sent one of his old time jonques to win in the Cinnamons; and it did win, too. Mr. Green's Lancashires headed a big variety class, and they will look better in a week or two's time. Mr. Brook's Dutch Frill is one of the best we have ever seen staged.

Novice Norwich were a very high quality lot, but the majority of them ran rather small. Miss Edwards, Mrs. Williams, Messrs. Elliott, Goodman, Fleet, Hocking, Wakefield, Cooper, Ayling, and Crawford, all staged some nice showy birds. The novice Yorks. were hardly so good as the Norwich, a number of them not having tightened up in front. Mr. Salter's winning yellow is a grand bird, and was much admired. Messrs. Fleet, Bamber, Reynolds, Clarke, Cooper, all exhibited specimens of nice quality. In the Crests, Mr. Gollan's winner was easily ahead, whilst Mr. Salter's Borders swept the deck.

In the Hybrids some very interest exhibits were staged by Messrs. Ramsden and Lamb, the latter a capital team. British were only 68 in 11 classes, but the exhibits were in most instances of high merit. The winning Linnet will probably improve in colour, and should be heard of again. The Hon. Mrs. Bourke's Nightingale looked very fit, and in grand feather, but had to give way to Mr. Swain's bird. The insectivorous section contained some interesting exhibits, Black Redstart, Great Grey Shrike, and Waxwing. Foreigners were a very good lot, Hon. Mrs. Bourke's pretty Loochoo Robin being much admired; also the Golden Breasted Waxbills and Crimson Finch, winners in their respective classes. The novice section contained 33 entries, and there were various exhibits that were quite good enough for the open classes. The Hon. Mrs. Bourke won special for the best foreign bird with her Loochoo Robin. Mr. Marley secured the members' special for best Brit., with the Great Grey Shrike. We were unable to obtain particulars of the points specials, cups, etc., the points not having been counted, owing to pressure.

Of the management we can only say that it was well up to the usual L.P.O.S. standard, and that standard is equal to A1 at Lloyds. The birds were admirably staged, well looked after by the committee, and were as happy and comfortable as if in their rooms at home. Mr. C. W. Law, the able hon. secretary and show manager, by his urbanity and hard work did much to make the venture a success, and he received most valuable assistance from Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, G. Crabb, J. Hodder, W. Shakespeare, A. Cooper, F. J. Day, and, we must not forget, Madame Feist Madewell, who was one of the most earnest workers. Mr. T. Heath judged Yorks., Mules, and Limit Classes, Mr. J. Robson the remaining Canaries, and Mr. Silver Brit. and For. Birds.

The Canary Section.

WEST OF SCOTLAND O.S.

Monthly meeting, Nelson's Temp. Hotel, Oct. 5, Mr. P. Thorn, Pres., in the chair. The members were then treated to a washing exhibition by Mr. C. Hunter, who explained very minutely the methods of holding, washing, and drying, and at the close was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—W. Hutchinson, Sec.

BRISTOL F.A.

Monthly meeting held Oct. 3, at Kingsley Hall. Arrangements for the annual show were discussed, and considerable progress was made. Judges are Messrs. C. A. House and J. H. Roe, which, no doubt, will draw a good entry. A table show of Yorks. was held at the close of meeting. Mr. Fred Buckland placed the cards. YORKS. COCK: 1, 2, c, Greenslade; 3, vhc, Lovell; hc, Mrs. Garland. HEN: 1, Lovell; 2, 3, Greenslade; vhc, hc, Mrs. Garland.

LEIGH AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A very pleasant evening was spent Oct. 9, at Railway Hotel, when Mr. Taylor (vice-president) gave a drying exhibition. The members did not turn up as strong as was expected. They should make a special effort to attend these exhibitions, so as to give the demonstrator every encouragement. Mr. Taylor washed and dried two birds, one in front of the fire, and the other in his drying apparatus. When he had finished he invited the members to ask questions concerning his apparatus, which Mr. Taylor readily answered, showing the members all the parts. Mr. M. Bailey moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Taylor for his kindness in giving his exhibition. This was readily supported by all the members.—R. Charleson, Sec.

LONDON C.B.A.

Meeting held at "The Feathere," Gt. Chapel St., Westminster, S.W., Oct. 9, Mr. J. Dewhurst in the chair. After the usual business, Mr. J. Sandiford, of London, was nominated for membership. It was decided to have special prize cards for the forthcoming annual international show, size 5in. x 2½in. Many questions were drawn and answered by the members present, and arising out of the questions, interesting discussions followed. Amongst the subjects dealt with were:—How to bring birds into condition; varied experiences in the use of milk sop; the use of hemp and rape seed in the breeding-room, etc. Messrs. Sayer, Dawson, Goymer, Boxall, Trower, and Watcham ably assisted in making the meeting a success. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—W. H. Mugford, and F. Knight.

RUGBY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at the "Moat," Oct. 2. Mr. B. Pain in the chair. The balance sheet was passed as being satisfactory. The chairman, commenting on the lateness of same, said it was partly due to the change of secretaryship, and that it would be earlier next year. A profit was made on the December show, also on the year's working, and the balance in hand was fairly good for a small society. Two or three names were brought forward for membership, and the following officers were elected:—Chairman, Mr. B. Pain; treas., Mr. R. Barnwell; sec., Mr. W. J. Veasey, 7, Grosvenor Road; committee, Messrs. Leng, Bond, Barnwell, Nelson, Beet, Martin, Salter. Decided to hold a members' show Oct. 26th, and to ask Mr. G. Hall, of Leamington, to judge. Three specials were promised—one for best Canary, one for novice classes, and one for best British. Decided to hold also 10-mile radius shows on Dec. 27 and Feb. 12, the latter to include a class for pairs. Mr. W. Tyler, of Leicester, be asked to judge. Three new classes were added to this season's schedule, and the hope was expressed that the secretary would soon run an open show. Decided to run a season special for members. Four birds to be nominated for each show, and most points win. A general chat followed, on the ups and downs of the breeding season, and, generally speaking, a fairly good season has been experienced. It is hoped to see more birds on the stage than before.—B. Pain, Chairman.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

Mr. L. Briggs, vice-president, opened out what proved to be a most interesting and instructive discussion on "Marked Breeding," at the meeting held at headquarters, October 15. To fully illustrate the points at issue, Mr. Briggs brought with him about 6 birds, all of which had some technical quality in relation to building up a marked strain. In a free and easy style he dealt with the various points, and phases of this most interesting fount of bird life and proved beyond doubt that pedigree breeding is the great essential point in this variety, for without it one may occasionally get what he termed a spurt, "a good marked one," but in the majority of cases will obtain a fair lot of heavy marked ones. Whereas, if a fancier would pay attention to the way in which his birds were bred from both sides, not just from the one side or the other, but take particular pains as to how both were bred, Mr. Briggs showed that one could then expect the progeny to be fair, decently marked birds. To prove this by actual experience, he invited any of the members to go home with him and see for himself. From those who have already availed themselves of this opportunity, we hear that Mr. Briggs has a grand lot of marked birds, excelling in markings and a noticeable feature is the very small percentage of heavy or objectionably marked birds. One important feature anent his success in breeding for good markings is that he adopts a certain method and sticks to it, with the above happy result. Mr. Briggs pleaded with the younger fanciers not to let anyone induce them to sell their best stock birds, especially those that were well up in the essential qualities that go to make the ideal, as these sometimes take years to obtain. Another very noticeable point in the lecturer's remarks was in regard to his birds being so very steady in the show cage. This was commented upon by all present, for the birds hardly seemed to leave the top perch, and evidently knew what was required of them. The cage was turned upside down, and the bird wouldn't leave the top perch, giving all present the idea that hours upon hours had been spent in training them, but Mr. Briggs assured them that the only way to get birds like this is to breed them with plenty of nerve, and afterwards to gain their confidence in the birdroom. Many questions were put to Mr. Briggs, and he dealt with them all in a mastery manner. A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. C. Cowgill, seconded by Mr. O. Priestley, and supported by Mr. H. Hill; this was carried unanimously. Mr. Briggs suitably responded.—U. Hill, Secretary.

ANNFIELD PLAIN C.B.S.

Meeting held Mr. Lumley's, Mr. S. Foster in the chair, when we had a grand turn out of members. It was decided not to hold a meeting next month, as it falls on the same day as Stanley C.B.S. show. Mr. R. Hutchinson was elected a member, and we are still open for some more. We had a good turn out of birds for table show, which Mr. J. Snell judged, and gave every satisfaction. Principal winners: Messrs. Humphrey, Robson, Robinson, Cresswell, and Peart. Decided to make next table show the last of the season, and the final competition for Mr. W. H. Butler's electro-plated teapot. Classes: Nor., Buff; Yorks., Buff; Border, Buff; A.O.V. Can.; and A.V. British. Mr. J. Emmerson judge.—R. Peart, Sec.

WALKLEY AND DIST. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held headquarters, October 10, Mr. T. Ridal presiding. The business being chiefly nomination of officers, but other business kept the meeting going well for more than two hours. The chief discussion was what shall constitute a novice. Eventually it was decided to place on the agenda for the annual meeting that a novice be allowed to show in novice classes until he has won with Canaries 3 first prizes in any one society (nest feather wins not to count); 1 first in open competition, limit classes included. The draw books have gone fairly well. Several specials were promised. Steward, J. Carr (annual show). Next meeting, a washing exhibition. Members please bring a bird to be washed; also your books (Sec. sit Nov. 11th, at headquarters, 8 to 9, to receive entries for show).—C. Tomlinson, Sec.

HORNSEY & WOOD GREEN C.B.S.

The members of this newly established, but rapidly increasing, C.B.S., held a table show and washing exhibition at headquarters (Mr. Bedford's), Wood Green, Oct. 3. There was a nice gathering of fanciers, and a capital show of birds. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged. Mr. Tolfrey won special for best bird with a very smart Yorks., the reserve being Mr. P. Brook's bonny unflighted yell. Norwich. YORKS.: 1, sp, 3, c, Tolfrey; 2, vhc, hc, Clay. NOR.: 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, Brooks; c, Griffin. BRIT.: 1, Brooks; 2, Surridge; 3 Griffin. MULES: 1, Griffin. At the close of the judging, Mr. S. Smith gave a washing exhibition, which was most interesting and instructive. Mr. Smith explained that he never went in for special drying cages, rolling in cloths, etc. He simply used a shaving brush, white curd soap, a nice clean fire, the ordinary show cage (scrupulously clean), and care to see that every bird washed perched as soon as it left his hand. This was the "rub" with the fanciers watching Mr. Smith, but he accomplished his task with every bird he washed. Thanks were heartily accorded to Mr. Smith at the close.

THATTO HEATH AND DIST. O.S.

Meeting at headquarters, The Railway Hotel, on 7th October; Mr. H. Enever occupied the chair. We had a fairly good attendance to hear a lecture from that "auld veteran," Mr. Chas. Houlton (St. Helens). After a few brief remarks about the progress the society has made since its formation, some two years ago, and the possibility of still further improvement, the lecturer dived into his subject, a general one, touching on British Hardbills, large and small Softbills, Norwich Plainheads, and Yorkshire Canaries. Mr. H. took pains to explain what the standard ideals are, the proper cages to use, the proper treatment, food, etc., the mode of mixing softbill food, to the best advantage. We were also told not to spare the cold water bath, and great stress was laid on the necessity of wild seeds for all British Hardbills, as those particular items went a long way towards producing that hard and polished finish so essential to an exhibition specimen. Mr. H. invited anyone to ask questions, and there followed some very "nutty" problems. They were very generously dealt with, and this part of the programme was, to say the least, very interesting indeed, and I think all present must have derived some benefit. The Chairman proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer for his very interesting and instructive paper, and the same was given in no half-hearted manner. We hope that Mr. H. will come amongst us again, and give us some of his experiences in the Mule and Hybrid section of the Fancy. Next meeting November 4th, when arrangements will be made for members' annual show, on the 18th January. I should be glad to hear from any fancier who would like to join us.—H. R. Macdonald, Hon. Sec.

BARROW AND DISTRICT C.B.A

Washing and Drying Show Birds.

Very successful meeting held at headquarters, Oct. 9th, Mr. D. McFarlane presiding. At conclusion of usual business, the Chairman called on Mr. W. Ireland to give his promised washing exhibition. This treat had been looked forward to, and there was a strong muster present, who watched with interest while the operator put two birds through the washing and drying process, and were surprised with the ease and dexterity with which the washing was done. Mr. Ireland's method of drying also aroused the keenest interest, and a good discussion followed. He uses a hot water tank. By the way, the member who volunteered to take the tank downstairs to get it filled with hot water had a lively time, as he discovered a leak when about half-way up again, but surmounted the difficulty by turning it over! The tank fits into a breeding cage, one half of the top opening as a lid. On the top of the tank is laid a flannel-covered rack, the strips of wood running from back to front of cage. The birds are rolled in flannel and laid in the grooves of the rack with tails towards the fire; the cage is then covered over with a shawl and laid a comfortable distance from the fire. He allows from 30 to 35 minutes before he unwraps the birds. He then gives them a minute or two to recover and transfers them to clean show cages to finish off. In the discussion which followed, some were of the opinion that the birds were too long in the drying cloths, but certainly the birds didn't show any signs of fatigue, as immediately they were transferred to the show cages they were about as lively and perky as they would have been under normal conditions. On the motion of Mr. W. Fryer a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Ireland, which ended a very instructive and enjoyable evening. Table show of Borders (4 classes) at next meeting, Oct. 23rd.—Jas. S. Fleming, Sec.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

EASTVILLE OPEN F.S. (Bristol).

There was a crowded attendance at the monthly meeting of the Eastville Open F.S., held Oct 9, at the White Swan Hotel, over which Mr. R. Ewens presided. The business chiefly concerned the ninth annual members' show, Nov. 2, for which promises of a large number of specials were forthcoming. Decided to have catalogues, and members and others who wish to advertise in same are requested to forward copy at once to the secretaries. Decided to ask Mr. A. Tottle to give a lecture at the November meeting. About twenty-five cage birds were staged, and the judge considered them a pretty warm lot, Mrs. Garland winning the special for best, and Mr. Greenslade for best Norwich and the points special, Mr. Yorke second and Mr. Flook third. Judge, Mr. E. A. Lovell. YORKS. BUFF: 1, Flook; 2, 3, Greenslade; 4, Mrs. Garland; vhc, Yorke; hc, Walters; c, Norman. YELL.: 1, Mrs. Garland; 2, Greenslade; 3, vhc, Yorke; 4, Flook. TKD.: 1, sp, 3, Mrs. Garland; 2, Greenslade; 4, c, Pace and Williams; vhc, Flook; c, Yorke. NOR.: 1, sp, Greenslade; 2, Pace and Williams; 3, Yorke. BRIT.: 1, Mrs. Garland; 2, 4, Pace; 3, Pace and Williams.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

The members of the above society were favoured by Mr. John Steel, of Dalkeith, who delivered a splendid lecture on British birds and their foods in the Arcade Temperance Hotel, Sept. 28. Mr. Steel first dealt with the Goldfinch in a very able manner, reviewing the various kinds, the Three by Six, Peatbroat, and the Cheveral, also the meating off for the Greypate. As a wild food for the Goldfinch, he placed dandellon, thistles, and shepherd's purse, in the order named. He also mentioned the following as all good in their way: mouse-ear, red-shank, wild rape, gold of pleasure, nettle, and sow thistle. Mr. Steel next dealt with the Linnet, making it clear that although called by many different names, the Grey Linnet, the Rose Linnet, the Heather Linnet, they were one and the same bird. After dealing very fully with this species, describing more especially their wild food, Mr. Steel was asked to describe the method of meating off for a newly-caught Redstart. Mr. Steel minutely described this handsome bird, and said it must have a plentiful supply of live food. He advocated mealworms, gentles, wasp grubs, etc., also a supply of elderberries and blackberries. He also described the method of catching the Redstart and the Wagtail, with his own traps and accessories. Afterwards the questioning started, and some good questions were put. The question which was awarded the prize (a show cage presented by Mr. Steel) was that put by Mr. Andrew Simpson, "Does environment mean anything in the breeding of Mules and Hybrids?" "Undoubtedly," was Mr. Steel's answer, and he advocated making their breeding quarters as near to their natural conditions as possible. Other questions were asked and answered, to the satisfaction of all present. A very hearty vote of thanks was given to the lecturer, on the motion of the Chairman, all present having thoroughly enjoyed their evening's entertainment.—J. R. Reid, Secretary.

STOCKPORT B.F.A.

Special meeting held Oct. 8, at the Boar's Head Hotel; Mr. John Garner presided. The chief items of the evening were a washing competition for novices, and a lecture on the Norwich by Mr. J. Raynes. Mr. W. H. Appleton, of West Gorton, who handled his bird very well indeed, won the prize of 5s. Members in the champion section who took a hand were Messrs. McKail, Mason, Potts and Stafford. Mr. J. Raynes also kindly consented to wash one, and gave a few remarks on how to wash, which were very much appreciated by all present. Whilst the birds were drying, Mr. Raynes gave his lecture on the Norwich, and dwelt at length on the value of pedigree breeding, the pairing of birds to gain one particular object at a time. He used double buffing occasionally, but not too often, as he was convinced that it was the cause of slack feathered birds. Mr. Raynes described his mode of feeding before pairing up, also his treatment when young were hatched, and told how to wean young birds. An interesting discussion followed, several visitors taking part, and they seemed very well pleased with the information they received. A vote of thanks to Mr. Raynes was proposed by Mr. Nelson, seconded by Mr. Stafford, and replied to by Mr. Raynes, who asked the fanciers of Stockport district to come forward and join the society, bind themselves together, and try to get as good shows in the future as they used to have in the past; he had seen many good shows in Stockport, and he hoped to see more.—W. Stafford.

teady, perfect feather (it doesn't look well, Mr. L. to see dead Linnets given to these birds at hows; we heard some remarks); 2, Miss Bousfield, Waxwing, in grand form, rich col., bright wing tips, ell polished; 3, Jay, perfect feather, good wing bars. FOR., INSECTIV. OR FRUIT-EATING (5): 1, Hon. Mrs. Bourke, very pretty specimen of the rare Coochoo Robin, whose colours are rich reddish chestnut, back flights and tail, black throat, and light greyish underparts, in the pink of condition, shown to perfection; 2, Mrs. Thynne, Tri-colour Tanager, gem, comprising various shades of green, faultless condition; 3, Miss Bousfield, rare White-capped Tanager, in splendid feather; vhc, Gollan, nice Pekin Robin, very lively little chap, in great form; abs, No. 4, Ribbon Finches. COM. AVADAVATS, ETC. ST. AUSTELL.

St. Austell and Dis. F.A. held their annual exhibition in the Market House, on Oct. 23rd, in ideal weather, and befor ea good attendance. The Norwich classes were well filled, and contained some very typical specimens, the winner being a gem, which also captured the Sandiford's medal for hottest fed bird. Yorks were small, but a good lot. Mules and British were good, and the winning Wagtail won the special for best in show. Mr. Davies judged, and his awards were well received.

BROMLEY.

The 21st annual show of the Bromley and West Kent F.A. was held, as usual, in the Drill Hall on Oct. 23 and 24. The hall, although a large one, was packed with exhibits, and will soon be much too small for this progressive society. The birds were so nicely staged that all could be conveniently inspected. There was a capital show of Norwich and Yorks, some high-class birds of both varieties being staged. In Norwich the principal winners were Messrs. Wickham, Richardson, Lovegrove, Saunders, Gunnell, Kilby, Easton, Hall, Page, etc., and in Yorks Messrs. Rayner, Page, Lever, Lockett, Wraight, Avis, Fairman, etc. There were a few good Crests and nice classes of Fluches and Hybrids. The show was capitally managed by Mr. A. T. Bellinger, who makes a very fine secretary, has everything in the best of order, and is always ready and obliging. He was ably assisted by Messrs. Pressland, Stevens, Bleeze, Foxon, Faux, Barber, and Ford. There was a capital attendance of visitors. Mr. H. Norman placed the awards. The Members' Cup was won by Mr. E. Steed, of Lee, with a nice unflighted yell. Norwich, the runner-up being a fine yell. Yorks owned by Mr. J. Barber, of Bromley.

ANNFIELD PLAIN F. & F. & C.B.S.

Meeting held Oct. 12, enrolling three new members, Messrs. J. Stobbs, J. Adams and W. Smith. We have secured 4 cups, and Mr. J. Elliott has, I believe, kindly given a cup, so this will make five cups for members to compete for. Drawing took place last Thursday. Result: 1464, 4, 1055, 506, 85, 1242, 1827, 2266, 275, 189, 510, 483, 486, 1860, 1032. Will those who have secured a prize kindly apply at once? The sales of these books have brought in £10, and with the cash we have in hand makes up to £15. Members, I want you all to do your best re gathering specials. I want one for every class, so buck up and help make our first show a grand success. Show schedules are now being prepared: all fanciers may have breeder's card inserted, at rate of 2s. 6d. per quarter page. Next meeting at Mr. Gaffney's, Oct. 26, all invited. —J. W. Christon, Sec.

ANFIELD, EVERTON. C.B.S.

General meeting, held October 14, headquarters, St. Cuthbert's Schoolrooms, Anfield. Mr. G. Rawsthorn in the chair, and a grand attendance of members. Decided, that half-yearly balance sheet should be posted to all fully paid up members. Final arrangements made for members show, November 16; admission to show, 3d.; ladies free. Partly paid up members are requested to pay balance of subs. A number of names of fanciers who have sent in application for membership appear on the books, and these are requested to pay up at once, or the committee may decide to have their names expunged. No further application will be made to these fanciers. A very substantial lot of specials were subscribed at the meeting, and the committee desire to thank the generous donors. Mr. G. Benson, chairman Wallasey C.B.S. gave a washing exhibition in his usual dexterous manner, explaining the various methods adopted in the washing of Canaries, while the members watched him very closely. Mr. Benson used Guy's soap, which did its work in a very satisfactory manner. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Benson, who always seems happy amongst the Anfield fanciers. While the birds were drying, the Chairman called upon Mr. T. Barker, the well-known and expert Cheshire botanist, to give his lecture on wild seeds for British birds. There was a fine spread of wild seeds on the platform for the edification of the members, and Mr. Barker explained whether this or that seed was liked best by certain species of wild birds, naming every seed as he went along. There was a good number of British fanciers present, and many were the questions asked, and satisfactorily answered. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer brought a most successful evening to a close. Many more of them, we hope. Next meeting November 11, special.—R. B. Wright, Hon. Sec.

We are informed by the respective secretaries that prize money has been paid in respect of the following shows:—Dysart, Clapham, Manningham, Middlesborough, Burnley, Lochgelly.

Mr. Pimm, of Icknield, Port Rd., Birmingham, asks us to say that owing to a fire there has been some delay in the execution of orders. The damage has now been repaired, and business is going on as usual.

We have decided to hold our members' show, Nov. 2, at our headquarters, Temperance Club, Toad Lane, writes Mr. T. Holt, Hon. Sec. Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S.. Mr. H. W. Battye will judge. We have had a difficulty in engaging a room this year.

Mr. Oglethorpe, Chairman of the Cockermouth F.S., writes that Mr. Jackson, Crown St., Cockermouth, is the secretary of the Society, and that they have dropped the poultry section, and at their show are giving a class to Buntings only, an innovation in their district.

If any one who has received a schedule for Liverpool show, does not require same, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Deacon, will he kindly return it; we will pay postage at this end. Also will Irish exhibitors please state on entry forms whether they require their birds kept until Sunday night. Special arrangements have been made for such.

Will show secretaries, etc., please note the following changes of address:—Mr. J. Broad, from Brentwood to Geoffmar, Whitehill, Bordon, Hants; Mr. W. Hodson, hon. sec., Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., to 28 Barry Road, E. Dulwich; Mr. J. Fearnett, hon. sec., Runcorn B.B.A., to 13, Fox Street, Runcorn; Mr. J. P. Baxter, from Leith to East Burnside, Broxburn.

The N.P.C. Amateur Cup.

The cup presented to the Norwich Plainhead Club, for amateurs, by Mr. W. J. Grey will be on view at Manchester show on Saturday afternoon, writes Mr. John Hopkins.

I have omitted to answer many enquiries to my advt., owing to fanciers not enclosing stamp for reply, writes Mr. Marley (Leyton).

Glad to see Cheltenham has followed Cardiff's lead in giving a class for hen Mules, writes Mr. E. J. Davies. I see no reason why this class should not fill well.

We hope fanciers will support Grantham show, writes Mr. W. E. Allen, the hon. sec., for we have a good lot of specials, and shall do everything possible to ensure the comfort of the birds. Entries do not average two per class at present; fanciers should note our show advert. this week.

Kindly notify that Portsmouth C.B.S. schedules are sent out, write Messrs. King and Joiner, the secs. Will any exhibitor not receiving one please notify secretaries, or refer to classification published in Cage Birds last week. We are relying on last week's advt. in place of sending so many schedules out.

We regret that through a printer's error in our review of Cheltenham schedule, it appeared that there are at Cheltenham show only six classes (novice) for Yorks. There are twelve classes, six of which are for novices. Further, the prize-money in other than the Crests is 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d.

We learn that all prize money is guaranteed at Sheffield O.S. Show, November 1st and 2nd, and will be paid to exhibitors present on the Saturday; the remainder within 48 hours. The special prize list is wonderful; the society is giving £11 in cash specials. There is a 3-guinea silver cup for most points in Novice Yorks.

OBITUARY.

It is with regret, writes Mr. A. Hordern, Shaw, I have to chronicle the loss which has been sustained by our oldest exhibitor in the district, Mr. J. Vickers, in the death on Oct. 16 of his wife. The deceased lady had borne with fortitude during the last two or three years the ravages of a malady to which she knew there was but one end. Ever a fancier's wife, and a well-known figure at the big Lancashire shows. She leaves to mourn her loss, three sons and a daughter, and a husband to whom the success of the exhibiting season will be but empty honours.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. D. John, that I have to announce the death of Mrs. Williams, the beloved wife of Mr. Philip Williams, of the Greyhound Hotel, Llanelly, after an illness of several months, on Oct. 16, aged 38. The Llanelly and Dis. C.B.S. will feel the loss, she and Mr. Williams being on our list of vice-presidents, and having always taken a great deal of interest in the Society. Four years ago Mrs. Williams presented the society with a handsome challenge cup.

We regret two or three errors in Cheltenham Show schedule, writes Mr. Treasure, the hon. sec. Prize-money in classes 13 and 14 on the sliding scale, and the Norwich classes 15 to 22 are under the patronage of the S.N.P.C., also Mr. Rogerson's specials will be given in classes 69 and 70, and not as stated. Roller fanciers please note that Mr. Roehl has kindly consented to judge, in place of Mr. Jacquemin, who is unable to come.

Members of the City and Suburban A.C.B. are requested to attend the important meeting at headquarters, the Church Institute, Marylebone, on Monday next; also to note that the secretary is anxious to receive at once specials or promises of specials for the annual show, as the schedule will soon be in the hands of the printer. The number of cups, bowls, and other valuable trophies for competition is in excess of all other years, and the sec., Mr. H. W. Dickinson, 86, Station Rd., Harrow, will be glad to hear from fanciers desirous of joining.

All exhibitors desiring birds forwarded from Carlisle show to Liverpool, Sheffield, or Blaydon shows, writes Mr. John C. Bell, sec., will be obliged if labels, etc., are forwarded to me. Birds for Liverpool and Sheffield will be sent off by L. and N.W. and Midland Railways by trains leaving Carlisle at 4.20, and for Blaydon by N.E.R. 6.40 train, all arriving at destinations shortly after 7. All trains during Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning are met, and birds at once taken to show room, and thoroughly looked after. Entries received up to first post 28th.

Enterprise of Portsmouth F.S.

The Fancy in and around Portsmouth is evidently booming, as the large Show advertisement of Portsmouth F.S. in this week's issue bears witness. Exhibitors in search of honours will find that what Portsmouth F.S. has to offer in the way of money prizes and specials, deserves their favourable consideration. We hope exhibitors will reward the efforts of the executive and send along plenty of entries to the secretary, Mr. W. E. Tyrrell, 38, Commercial Road, Portsmouth. Entries may be made from the advertisement which appears this week.

NEXT WEEK Our First Special Double Number NEXT WEEK of the season.

READERS will find in it a splendid selection of specially-written articles of absorbing interest to all bird keepers and breeders, dealing with every aspect of our hobby. In practical value these will, we think, be found to transcend any collection we have previously published, while the lighter side of bird-keeping has not been overlooked. In addition, there will be found in this grand issue a of one of the most popular breeds of the present day, together with a whole budget of pen and pencil drawings by the leading artists of the Fancy. Full and impartial reports, too, will be given by experts of the very important shows being held this week.

This Grand Issue No One Can Afford to Miss!

Place an order for it at once with your Newsagent.

ADVERTISERS will need little reminder of the fact that the Sales Season is now upon us, and that Cage Birds is the paper which provides them with remarkable results at a very low outlay. Get out of your surplus stock next week by posting us at once an announcement for this Special Issue. Our circulation and, consequently, our selling power, are greater now than ever before.

CAGE BIRDS, the leading bird journal, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Careless Exhibitors.

Nearly all the shows I have judged, writes Mr. E. J. Davies (Cardiff), have contained more or less birds in their wrong classes, more often than not through exhibitors with two or more birds tying the labels on the wrong cages by mistake. Many also tie the tickets on the wrong end of the Yorks show cage, which necessitates taking the cage down every time the number is needed.

THE HUDDERSFIELD SHOW SENSATION.

The Mystery of the Missing Entries Solved.

It will be remembered that at Huddersfield show—the first of this season's Yorkshire Union fixtures—a number of entries were at the last moment found to be missing, the letters containing them having apparently gone astray in the post. Rumour variously puts it that 50 to 100 birds were affected, a serious consideration to their owners in view of the competitions for the Y.U. and other trophies which were announced at that show.

A correspondent writes us that it has been found that these entries (14 letters in all) were taken in from the postman by the wife of the secretary of Huddersfield show, who placed them in a drawer for safety, but then forgot entirely about them—even when the "hue and cry" was raised it did not occur to her that her action was the innocent cause of all the pother. The envelopes, unopened, were sent last week to the Yorkshire Union secretary, and were opened at the Yorkshire Canary Club committee meeting held at Great Horton last Saturday, to settle the question as to how far the entries affected the competitions of this club. Particulars will doubtless be given in the secretary's report of the meeting. Our correspondent concludes by saying that many more or less wild rumours were afloat concerning this matter, one being that a coup had been planned by someone or other to deliberately way-lay and keep back certain entries; but he states that he saw for himself that none of the mislaid letters had been tampered with.

Sterile and Perished Eggs.

PERHAPS the other manifestations will be more easily understood if I deal with the eggs first. A sterile egg is one which, though of course complete as regards contents (yolk, albumen and membrane), has not been fecundated,, either by reason of the failure of the male to impregnate, or the female to receive same. My reason for the first description is that many young fanciers have heard the term "empty" applied to sterile eggs, and "full" to fertile, and have therefore marvelled why their birds' eggs, being always full, did not hatch. I shall deal with the italicised phrase when I come to a later stage of this paper. A perished egg is one which has been fecundated, but in which the embryo has perished, the ordinary term for such being dead in shell.

Shell-less eggs. Many attribute these to a failure of the breeder to supply, or the hen to partake of, sufficient lime-like material. While strongly advocating the supplying of some form of lime, such as cuttlefish or calcined animal bones, egg-shells or old mortar, I am convinced that a hen can lay well-shelled eggs, notwithstanding a total deprivation of these or any other form of lime such as gravel, etc. Both seed and water contain lime in sufficiency not only to envelope the eggs, but to form the bones of the off-spring. On the other hand, I have seen a hen lay shell-less eggs, despite an abundant supply, and with the partaking of it made certain by mixing finely ground material with her egg-food, thus indicating an inability to secrete, or that the shell forming organs are incapable of performing their functions. This I am informed is often due to an injury.

Dealing with the "Green Egg."

The green egg, or undue retention. Most fanciers have experienced this in their stock. The symptoms are identical with egg-binding, in which a difficulty of parturition is manifest by the obvious prostration of the affected bird. The remedy for the latter is so effective that I am tempted to repeat it. Filling a narrow-necked jug with steaming hot water to one-third full, place a piece of cloth around same, to contract size of aperture, and to prevent the hot vessel coming into contact with the bird. Hold the bird's vent and abdomen over the steam for about ten minutes, rub vent gently with warm olive or almond oil, and replace her on a warmed nest. Repeat in an hour's time if necessary. Sometimes all our efforts are in vain, and death ensues, for if the egg is retained for a prolonged period, it may be green in colour and the contents offensive. This affection will often mean the termination or a particular bird's reproductive career, the generative organs apparently having sustained an irreparable injury by such retention.

Dead in Shell.

This is a very common occurrence, and after many experiments and study of the causes, I am convinced that it is in the majority of cases due to an inherent weakness of the embryo. Many, as I have already mentioned, attribute this, and, in fact, nearly every ill the young Canary is heir to, to east winds, or, if perchance the wind should be in some other quarter, to a lack of moisture, but opinions are divided as to whether such moisture is necessary to the development of the chick, or, by some action on the shell, makes it more friable, or easy of fracture by the chick when fully developed. While strongly advocating moisture myself, on the grounds that I have repeatedly found wild birds' eggs to be wet through contact with the parent bird, which bathes almost every day during incubation (Larks and non-bathing species get bedewed with the grass) yet many thousands of Canaries perish in the shell, despite the fact that the breeder has applied moisture, either by permitting the hen to bathe, or dipping or spraying the eggs with tepid water.

If the fatality were due to a lack of moisture, those who failed to supply such moisture would surely find their stock most seriously affected, yet I have met fanciers who objected to both spraying the eggs and bathing the hens, on the grounds that it chilled the former, and was liable to put the broodiness off the latter. While I do not myself fear any such results, I was nonplussed in claiming any beneficial effects of the application of moisture, by the fact that its opponents had very rarely any dead in shell, while the moistureites were suffering a perfect epidemic of the same. I have repeatedly taken eggs from fanciers who were in despair of hatching out any, and transferred them to birds which had hitherto always hatched out their own eggs, but I must confess the results were not a success, they still perished. Hence my assumption. The abnormal mortality in Hybrid eggs is confirmative of my weak embryo theory.

The Evaporated or Dried Up Egg.

A careful examination of these invariably reveals a puncture, due in many instances to the sharpness of the parent bird's claws or bill, which should always be trimmed before the hen is put up for breeding, as any sudden disturbance may cause her to drive her claws through the shell in her hurry to leave the nest, and the bill is used when turning the eggs during incubation. Contact with any sharp or hard substance conveyed into the nest is a common cause of punctured eggs. A slight dent does not always constitute a puncture, as I have successfully patched such with membrane from a fowl's egg and gum, but the operation is often a failure.

Effects of Thunder on Incubation.

I am of opinion that thunder has no effect on the incubation of eggs from a healthy stock. I have made careful observation, extending over thirty years, of the eggs of both British birds and Canaries, at every stage of development, and have failed to record any fatalities which could be attributed to thunder. I have questioned many poultry breeders and gamekeepers as to their experience in the matter and their replies have confirmed my opinion, having been to the effect that though thunder may have a detrimental effect on a weak embryo, the fact that they had not recorded any increase in the number of perished eggs after even phenomenal storms showed the effect of such to be scarcely worthy of consideration.

Is Marking with Copying Ink Injurious?

While discussing incubation with the then head keeper of Melville Castle, he informed me that he had repeatedly proved that marking the Pheasants' eggs with a copying-ink pencil was fatal to the embryo, though an ordinary lead pencil had no ill effect. The only conclusion he could make was that the colour penetrated the shell, and was in some manner fatal to the embryo. I have repeatedly experimented with wild birds' eggs, and, while I cannot say that I have found his theory to be correct, I have experienced a result which, in view of the many Canary-breeders who mark their eggs with copying ink, justifies further experiments before delivering a decided opinion as to whether its effects are nugatory or evil.

Chilled Eggs.

Another prevalent idea is that eggs which have advanced in incubation will perish if allowed to get cold. That a cessation of heat would be fatal if greatly prolonged I do not deny, but that an egg which has become cold is necessarily perished, I do. I have repeatedly exposed eggs in various stages of incubation, and made sure they were cold by prolonging such exposure for anything up to six hours, and they hatched out in due course. I on one occasion received a partially incubated clutch by mail which had been sixteen hours en route; notwithstanding this, four of them hatched two days later.

THE MUSICAL BOX OF THE CANARY FAMILY.

By J. TOMLINSON.

THE birds will now have completed their moult, or nearly so, and the extra dieting should be curtailed, or they will get excited and pugnacious in their song, and will fight at each other with their voices. The staple diet should consist of the best German summer rape. A little mixed seed, plain canary, or egg-food may be allowed occasionally, but care must be exercised in its use to endeavour to keep the song tone to its normal pitch. Should any be inclined to get too loud, cut out all the extras from the diet, also curtail the amount of light previously allowed as previously advised in the care of the tutor, and add a cooling medicine to the drinking water. I may add the following, previously omitted, that those birds which have been accustomed to the outside feeding and drinking vessels will experience no difficulty in finding their seed and water in the song cages.

When feeding freely, a gradual darkening down process should be commenced, and care must be taken not to do it too abruptly. Afterwards they should be opened to the light daily, as a guide, say for one hour, the time to be increased or decreased in accordance with the style and tone of the bird's song. It should not be lost sight of that all imperfections are not learned from the tutor or from other youngsters during the training, for some are due to hereditary causes inherited from both parents.

Breeding from the Tutor.

Having initiated the beginner to the fact that we should use the best birds procurable to breed from, and that it is detrimental to the song to allow the bird to remain for long periods in the breeding room, he very naturally may ask how should we proceed to procure youngsters from a bird that it is intended to use as a tutor, should we be desirous of doing so.

The experienced fancier will choose the most suitable hen, and feed her on the method usually adopted in the preparation for breeding. When she is in condition, she is supplied with a nest and the necessary building materials. In lieu of the latter, a lined nest pan may be provided, allowing just a small quantity of moss, or even short bents of soft meadow hay.

When she is building her nest and calling repeatedly for her spouse, he is placed inside her cage. After copulation has taken place, which not uncommonly occurs on the instant, he is at once removed to his former isolated quarters. After the careful dieting he will have received for the retention of his good song, clear eggs are often in evidence, so he is tried again, with the hope that with the coming of more congenial weather nature will ordain matters differently.

The Importance of the Hen.

Should the hen be about three or four days off laying her first egg, one admittance to her cage of the cock bird may fertilise the whole clutch, but as we cannot foretell this, he should be introduced once each day until the first egg appears.

So much time and labour has been expended by Roller fanciers in initiating the beginner into the general management of the cock bird, that it would appear as though the hen played only a secondary part in the matter or reproducing the various song passages. Could she but speak in words, she would say that if you choose indiscriminately from here, there or everywhere, one of her sex, and mate it to your good cocks, approximately 99 per cent. of your labours will be worthless.

The average fancier does not probe deep enough into the necessity of obtaining the suitable hen. It does not appear at all necessary to some that something more is needed than to stipulate for a Glucke strain hen to mate with a Glucke strain cock. Neither does he appear to understand why the price of hens should vary when coming from the same breeder's room. He seems to think that a hen is a hen, and that there is no difference between them.

Let me disillusionise at once any who reason in this way, by saying emphatically "No." The hen at, say, 5s., is not nearly so good as the higher priced one. The lower priced bird's blood is more tainted in faults. It is also tainted in having a poorer variety of song tours, and in the delivery of the tour.

Achieving the Ideal.

The higher priced bird has been produced from the plums in that breeder's room; birds that are free from faults, and good in the variety of tours and in their delivery, and is the outcome of careful thought and labour. Looking at the goal ahead, the breeder preserves those hens he should require for his own use, which are the nearest related to his best singing cocks, and instances are not uncommon each year of a close approach to our "Ideal" bird having been produced.

"A few Swallows do not make a summer," neither do a few faultless singers scattered over the length of England establish our ideal. Their blood is impregnated with imperfections which are produced, more or less in the issue of the bird's first mating, and their stamina may be undermined through interbreeding, but before any detrimental effect is apparent, the careful man will introduce fresh blood. I believe the time is not far distant when our ideal will be an established fact. Then the limelight will play more brilliantly on the choice of the hen from her pedigree. Our ideal is not "The Ideal." Far from it. We are advancing on the lines of the old adage, "One thing at a time, etc."

When our goal is reached, we shall see that what we have been content to make the best of will not satisfy us then. In setting our faces towards "The Ideal," the different song passages will require perfecting. They will, meanwhile, either be too high, flat, too short, or delivered at too great a length. Probably the present generation will not live to see "The Ideal," but we can anticipate the consolation of knowing that by our efforts, and labour of love, we have laid the foundation stone and have left it as a heritage to those who follow us.

Don't "Mix" the Faults.

A little advice to the fancier procuring fresh blood on the hen's side is to procure the best obtainable, and further, to give a little study to the cock it is intended to mate her with. I have previously intimated that the blood of all our birds is tainted with imperfections. Some are on the surface, or in other words, are produced in the song. Others are lying dormant, awaiting the first injudicious mating to spring again into life. Should a hen be required to mate with, say, a deep toned Glucke singer, with an imperfection in his song, ask for a hen whose sire is singing this same fault. A hen from a faultless singer would, of course, be more valuable, more so if the breeder can insure that the hen's dam and sire were bred similarly. Further back than about two generations we cannot go at the present time. It would be unwise to introduce a hen whose sire is singing any imperfection, that is not in the song of the buyer's own bird. To mate birds with the same fault is to fix that one imperfection more fully into the blood of the stock, but it would be sinking nearer to oblivion any other imperfection lying dormant.

Questions and Answers.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence,, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

IS IT A ROLLER? (D. F.).—I see no reason to doubt the bird being a genuine Roller Canary. Your description applies quite well to an ordinary type of broken green Roller. The Roller is a quite small and insignificant looking Canary, or a washed-out colour, and showing, as a breed, every variety of marking and variegation from self-green to clear yellow or buff. The bird is valued solely for its song; consequently practically no attention is paid by breeders to colours of the definite markings. For a fuller description of the Roller and its management, see the No. 10 Nutshell Booklet, 2½d. post free.

A PROPOSED BIRDROOM (R. H. E. Abby, Gorton).—You do not say what variety you keep, or wish to go in for, but still, I have no hesitation in saying the enclosed place shown on your sketch is capable of forming a very good birdroom for any variety you may choose. Practically every variety, unless they were unfortunate "coddlings," would thrive there quite well without any attempt at heating. Your sketch does not make it quite clear whether your propose placing the cages on the wall opposite the door leading out of the house, or the wall facing the door leading into the yard. The former position is the better of the two, and with box cages the birds would be always free from draught. As, I suppose, the light is equally diffused, being a glass roof, the wall on the left side of the door as you come out of the house would also be a good position for a stack of cages or flights ,and also the space on the left of the door leading into the yard, providing there are no windows or other obstructions to prevent these spaces being utilised.

DELAYED SUCCESS (Bad Luck).—Sorry success is so slow coming round your way, but hope your luck will take a turn in the forthcoming season. It is impossible to go into all the probabilities of your failure here, so I would strongly advise you to get "Canary Breeding for Beginners, 7d., post free, and Parts I. and V. of "Our Canaries," which our Manager could send you, and digest the contents between now and next spring. With the information you will gain from these sources, you should be able to achieve some success next season. I take it the birds in the attic are flying loose. If you breed under these conditions, two cocks will be ample for seven hens, and a dozen nesting sites should be put up. To have a fair chance of success, start with strong, lusty young hens of a known good feeding strain. It will be wiser to discard old hens with nothing more definite than a reputation of having reared young. It is impossible to say whether the attic needs heating. This depends so much upon its position, structure, and the way the birds have hitherto been kept. Very many birds, however, are kept in quite unheated attics. You must use your discretion in deciding whether you heat it or not. Fifteen minutes is long enough to boil eggs, and there is no advantage in boiling them any longer. The Java should not be kept among breeding Canaries.

BIRD-HOUSE (Hamlet).—(1) The structure seems excellently adapted for very efficient ventilation with little trouble. Place a ventilator, made on the venetian plan, so to speak, such as you may see in a railway carriage, in the centre of the front, near the ground, 12ins. long and 6ins. deep, and in each end, near the highest angle, place one 8ins. by 6ins. Over the latter, inside, place shields to divert the current of air away from roosts or nesting sites. (2) As you have 1in. mesh netting outside the glass ½in. will be quite small enough to cover inside, as you can place the inner wire to overlap the spaces in the outer wire as much as possible. ½in. will also do for the lobby you propose inside the door. There is no necessity to cover both sides of glass with wire except over window spaces, where cats are troublesome. (3) The house will accommodate 45 birds, but to allow for breeding, 14 will be sufficient—say, 11 or 12 hens and three cocks.

BREEDING GREENS AND CINNAMONS (Greens).—You say you wish to breed some "clear greens and cinnamons," by which I assume you mean selfs. The term "clear" is applied to yellow or buff birds, which are quite unmarked in any way, and is a misnomer in the way you have employed it. The two greens you describe are "foul" or "broken" greens, and without knowing anything of their pedigree, you run some risk in mating them of breeding young with objectionable light waists, and perhaps also light throats—both faulty points in self greens. There will, of course, be a good chance of getting a few sound selfs, but to reduce the chances of faulty young being predominant, it would be much better to get a self green with a sound coloured waist and throat for either or both of the birds you describe. The cinnamons you say are heavily marked on wings and head. Are the head markings round the eyes? If they are, the best mate for the cock would be a clear pink-eyed hen, bred from a marked strain. From these you should get a fair proportion of cinnamon-marked young, with clear pink-eyed and cinnamon-ticks thrown in. If, again, you mean you want to try for self cinnamons, it would be much more satisfactory to mate self cinnamons with your birds. By so doing you would get a proportion of selfs in the young, but the bulk would be more or less heavily variegated. In both cases the proportion of selfs you can expect, will depend entirely upon the way the parents have been bred.

BIRD-ROOM FROM GREENHOUSE (J.A.).—You have omitted two important details in your letter—all measurements, and information regarding the extent to which the greenhouse is exposed. Naturally we all would desire "the least expense and the best results" if this combination of favourable circumstances could be easily attained; but, unfortunately, I fear it is not. As you have the heating apparatus already installed I would certainly advise you to retain it and have the chimney repaired. But in addition to this you should cover the glass roof with thin boards and felt, leaving the "light" that opens uncovered to use as a ventilator in hot weather. Also cover the ends and back, except for a small window space in the end opposite the door, with boards, leaving only the south front with the glass uncovered. If you wish to dispense with the use of the heating apparatus altogether, it would be wise to provide movable wooden shutters for two-thirds of the glass front for temporary use in unusually severe weather in winter.

TAKES WEAK TURNS (Belgian, Fife).—Catch this bird and examine its eyes carefully in a good light. If there is a milky-white spot in the centre of the eye the bird is blind with cataract, and this will fully explain its behaviour, which in such case would be due to clumsiness rather than from weakness. If the eyes and sight appear quite normal try the following treatment for a month or so: Staple diet, plain canary only. In addition give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a spray of green food. The latter you may vary now and again with a morsel of banana. On the alternating days give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of chemical food and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with equal parts maw and gold of pleasure seed. Limit the diet solely to this for the time named. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a week, and afterwards give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight. See that the bird's claws are not much overgrown; give well-fitting and proper-sized perches; and keep cage floor strewn with clean gritty sand.

A SEQUEL (Fordham).—There is probably some very simple cause to explain the birds dying so soon after being placed in the new and freshly-cleaned cage. There is really nothing to account for it in your treatment of the cage unless you were very liberal with the paraffin and the odour of this had not passed off. Even then it would scarcely account for all the deaths so soon unless it was kept in a close, stuffy place with little or no ventilation. You certainly began to use the cage very soon. From one day to the next is scarcely long enough for a cage to stand for the fumes of paraffin and limewash to pass off in the weather we have had of late. I rather suspect that the actual cause of death was due to the birds being unfamiliar with the cage, and failing to discover the whereabouts of the food and water supply, or perhaps there was some accidental obstruction which rendered the supplies inaccessible. Just ordinary cleaning of the cage should suffice to render it suitable for other birds.

DUET FOR NOVICE (G. Snell).—(1) It is the usual plan to mate a yellow with a buff in nearly all breeds, the Yorkshire not excepted, and from this mating both yellows and buffs are produced. Indeed, it is quite the usual thing to find both yellows and buffs in the same nest of young. Two yellow or two buffs are often mated together by breeders having some particular object in view, but these matings are best left alone by the novice until he has gained a little experience. (2) The sexual distinctions are just the same in Yorks. as in other breeds. External differences are almost non-existent to the eye of the tyro, and nothing but close observation and experience can make one expert at sexing a bird on sight; even the most experienced may sometimes be mistaken. In comparison with the hen the cock is more bold-looking, pushful, and dominant; has a stouter head and beak, more full and bolder eye, and is more filled in on the under tail coverts, showing a more graceful curve in outline from the abdomen, and the colour, when not altered by colour-feeding, is more intense on the throat, wing butts, and lower part of back. The differences, however, are often very slight. The song is the best guide. The hen rarely makes any effort at singing, and when she does it is merely a more or less sustained twitter, whilst the cock flings out his notes in a full, bold and unbroken strain, and the throat will be seen very perceptibly swelling and throbbing with the effort. As a beginner, you should get and read "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, and study black and white plate in Part VI. of "Our Canaries" to help you to recognise sexual distinctions.

OUTDOOR AVIARY (A. or Q. H.).—(1) Am not certain if I have got your first initial correct. The aviary is really little more than a large flight cage, and as you will have to leave the young brood in all through the season, one cock and two hens will be ample to stock it. Being nicely sheltered, common Norwich, as you say you are going in for, should thrive perfectly well in it, and provided you are careful to start with robust, healthy young birds, there is no reason whatever why you should not be quite successful in rearing young. Hang from four to six nests in the enclosed portion, and keep floor in both sections thickly strewn with clean gritty sand, on which scatter a handful of crushed old mortar now and again during the breeding season. See that the birds you stock it with are bred and kept under normal conditions of temperature. From the middle of February to March is a very good time to put the birds out. We usually get an interval of nice mild weather about the time named, and you should take advantage of it to place the birds in aviary. (2) Your Mule query should have been written on a separate sheet, as these have to go to a different expert. See Mr. Weston's columns for reply next week.

A YORKSHIRE HEN (E. W.).—The reproductive organs of this hen are quite clearly in an abnormal condition, and I cannot hold out any hope of you ever being able to get any successful breeding results with her. It is very probable she may develop into a fair singer, and this is the only useful purpose she is likely to serve. Of course, I am taking it for granted that you are quite satisfied it is a hen, and not a very backward cock, though I see no reason to doubt its being a hen. If breeding is your object, then by all means discard her entirely. Get a healthy normal hen bred this season to mate next March or April. As regards the wheezing, I agree with you it "ought to be" curable, but there is often a wide gulf between what "ought to be" and "what is." It may possibly be due to an overfed condition. Keep her in a comfortable temperature and healthy surroundings, quite free from cold draughts. Give a fairly large cage, and limit diet chiefly to plain canary and green food for a month. Add a scrap of egg food or biscuit once a week, and a pinch of rape ditto—nothing more. In the drinking water mix ten drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and in the following week four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day. If this does not remove it, write again.

FLIRTING AND MOULTING (Greenie).—If you are quite certain the hen has only dropped the tail feathers, it would be worth the trouble to add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn to the drinking water for two consecutive days. Then move her to a distinctly colder room, being careful that she is kept free from draughts, and add 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepennypiece to the water two days in every three for a week, and afterwards every second day for another week. During this time give a staple diet of plain Canary only. Every second day give a pinch of summer rape separately, and on the alternate days a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and then sprinkled with soft sugar. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts inga, millet, linseed and teazle, and four times a week a spray of green food. Offer a bath several times a week in fair weather. If this does not bring on a more free moult, let Nature take its own course. Get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free, then you need not fear commencing in a small way, nor a large way either if you have the requisite time, and convenience.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

WHAT PARROT? (F. W. Stubbs).—Your description is rather vague; you do not give colour of beak, nor state whether it has a long or short tail, nor give any indication of its size whatever! However, you will be fairly safe in advertising it as an Alexandrine Parrakeet.

CUBAN MOCKING BIRD (C. Harrison).—I am afraid space will not allow me to give a detailed description, so I have sent you one by post. It must suffice here to state sketchily that: Above it is usually ashy-brown variegated with blackish-brown; two white bands cross the wings; outer tail feathers white; cheeks and under-surface of body white. The sexes are similar in plumage. The song of the hen amounts to little more than a call note. The Cat Bird (Galeoscoptes carolinensis), is dark slaty-grey above, crown of head black, tail slaty-grey and black; beneath it is light slaty-grey, washed with rusty brown at the vent. It is a N. American species, but extends to the Bahamas and Cuba. The song you describe about fits its vocal powers. Such descriptions are hard nuts to crack—there are so many birds they fit.

BREEDING LOVEBIRDS IN A CAGE (Ashgrove).—(1) The Grey-headed Lovebird is a stout fair-sized bird, and an ordinary breeding cage I consider quite inadequate for them, even if success is possible therein. They should have a cage 24x15x24 to 30 inches high, with a small barrel or box 9 to 10 inches square at one end, and at each end a twiggy branch for perches. (2) They adapt themselves to the English season; when they show signs of nesting you must give a small living branch daily, from which they will strip the leaves and bark to line their nest receptacle. (3) Not specially on this species, but except for giving them the living branch, treatment required is similar to that given to Budgerigars, and our Nutshell "Budgerigars"—2½d. post free from our Manager—should be very useful to you.

FOREIGN HYBRIDS, ETC. (A.G.W.).—(1) Hybrids are of value mostly for exhibition purposes, and as classes are very seldom provided for these, the demand for them is but small. The Hybrid Spice Finch-Bengalese has been reared on several occasions. It is a handsome Hybrid, but at the same time I expect you would experience difficulty in getting 10s. 6d. per pair for them. I have possessed them and found their eggs always infertile. (2) Unless your county is a Northern one, they should be safely wintered out of doors; at any rate you can leave them out for another month yet. You had better repeat this query next week, sending me a list of the birds and your county. I can then give you a more definite reply. Roofing felt fastened outside wire netting of exposed side of flight, for the winter months only, is a good protection, as also is the placing of several trusses of straw in the respective corners of the shelter shed, but their bases should be fixed at least 2ft. from the ground; spray out (loosen) the tops, and the birds will shelter among the straw.

A FEATHER PULLER (A. Crossman).—I cannot attempt to give you an answer till you give me the history of the bird while in your possession. How has it been fed and generally treated? Feather pulling arises from several causes, such as ennui, pure vice, unwholesome feeding, etc. Give the bird two or three doses of Dinneford's Magnesia—one teaspoonful in the usual supply (daily) of drinking water—with two days between each dose. Our Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free from our manager, would help you in correctly treating your bird.

SEXING BLUE-FRONTED AMAZONS (J. Smith).—There is so much variation in plumage in individual males and also females, that this as a distinction is quite unreliable. The beak of the male has a longer hook, and is generally longer and narrower than that of the female, especially at the base, and from a number you should have no difficulty in picking out the sexes, though with very young birds you may have a difficulty, owing to them being not fully developed. The latter applies to many other species of birds besides Parrots.

WINTERING BIRDS (Bird Lover).—(1) Pairs each of Red Rosellas and Ring-necked Parrakeets. In such queries, county should be quoted. (2) No, providing the shelter attached to aviary is weather-proof—it is the damp more than cold that tries the birds during an English winter. The size of shelter is also quite a factor in this problem, if small and ill-lighted it will hardly be used at all, on the other hand, if roomy and well lighted, all food vessels can be placed therein during the winter months, and the birds will spend most of the worst days therein. (3) If a system of hot-water heating cannot be arranged, there is nothing better than a small slow-combustion stove (tortoise stove), but of course this and the piping must be enclosed in a column of wire netting. Moreover, unless the weather is very mild, where heat is adopted the birds should be confined to shelter altogether and only let out during the wiuter for a fly round the flight at mid-day on sunny, genial days. Unless your county is a very northern one, the birds you name will not require heat.

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." AN AVIARY TRAGEDY (W.R.N.).—Such episodes are not uncommon in the experience of an aviculturist, and by no means always easy to account for; I am afraid only yourself, by close observation, can give a definite answer. It may be either a case of infanticide by the Budgies, or the Madagascar (Lavender-headed) Lovebirds, may be responsible for the tragedy; there is plenty of precedent for either. The more room you give the birds the less likely are such cases to occur. Nest receptacles are, of course, more isolated from each other, and nesting pairs are not such near neighbours. Have a good number of nest receptacles put up, both inside and out, arranging them with entrances facing the light as near as possible, yet not facing the nearest nest entrance, and also as far apart as space permits. It is a great thing for there to be an ample choice of nests for the respective pairs. If you get another similar mishap, cage up the Madagascars temporarily, and note the result—this should effectually solve the problem.

IS IT A PINTAIL NONPAREIL? (A.C.T.).—Yes, there is much variation in the depth of colour in individual specimens, and there is some tendency for the red to become yellowish when moulted indoors, but not to anything like the extent that is common with the Nonpareil Bunting. The Pintail is a Grassfinch belonging to the same genus (Erythrura) as the Parrot Finches. Your bird may be either an adult hen—very probably is, as it is now all but through the moult. The hen is duller than the male, the blue on the face of less extent, and the red areas of the male mostly replaced by yellow of an ochreous hue.

AILING RING DOVE (E.A.B.N.).—I am keeping your query by me. Please send me a description of your cage, size, shape, etc., and you had better enclose a stamped addressed envelope for a reply by post. If you send me this information I shall then be in a better position to give a definite reply. Give the magnesia regularly so long as the voidings are note watery loose. Fomenting the legs with hot water (not hot enough to cause discomfort), drying with a soft cloth, and then painting with neat whiskey, should give some relief—this can be done daily. If the bird can be induced to leave its cage for a fly round the room daily, it will be greatly benefited. Examine its mouth; if it is furred, or there are any indications of small white spots, then daily paint it with honey and borax, using a small mop camel-hair brush.

OUTDOOR CAGES (W. Axbill). I fear it is not possible to keep Waxbills out of doors in the style of cage you name; it is not large enough to supply the necessary exercise to counteract the effects of winter weather. If you care to send me a stamped addressed envelope per the editor, I will send you a rough sketch of a cage, which should give a reasonable prospect of success. If, however, you cover the back, ends, and top of your cage with roofing felt, and fit a glazed shutter to the front, you could keep a pair of Budgerigars in it out of door all the year round. The shutter must not fit so tight as to exclude ventilation For breeding purposes the cage you name would only accommodate one pair, while merely as pets you could keep a dozen therein. Such a cage, if made weather proof, could be outside from May 1st to Oct. 30, and kept in any cold room, free from draught, indoor for the other period (winter months). A cage to give any reasonable prospect of success out of doors all the year round, must be double the size of your present cage, contain a closed compartment for retirement and night use, and have a sliding glazed shutter fixed to the front.

AMAZON PARROT (H.H.T.).—If appearing regularly at seasons stated and then passing away again, I do not think you need be over-anxious. It rather points to sexual excitement, or something arising therefrom, and just about the periods you name it would be well to lower its condition a little by a course of Dinneford's Magnesia; at the same time you must exercise judgment and not keep the bird in a state of chronic diarrhœa. I should also encourage it to take as much fruit as possible. At the same time, so far as I follow your description, I take the symptoms you describe to be natural with an isolated bird, but could you be a little more descriptive?

JENDAYA CONURE (E. J. T.).—Get a bottle of Byno-phosphates and put half a teaspoonful into its drinking water daily; supply clean water twice weekly. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage, and before putting the bird on to the phosphates, dissolve one drop of laudanum in a little syrup, and add this to the drinking water, repeating this on three successive days, after which give the phosphates as above. The moult is very irregular during the first year in this country, some are already through it, others still in the thick of it; with newly-imported specimens it is often very protracted. You must not use a metal drinker while giving drugs.

EXHIBITING COMMON SPECIES (H.J.D.).—You will, of course, understand that it all depends what the birds happen to have to compete against, but the species you name are often in the money, and even at the larger shows a class is usually provided for common named species, which includes Java Sparrows and the common Waxbills and Weavers. At the smaller shows there are usually classes for seed-eaters and soft-bills, and the Pekin-Nightingales belong to the latter. Of course, it goes without saying that for common species to succeed, they must be perfect in every respect, of good colour and tight and silken plumage. Any advert. of show cages in our pages would supply you with suitable cages, if you name the birds required for when ordering—but generally a pale sage green interior and black exterior looks as well as any, and suit most species.

AILING BUDGERIGAR (E.M.M.).—Give this bird a small turf in its cage, such as is given to Larks; take out all stiff and straight branches, and put in the cage a twiggy branch, varying, say, from ¼in. thick to quite fine twigs, renewing this as required. Also, so long as the voiding are not watery loose, give Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water twice a week—half a teaspoonful should be sufficient. Foment the feet with hot water (hot, but not sufficiently so to cause discomfort), dry with a cloth, and paint with whisky, letting the latter dry in before returning it to its cage. If there is no improvement in, say, a fortnight, I consider the best course will be to destroy it. Put a few drops of chloroform on a sponge, or piece of cloth, and put this and the bird into a close fitting box, wrapping it up, if necessary, to exclude air; leave it thus for a time, and it will painlessly and quietly put an end to its misery. In a state of nature most species of birds kill their ailing kindred, and in the aviary the same also occurs if the birds are not closely watched. If you do not care to destroy it yourself (if such be necessary) your chemist would do it for you.

AILING PEKIN ROBIN (Mrs. L. G.).—After mixing the daily supply of soft food, lightly dust it with flowers of sulphur, and then stir again before supplying to the bird. Supply as much ripe fruit, banana, grapes, sweet apple, pear, etc., as it cares to take, and three mealworms, three times daily will be ample; any stray spider you can capture will be appreciated and do the bird good. Most birds go off their song during the moult, and many species sing but little during the winter months. Bathe the eyes with tepid water, dry with a soft cloth, and then again bathe with a rose water and zinc eye solution; do this daily till relief is given. Also offer a little milk sop while the bird continues unfit, as if there is any internal inflammation this will give relief—prepare as follows:—One teaspoonful of condensed milk, saltspoonful of McMin's Food, tablespoonful of crumbled sponge cake, and a tablespoonful of boiling water, and well stir the whole together till properly incorporated. These are hardy birds, but are very liable to eye trouble, if any draught catches them. Our Nutshell, "The Pekin Robin, 2½d. post free, from our Manager, should assist you in treating this species.

YELLOW BUDGERIGAR FROM GREEN PARENTS (J. M., junr.).—It is an interesting occurrence from imported birds, and though you may get others, they will not be numerous; the progeny from such birds would be mostly green. It would be very interesting if you get others and can put up a pair of these yellow birds and observe and record the result of their nesting operation. Failing to get a pair of yellows, then mate your bird up with the most yellow-green bird you possess. Such cases as you state are not uncommon among aviary bred birds, and are quite understandable, as many of them have been crossed with yellows; nevertheless, the fact remains that cross-mated green and yellow parents produce about 95 per cent. or more of typical green youngsters. Perhaps it is well to let well alone, but sopped bread is not any too wholesome, and seed and green food, with perhaps some pieces of broken biscuit (oats are also usually favoured when young are being fed) are what the majority of Budgerigars are reared on.

AVIARY QUERIES (W.F.A.).—I gather you have a glass roof to the shelter; this is not advisable, as cats and other night pests walking over same frequently cause a panic at night time. The shelter should be well lighted from the front and end, and the roof covered with felt; it is also much warmer so. Budgerigars are unsafe company for Finches, and sooner or later you will find this out to your cost; again, they make growing bushes and natural cover of any sort in the open flight an impossibility. Bishops, Weavers and Whydahs are improbable breeders in your aviary—not free breeders anywhere. The most probable breeders in your list are: Zebra Finches, Cut-throats, Java Sparrows, Spice Birds, and, of course, the Canaries and Budgerigars. The best nest receptacles are small boxes, with a round or elliptical hole cut in for entrance, husks, or Hartz travelling cages, the latter with all fittings removed and a couple of bars cut away to enable the birds to get in and out. If there are growing bushes in the aviary some of the birds will nest in these. Goldfinches should breed. Supply the following mixtures: (1) Canary and summer rape in about equal parts. (2) White, brown and Indian millet in about equal parts. (3) Paddy rice, hemp, maw and sunflower seeds. (4) Wild seed mixture. The Weavers, etc., should get about two or three mealworms per bird daily. When the Finches are feeding young, supply soft food daily. Cuttlebone, grit, and greenfood must be regularly supplied. If you heat the aviary it should be by hot water, and in that case it would be necessary to keep the birds shut in the shelter, only letting them out into the light during the sunny portion of genial days. Young Budgerigars are about four weeks in the nest, sometimes longer during cold weather.

LEMON-CRESTED COCKATOO (H. R. Tilswell).—Give this bird a seed mixture of one quart each canary and white millet seeds; one pint each hemp canary and oats, half-pint each shelled nuts, small maize, dari, paddy rice and sunflower seeds; one gill each grit (not sand) and chilies, the whole to be well mixed together. Also supply such ripe fruit as it will take, greenfood, plain biscuit, and keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Its cage should be sufficiently roomy for the birds to climb about in and to allow of two perches (preferably pieces of natural branch with the bark on), one at least 2 inches thick, the other about one inch thick. Many Lemon-crests become quite talented. As soon as it is quite tame, keep it in your midst where it will see and hear plenty; fuss about with and pet it generally, but in a quiet manner, also train it by the constant repetition of words and short phrases, and it should soon prove responsive.

GREY PARROTS (J .G. D.).—I have never tested the water with a thermometer. I always test it with my finger. The fomenting is to moisten skin and cleanse the leg and foot generally, and after taking off the surplus moisture with a soft cloth, at once paint with the whisky—it is likely then to take prompt effect. If you use a "mist" sprayer, you can give the bird a light spraying, which will damp the plumage without materially wetting the cage, especially if you use the sprayer at an angle and never pointing directly downwards. See reply to H. R. Titswell, re perches, in this issue. I should not bring the established bird into too close contact with the young one, as the latter may yet possess some latent infection; keep it at the other side of the room. You are treating the young bird about right as to covering up. Do not spray while any evidence of a cold remains. Re other points you raise, yes, you are proceeding correctly.

AILING RIBBON FINCH (R.S.C.).—Unless you have some local vet. who can see the bird (he could possibly assist the bird in relieving itself of the egg), all you can do is to continue the treatment already advised, and also to subject the bird to dry heat, not sufficient to cause distress, but at the same time a really warm position, and out of the reach of draught. A stimulant, such as weak brandy and water, can be offered occasionally, in lieu of the ordinary drinking water. As soon as the bird passes the egg, put her on a course of Byno-phosphates, half a teaspoonful in the daily supply of drinking water, letting her have clear water twice a week. A mouth of this should leave the bird in normal condition. There may also be some other complication, which it is impossible to diagnose from your details, which a vet. would spot at sight, and you should let your nearest vet. see it, as it is quite possible a slight operation would give immediate relief. I should not give any more castor-oil by way of the beak, but anoint the vent with a feather dipped in the oil, carefully inserting the tip of the feather in the passage and gently twisting it round, then leave the bird quiet for a time in as warm a place as possible so that its breathing is not interfered with.

PULLING ITS FEATHERS (A. McL.).—As it is a young bird, the feather pulling may be but temporary, arising from some skin trouble. I should give the magnesia twice weekly so long as the voidings are not watery. Also continue the Chemical Food, but when you have used up your present supply change on to Byno-phosphates. Also try and induce it to take a little fruit. The following seed mixture would be preferable to the one you are giving: One quart each canary and white millet, one pint each crushed oats and hemp, half pint each paddy rice and shelled nuts—well mix the whole and stir a small pinch of grit (not sand) into the daily supply. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Continue to use the paraffin wash and you can also give the bare areas an occasional dressing of "Zambuk." You might also try Spratt's "Pennakura," if the above treatment is not effective—feather eating is difficult to check under any conditions, once it is started, and you must persevere with the treatment. There is plenty of time, it will yet prove responsive to some extent if you continue the training. Give its cage a good scalding out with boiling water, well searching all crevices; there may be some minute parasites which come out at night and irritate the bird. Report progress a little later.

Answered by C. E. WESTON.

PAIRS FOR A CAGE (G. B. N.).—Your cage is not very large and three pairs would no doubt be the limit. Try Goldfinches, Linnets, and Lesser Redpolls, a selection which would provide you with plenty of song.

THE COMMON REDPOLL (H. England).—The "common" Redpoll is the Lesser Redpoll. The other Redpoll found in this country (a winter visitor) is the Mealy Redpoll—a very much larger bird and lighter in colour. As a matter of fact, there is no "common" Redpoll, strictly speaking, the correct name being Lesser Redpoll.

TWO ITEMS (G. B. F.).—If the feathers in the region of the throat are all of a uniform reddish-yellow colour, then there would not seem to be any fault. It is difficult to say, however, without actually examining the bird. Pity you did not tell me whether he is being colour-fed. If there is a small patch of a distinctly lighter tone of colour, however, then I should say it would constitute a fault from the show point of view. Sorry to hear about the Siberian Goldie, for I am afraid its blindness is permanent. Do the eyes appear normal (no white specks, or cataracts in the centre)? In any case, should there be no apparent outward cause of the blindness, then there is no cure.

IN AN AVIARY (Birdlover).—I recommend you to put the glass lights on top of the aviary at once. Small places are best roofed all in; damp is very dangerous to the health of birds. You certainly are not overstocked; in fact, your place would well accommodate another 10 birds. I cannot give a cheap recipe for a seed mixture, as all mixtures are dear when used for aviaries by reason of the waste due to the birds scattering them about looking for the favoured kinds of seeds. The really economical method of supplying the seeds is to give the principal kinds in separate dishes (say canary, teazle, summer rape, hemp, and sunflower), giving the other kinds occasionally in another dish by way of a treat, or change. Oats, especially the rolled kind, or coarse oatmeal, make an excellent food, and can be regularly given in winter with advantage.

A SOFTBILL HYBRID (E. J. T.).—I have not heard of a really properly authenticated Hybrid between Blackbird and Song Thrush being bred in cage or aviary. Many supposed instances have been recorded of the two species inter breeding in a wild state, but in the great majority of the cases it is quite obvious that the observers did not know that many hen Blackbirds are very brown in colour and may have mottled (or speckled) breasts, hence they thought they were Thrushes! If you wish to try for this Hybrid, I recommend you to give the pair the run of an aviary.

STOCKING AN AVIARY (L.A.D.).—It is outside my province to touch upon foreign birds, but Mr. Page will no doubt be able to recommend a few nice pairs, likely breeders, if you address a query to him. The Canaries will agree all right, but you ought to add at least another cock bird. Pairs of the following would answer well: Goldies, Redpolls (both Mealy and Lesser), Bullfies, Greenies, Linnets, Twites, Siskins, Chaffinches, and Bramblefinches. Don't put too many in, though; 12 to 14 pairs will be plenty. If you want to include foreigners, you could drop the Twites and the Chaffies and Brambles.

A BIRD WITH A RED HEAD (J. A. F. J.).—Your bird with a red head is not a "Mountain Linnet" (or Twite, as it is usually called). I should have said it was a Lesser Redpoll but for your statement that it is 5 inches long, which is too much for that species. The ordinary Linnet, as possibly you know, acquires a red head at a certain period of the year. The Twite does not possess a red cap; further, it has a yellowish beak, and the cock bird carries a distinct reddish patch of plumage on the rump. Cannot you describe the bird more fully and say what the chirp, or call note, resembles? Then I will try to give you a definite answer. We make no charge for giving information in these columns. We have issued coloured plates of Twite, Redpoll, and Linnet which should help you to identify the bird if one or other of these species.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Dr Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Moult British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

C. Barlow Massicks.—Shama died of lobar pneumonia, following retarded moult. It was a weakly bird, evidenced by its bad plumage.

Pate Finch.—Enteritis, or inflammation of the bowels, probably of ptomaine origin. There is no infection. To ailing birds give a little charcoal and bismuth in equal parts dusted over bread sop. Give daily in drinking water a few drops of Condy's Fluid.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

W. Crowther.—We are much obliged for the information you kindly send and which we have duly noted.

Repairer.—See that the wires are perfectly clean from rust and thoroughly dry. You may coat them either with Japan or Brunswick black, or with enamel, of any colour you choose.

W. E. Payne.—We are much obliged for newspaper cutting received.

H. Jackson.—Have dealt with this notion before.

Old Reader.—Are you having a little fun at our expense, or is someone having a little fun at yours? It is quite impossible for a male bird to lay an egg.

F. J. W.—Strictly speaking, "prize draws" are not legal, coming within the provisions of the Lotteries Act. But in such cases as the one you mention (drawing for gift class exhibits at a local show for the benefit of the club), no one is at all likely to take action.

H. Barton.—We must confess that we would rather be excused giving advice where other people's money is concerned. However, we certainly think your best plan would be to buy an established business. One or other of the large manufacturing towns in your part of the country ought to prove the best venue. There is competition in the bird trade, of course, but we are decidedly of opinion that there is room for really well-conducted shops.

W. Hamsworth.—We dealt with this idea in our correspondence columns some time back.

Truthful James.—We like your nom-de-plume, but unfortunately we are only mildly interested in your news that the "splendid competition" recorded as falling to the lot of the ring scheme at Clapham Show was in reality confined to 12 out of a total of over 200 exhibitors, and 26 birds out of a total of 654. We cannot tell you why the scheme is apparently a failure (we have our own opinions, of course). Why not write the paper concerned? Perhaps the catalogues you mention were incorrect.

Correspondence.

The Type of Present-day Norwich Plainheads.

Sir,—I am sorry to trouble you, but my letter in your issue of Oct. 19 was meant to read: "If we have two birds on the show bench of equal substance, and all other points, with the exception of length, the shorter bird should win, therefore they must be the birds to breed for."

A. Woollard.

An Appreciation.

Sir,—On the morning of the 16th, I took Mr. Yates, your post-mortem expert, the body of a little hen, of which we were very fond, and were greatly hurt when she died. Mr. Yates was an absolute stranger. I called upon him without an appointment, and I consider the interest he took in the matter and the promptness with which he informed me of the cause of death and free of any charge whatever, certainly deserves some recognition in the columns of Cage Birds, to which I am a regular subscriber.

London Federation of C.B.S.

The New Sec. and the Annual Show.

Sir,—The Council of the above has appointed Mr. J. W. Dewhurst, 52, North End Road, West Kensington, as show secretary for the second annual Federation show, to be held at the Marylebone Church Institute Hall on Jan. 17-18 next. All communications relating to the show should be addressed to him. The Council has also appointed Mr. J. C. Birch, of 68, Ashburnham Rd., Willesden, N.W., as their secretary, to fill the vacancy caused by my resignation. May I take this opportunity of thanking the Federated Societies and their members for the support they have given me during my period of office.

The Second Open Show of the North Wales C.B.S.

Sir,—I beg to draw the attention of North Wales fanciers to the fact that we are holding our second annual open show on Dec. 7, and have engaged one of the leading English judges, W. A. Cowgill, Esq., of Bradford. There will be specials in all classes, and good money prizes, also three novice classes and three two-guinea challenge cups, one for most points gained by two nominated Canaries, one for most points gained by Mealies and one for Britishers. All who wish to join, I beg to do so at once, so that they can compete for cups and specials, as the specials are for members only, and the members' entry fee is 1s., non-members 1s. 6d. Forward the membership fee of 1s. 6d. to Mr. R. E. Griffith, 5, Balaclava Road, Carnarvon. The above show will be advertised in Cage Birds on Nov. 2.

R. E. Griffith, Hon. Treas.

A Schoolboy's Experience of Canary Breeding.

Sir,—At the beginning of this season I thought I would like to try my hand at Canary breeding, having previously kept cock birds for singing, so I purchased a cheap pair of Norwich Canaries from a well-known fancier of Norwich, as, being still at school, money is a consideration with me. When the birds arrived, I put them into wire singing cages close together until they had paired up, feeding them on canary, German rape, and a little egg food. They soon got into condition, and on the 25th of March I put them together in a single breeding cage, one end of which could be cut off by a wire slide to form a nursery. I gave them some cotton wool and a nest bag, and the hen built a fairly good nest. In this she deposited her eggs, and sat well, the cock feeding her on the nest. On the evening of April 14, I gave her a little extra egg-food, and things seemed to be progressing favourably. But unfortunately I neglected to dip the eggs in warm water on the last two or three days before they were due to hatch. On the next afternoon I took a peep into the nest while the hen was feeding. There were two small lumps of palpitating flesh and two eggs. The cock had had the other egg for breakfast! As the other two eggs did not hatch out, in a day or two I broke them and found a dead chick in each. This may have been due to neglecting to dip them, or to the cold winds we had about that time. The parents fed their offspring diligently, but while one grew quickly, and could feed itself on hard seed at six weeks old, the other was small, and was further retarded in growth by being plucked by the hen to line her new nest. But the young one worried her, and she did not settle down properly, the result being two unfertile eggs. I put the two youngsters into a six foot flight, which I built. Here they both grew rapidly, fed on canary and summer rape. I fed the old birds up for a week and then the hen built again, and laid on May 30. This time I did not forget to dip the eggs in warm water on the three days before they were due to hatch. On June 14 all four eggs hatched out, but one youngster died when a week old. The other three (two cocks and a hen) came on rapidly, and in six weeks were in the flight with the two young hens from the first round. I separated the old pair, but I must have overdone the egg food, for the hen continued laying eggs at intervals, and I had to almost starve her to make her stop. I am afraid it will retard her moult considerably, for her partner and her sons and daughters have finished moulting. All five children are bigger than their parents, and I have had no trouble with them. Right through the moult they have had only canary and summer rape, with occasionally mixed seed. I have learned a lot from Cage Birds, which I have had sent every week, and I hope to breed with several pairs next season, and with better results. I may mention that I have not used any hemp at all, and my birds seem to get on well without it. I find the "Illustrated Ideas" and the "Timely Hints" very helpful, and have several little appliances made from instructions given therein.

A Visit to a Well-known Welsh Fancier.

Sir,—On Oct. 5th, I paid a visit to my brother fancier, Mr. W. H. Williams, Llangoed, Anglesea, and I was very pleased to see a few eye-openers that will make their appearance on the show-bench at our forthcoming shows. The well-known Hawfinch has improved after his moult, he is richer in colour, improved in markings, and better polished. The old Bullie is looking as well as ever. Mr. Williams has also a promising field-moulted Bullie, which will make a name for himself. One young Shrike seemed well ahead of the others; the Bramble has much improved in spangling, and looks a treat; the Yellow Bunting is well through his moult, and the Geldie very fair. Sorry he has lost his best Greypate, which was so often described as one of the best. He has been very successful with a few good Norwich, especially an unflighted yellow Plainhead cock, a stormer, ideal in type, plenty of substance, rich level colour, full of quality, grand head and neck, nicely cut away, the best he ever bred, will trouble the best; also a grand buff hen, and several others, promising, but not quite ready yet. The old buff is looking very fit, also the yellow. Pleased to understand that he is adding to the list in Borders; he should feel proud of the stock doing so well. Wishing him every success.

J. O. Williams.

Are Show Birds Stolen When at Shows?

Serious allegations by Manchester Fancier who has just suffered a severe loss.

Sir,—May I issue a warning to all exhibitors who are in the habit of sending specimens to the various shows up and down the country. On Thursday, the 17th inst., I staged a team of four birds for Hanley show. Now, although the show closed on Thursday night, I did not receive my birds back until 5.30 on Friday night, when, on being examined, it was found that one was missing—needless to say, the best of the lot. The cage-door was partly open, which looks as if the bird had had a hurried exit. When I tell you the bird won in the unflighted hen class at Leeds on Oct. 5, is the daughter of the hen which won me a first at Longton, and the grand-daughter of my winning hen at the Palace, you will understand that its loss is a very serious matter for me. That the bird was stolen by a very good judge, and one who knows a good bird when he sees one, is quite clear. The position it received in its class proves this, and if the bird was taken before your issue of that week, as I said before, he is an expert. On the other hand, if it was not taken until after your issue on the Friday morning, my contention is this, that after reading such a splendid report of Leeds show, someone thought they had more right to it than I. It may be argued that the chances are it might have been stolen whilst in charge of the railway company. Now, even granting that, the fact must still remain that it was the work of an expert. My object in writing to you is to warn other fanciers about this pilfering which is going on, because I believe mine will not be an isolated case, and if exhibitors are put on their guard such unpardonable conduct as this will be impossible in future. I have written, as I think, in the interests of the Fancy, and because I believe that such persons who are mean enough to purloin other fanciers' best birds should be severely punished.

W. N. Turner.

Leyton's First Open Show: An Appeal for Support.

Sir,—May I be permitted to appeal, through the columns of your popular paper, Cage Birds, to exhibitors in London and the Provinces, to support our first open show at Leyton. The committee are a thoroughly experienced and enthusiastic lot of fellows, and the secretaries are workers of whom any society may well be proud. Everything possible will be done for the comfort and care of all exhibits entrusted to us, and I shall assist to pack and return all British and Foreign exhibits on the closing night. Now, exhibitors, rally round our first open event, and make the occasion a red letter day in the history of the society.

A. J. A. Marley.

Traders: Wake Up!

Sir,—May I very briefly, notwithstanding your closure, refer again to this question? In the week ending Oct. 12, I wrote to six advertisers, enclosing a stamped-addressed post-card in four cases. Not one has had the courtesy to use the card I provided. Of the others, one replied that the birds I wrote about had been sold, but offering me another. I accepted the offer if I could have it over a certain day for approval—a fairly reasonable request. Result, no answer. I am not troubling you with this plaint for personal reasons entirely, though I feel most strongly on the matter. Your columns, and conversations with fanciers prove that the evil—for an evil it is—is very general amongst a certain class of advertisers. In our society we warn members of dealers or others we find to be shady in their transactions. If other societies would act similarly, and include in their black list, those guilty of gross discourtesy and other "unprofessional conduct," one phase, at any rate, of bird-keeping would be much more pleasant.

A Remedy for Linnets Going Light.

Sir,—I should be pleased if you would publish in your valuable paper that I have lost two house-moulted Linnets this season through "going light." I have tried a great many things, but have failed to find a certain cure. I shall be very pleased if any fancier will give me a remedy.

A Linnet Fancier.

Two Notable Rounds.

A Nottingham Crest Breeder's Great Luck.

Sir,—The following facts relating to the past breeding season might prove interesting to the readers of Cage Birds. I started breeding in April with 15 pairs of birds, 11 pairs of Crests, and 4 pairs of Yorkshires. All of them went to nest, and I only had one bad feeder amongst them. I reared 44 youngsters from the first round, and thinking I shouldn't have sufficient cages to moult them in, I stopped 5 pairs and started the second round with ten pairs. I bred 35 youngsters from this round, and had got the last lot pecking for themselves the last week in July. I have been a breeder of Crests many years, but never remember having such a successful season as this. They were bred in a room with a south aspect, and without any artificial heat. This, in my opinion, will take some beating—79 youngsters from 15 pairs (or, rather, 25 nests) of birds in two rounds.

How Can We Make Our Shows Pay?

Our correspondent says: By providing more Novice Classes.

Sir,—As both "Secretary" and "Ex Show Manager" differ from me in that they consider the Specialist Club's patronage a doubtful asset, it behoves me to offer up a little evidence in support of the stand I have taken in defending them. The N.P.C. demands no fewer than 16 classes before they give their patronage, and two of their shows have just passed in Huddersfield and Burnley. Sixteen classes constitute a remarkable demand for any specialist club to make, and I think that no other club does demand the same number; yet the two shows that I have mentioned seem to have been successful so far as the Norwich classes were concerned. At Huddersfield the Norwich classes averaged 15.55, while those at Burnley gave an average of 27.40, a result that can scarcely be reckoned a "doubtful asset." Reckoning the entry fees at 1s. 6d., I find they amount at Burnley to £25 1s., while the prize-money over the same section amounts to £17 1s., leaving a profit of £8 to the society on the Norwich classes alone. In this district, novice classes seem to pay the best, and while societies about here give more classes for them than anywhere in the country, I think they ought to provide more still. It is a common occurrence about here for novice classes to contain 40 in a class, the profit from which goes to help pay the prize-money in the sparsely filled champion classes. Last year, about this time, I gave the averages of the novice classes at Manchester show as compared with the champions, and showed where the champion had a much easier chance of making it pay than the novices. This year I notice they have added two extra novice classes. Last year at Burnley, only seven classes were provided for novices, and they gave an average of 19.57. This year they provided nine classes, which resulted in the novices showing their appreciation to the extent of an average of 28.29—a fraction below 29 a class! The champion classes at Burnley averaged 12.36, which just about paid their own prize-money, and I have calculated that the nine novice classes gave the Burnley Society an approximate profit of £10. If you ask me how to make our shows pay, I should say: Provide novice classes. I don't quite agree that, as "Secretary" says, we should do without catalogues. I have always found that with most fanciers, the next best thing to winning themselves is to know who has won, and that as soon as possible. But most small shows would find that, excluding rules and advertisement matter (which no one reads) the catalogue of exhibitors and the awards could be written on a double sheet of sermon paper. A good copying machine would do the rest; and a good secretary could have the sheets ready for sale fifteen minutes after the last judge's slip was handed in.

Some Favourite British Seed-eaters.

A lecture delivered by Mr. H. J. Chittenden, a well-known fancier and judge before the Leeds C.B.S.

The Time is Approaching.

The best time to buy Goldfinches is after the moult, when they have attained their adult plumage. I was intimate with a gamekeeper some years ago, and asked him if he would try to get me a few, and after a time he sent me along half a dozen of the best Goldfinches I have ever seen. I think he must have scoured the neighbourhood for miles around for these beauties. I sold two or three of them, and I believe they nearly all won at shows. I don't know how it was, but I never managed to get any more like them, but I have proved that in certain districts birds are much larger than those of another district, perhaps not many miles away.

Where Bullfinches are Small.

Here again you will find a great variance in size according to the district which the birds have been caught. For instance, I have found those which have been caught near Harrogate rather on the small side, whilst those coming from the districts of Malton and Skelton are much larger.

As you will perhaps know, an exhibition Bullfinch must be in the first place a big bold bird, a big head on a big body, with wide expanse of chest, and clean cut away. All his markings must stand out clearly, wing marks well defined, and good density of body colour; breast to be a bright rich red. A Bully possessing these fine points would be a treat to behold, but taking Bullies generally, I find most of them are only moderate. A curious fact about Bullfinches is that they are a soft tongued bird, and the only Hardbill possessing such.

Feed on plenty of mixed seed, with not too much hemp; they are especially fond of this latter seed, and speaking from long experience I do not hesitate to say that it is a harmful seed to all our Finches. Give them plenty of hawthorn buds; they are passionately fond of these. To feed in this way along with a few mealworms, charlock, shepherd's purse, and plenty of insect life is the surest way to get your hen Bullies into breeding condition for hybrid breeding.

Handsome Hybrids.

This species produces our best and handsomest hybrids. I have been very fortunate with my Bully hens, having had the satisfaction of rearing young from three different crosses. At the present time I have together Bullfinch hen and Redpoll cock. Previous to pairing up see that your hens are not too fat, or your efforts will prove unfruitful. To avoid this let them in a large flight during the winter months. I find by doing so they come into condition much easier.

A Giant Among Finches.

The best time to get our largest Finch, the Hawfinch, is when about eight or ten weeks old. At this age you will be able to pick out the cocks, as these are much better in colour than the hens. About August they will commence to moult, and a good plan to strike them is to leave out for two or three successive nights if the weather is inclined to be misty. This will generally have the desired result. The Hawfinch, like all our British birds, improves with age, and not till the third year will he be any use for showing, and for this he will have to possess size in abundance, with large broad head, well braced wings, bars well defined, bold eye, tight feather, and all his colours clear and distinct, with an even bib the shape of thumb nail, and beak dark blue, similar in colour to a Linnet's beak when in condition. He must also be fearless and steady in the show cage. The majority of the winners on the show bench are Siberians, the British bird generally speaking having no chance on account of being so much smaller.

Can it be True?

I have heard it said that all the Hawfinches that reach our shores from Siberia are brought out of that country secretly, and against the wish of the inhabitants—they are looked upon as part of their religion, hence the scarcity I should think.

The diet for a Hawfinch should consist of hemp seed, Spanish canary, summer rape, and green peas. They are also very fond of mealworms, and if given judiciously will keep them in good health. If you follow out these instructions and give a good spraying on fine days you will have no difficulty in keeping them in show condition.

Nocturnal Noises by Bramblefinches.

With Bramblefinches also size plays a prominent part; a good specimen should be nicely mottled on the head, and well laced with a sound colour. I have found they can be improved wonderfully by colour feeding, and have never experienced the slightest difficulty in getting them to eat it. For the show bench you must have them well trained, and in good condition.

A great fault of these birds is the peculiar noises they make in the dead of night, and if kept in company with other birds they are apt to cause a panic among them. I would not recommend you to keep them in a room with Canaries at any time; I have one or two at present, and only last night was awakened by them committing this unmusical noise. I was thinking of making a place in the garden for them, but the wife says I am not content with taking nearly all the house but want to take the garden as well (however, I think I shall get it).

The lecturer invited members to ask him any questions they liked, and he would answer them to the best of his ability. Needless to say, his kind offer was eagerly accepted. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Chittenden was proposed by Mr. Owen, seconded by Mr. Middleton, and closed an enjoyable evening.—W. A. Wilson, Hon. Sec.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

PATRONS—

THE HON. MARY HAWKE, Tadcaster; MRS. TINNISWOOD MILLER ,London; SIR R. J. CORBETT, Bart., Shrewsbury; HAROLD BLACKETT, .Esq., Sunninghill; E. J. BROOK, Esq., Ecclesfechan; A. EXRA, Esq., London; THE REV. C. H. RAYNOR, M.A., Maldon.

VICE-PRESIDENTS—

MISS C. M. E. HILL, Exeter; Mrs. M. B. PARTRIDGE, Worthing; MAURICE AMSLER, Esq., M.B., Eton; H. D. ASTLEY, Esq., M.A., F.X.S., M.B.O.U., Newbury; E. BAKER, Esq., Cowes; C. CUSHNY, Esq., London; J. MACE, Esq., Sheffield; G. E. RATTIGAN, Esq., London; W. H. RAVEN, Esq., Nottingham; MALCOLM ROBERTS, Esq., Baron's Court; LACY RUMSEY, Esq., Oporto; M. THOMSON, Esq., New Zealand.

NOTES BY THE SECRETARY.

The Norwich Distress Fund.

Since the last list the only subscriptions to hand are 1s. from Miss Ruby and 1s. from Miss Storey, both CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE members. This brings the total to £13 3s. 6d., and a cheque for this amount will be forwarded to the committee of gentlemen who have so kindly promised to see that the money shall be distributed in the relief of really necessitous cases.

When They May Wake Up.

In sending her subscription, Miss Ruby writes: "I am beginning to think that some bird fanciers will not realise that their hobby is in danger until a bill is brought into Parliament. Then they may wake up." We have in CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE a solid body of bird lovers who are strong enough to make their presence felt, and in the Associates of the League who have taken advantage of the coupons published week by week we have another thousand or more of bird keepers, who, although they have not seen their way clear to become full members of our LEAGUE, by reason of not being able to afford the subscription, are none the less bird lovers. Each of these has signed an undertaking to take every care of his or her pets, and to induce others to do the same, and in doing this each associate has obtained the signatures of five others to the same promise.

The total number of bird lovers now associated together, either as members of the LEAGUE, associates of the LEAGUE, or humane keepers of birds in captivity now runs into several thousands, and there are thousands of parliamentary votes behind our movement. In the general election which may be nearer than some are inclined to think, the opinions of these thousands of electors will be entitled to respect, and if everyone of the fifty thousand readers of CAGE BIRDS would support the LEAGUE, either by becoming a member or an associate, every candidate in the forthcoming general election would know that among the people he was canvassing were those who held opinions diametrically opposed to those of the few professional humanitarians and their mistaken, if kindly intentioned, supporters.

Preferential Treatment to League Members at Shows.

Last year, at a large number of shows CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE members were admitted, by arrangement with various committees, on preferential terms. At shows at which the admission was a shilling LEAGUE members were passed in at ninepence. At sixpenny admission rates LEAGUE members paid fourpence upon production of their badges. This arrangement proved very popular, and worked alike to the advantage of the gate and to the individual members of the LEAGUE. One of the shows included in the list was Enfield, and I have this week been favoured with a call from the Enfield secretary, who says he will be glad to admit LEAGUE members again this year at fourpence instead of sixpence, which will be the ordinary admission money.

I shall be glad to hear from the secretaries of other shows who will welcome CAGE BIRD LEAGUE members on similar terms, and the names of the shows will be published in these columns as last year. This year it will be necessary for LEAGUE members to produce their receipts at the gate instead of showing their badge, for the badges are, of course, no longer evidence that the wearers are paid members of the LEAGUE. Their subscriptions may have lapsed, or they may be associates who have not paid any subscription at all.

The Reward of Perseverance.

Many readers, in sending along the coupons accompany them with some little note, but about the best I have received, is as follows:

Sir,—As a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS for over three years, I have often thought how I would like to become a member of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and wear the badge, which so many readers are proud of, but the opportunity never came my way to become a paying member. I soon discovered the coupon in dear old CAGE BIRDS, and I made a start to save these, and finally I got the number required, and was waiting for an old friend of mine to come and sign the last one, when they disappeared. Any way, I started again, and did not cut them out of the issues. I got four put away, and my wife, who helps me with my birds, gave these four to some lady friend, so I was done again. I thought out another scheme, and it answered very well; and finally, I am able to post them on for the much-coveted badge. Thanking you for the many useful hints I have gathered from CAGE BIRDS,, wishing it all the success it so richly deserves.

LIFE MEMBERS.—A donation of not less than Five Guineas in one amount shall constitute the donor a Life Member.

VICE PRESIDENTS.—An annual subscription of not less than Half-a-Guinea shall constitute the subscriber a Vice President.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS.—The payment to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE of a legacy of £20 and upwards shall constitute the administrator or executor making the payment an Honorary Life Member. A form of bequest will be sent, post free, on application.

ORDINARY MEMBERS shall pay an annual subscription of Two Shillings and Sixpence.

JUNIOR MEMBERS.—Members under the age of fourteen years at the date of joining shall pay an annual subscription of One Shilling.

Leaflets setting forth the aims and objects of the LEAGUE will be forwarded, post free, to any reader upon application.

BADGES.

Neat and unobtrusive badges are supplied to members, without any charge beyond their subscriptions as above. The badges may be had either in button form, or mounted in rolled gold in two forms, one as a brooch for ladies or for cycling caps or coat lapel, and the other as a pendant for bracelet or watch-chain. The kind required should be specified clearly.

MEDALS.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition among CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE members at Open Shows. The terms under which these will be given may be had upon application.

CAGE BIRDS FREE TO PATRONS.

A copy of CAGE BIRDS, the official organ of the LEAGUE is forwarded to patrons weekly, post free.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is to sign the coupon herewith, get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same Singing Contests.

LEEDS.

Contest for quality, held at old bird house, King's Head, Shanuon Street, October 19, when 17 birds sung for 3 good prizes given by Mr. Wm. Tillotson. Judges, S. Hardcastle and W. Naylor; also Oct. 20, when 27 birds sung for 4 good prizes. 1, 3, Ward; 2, Butler; 4, Chadwick. Judges, A. Jennings, W. Sissons and W. Naylor. Open contest held every Saturday at 2.30.—Walter Naylor, Hon. Sec.

Quality singing Linnet contest, held at Prince Albert Hotel, Newtown, October 20, when 20 birds sang for 3 good prizes. Result: Ramsden and A. Binns shared 1, and 2; 3, A. Binns. Judges, Lorriman, Turner and Soloman.—J. Smith, Sec.

TYLDESLEY.

Tyldesley Linnet Club having been disbanded for a few months, has now started afresh, with 14 members paid, and promise of several new members. Will fanciers please note our new headquarters, Queen's Hotel, close to Tyldesley Station, and my new address? I would like Pendlebury to include us in their Manchester and District contests.—Isaac Harrison, Sec., 3, Lime-st., Tyldesley.

NORTHERN BRITISH M. & F.B.C.

Meeting held September 25, in Lockhart's, Grainger Street. Chairman, Mr. C. Petterson, who presided over a good attendance. Decided to open a subscription list to replace mule and foreign cups won outright last season. Some of the members present gave donations. I should be pleased to accept donations from any member or fancier for this purpose. Decided to have three classes at our next meeting: 1, Linnets, F.M.; 2, British, Housemoulted; 3, Foreign. Mr. M. C. Potts promised to give a pair of dressed horns for most points over the table shows. A vote of thanks was given to Mr. Potts for his kind offer. Re granting patronage to Blaydon show, our old friend Mr. J. Maddison kindly gave two medals, one each for Mules and British, and Mr. A. C. Young promised one for the foreign. A table show was held in connection with the meeting, Mr. J. Maddison judging. LIN.: 1, Petterson; 2, 3, Scott; 4, Watson; vhc, McGuire; he, Harrison. Class 2: 1, Young; 2, Scott; 3, vhc, Voult; 4, C. McGuire; he, Petterson. Mr. Maddison brought three drawings of the Linnet with him, and we had a judging competition amongst ourselves, and not one of us placed them right. Mr. Maddison kindly pointed out to us why he placed them, and with a few remarks regarding each Linnet, brought a most interesting and most instructive meeting to a close. Members please note that subs. are now overdue. The following specials are being competed for over the table shows: Pair of dressed horns, a pair of vases, cheese dish, and a silver medal.—W. Curry, Sec.

NEW CROSS AND DIST. C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held People's Hall, Tanner's Hill, Deptford, Oct. 5, when we had a grand attendance of members. The schedule for the annual show, Nov. 7 was discussed, and the members thought it best to condense the Yorks. and Border classes, and only have one section for each of these. The minute in respect of entry fee was not passed. It was decided to charge 1s. first cage, and 6d. each after, 6d. being deducted from the 1s. for the benefit of the society. Selling class 4d., 1d. deducted, the rest as prize money on the sliding scale. Decided to purchase white calico to cover the staging. During the last few weeks the committee have worked hard, and have got enough specials to cover each class. The two cups will also be up for competition for most points through 1912, and for the best Borders bred 1912. As usual we made another Border Fancy member, and are getting quite a strong class of Borders. After business, questions on birdie subjects followed. Each member wrote a question on paper, and put same into a hat, which was then handed round for each member to take one and answer same. Some of the members gave some good answers. Whenever a member failed to answer, it was passed on to the chairman, Mr. Hill, to answer same, who did so to the best of his ability. This seems an excellent way to help the novice on. Mr. Rowson brought a Canary alive as a question for the evening. The bird had two or three lumps as large as a marble on its body. The bird was passed round (in its cage), but the members could not come to any conclusion as to the cause of the lumps. A post-mortem examination afterwards showed that all the organs of the bird were in good condition except the liver, which was decayed.—Barton and Barton, Joint Hon. Secs.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Mr. Ransley presided over a fair meeting of the society at the Earl Cathcart, Osnaburgh Street, Oct. 5. A letter received from our esteemed member, Mr. H. Bell, stating he was a little better. The Chairman then called on Mr. F. Harrison for his demonstration on cage-making. Mr. Harrison spoke as follows: I want to bring before your notice this evening the extent to which a working man can go to house his birds in comfort, and at the same time to combine cheapness and usefulness. I don't want any of you to think that I am a carpenter, but I will point out to you how easily you can turn them about and thoroughly clean them out. I have made them so that I can feed and water my birds inside, but of course that is left to any one's taste. Now, as to the cost: I first get five 10ft. lengths of tileing batten, which costs 10d. These are for the uprights and bearers; then two sheets of three-ply wood, 4ft. x 2ft., cost 1s. 6d. You can see how I cut it up, the back is in one piece, and so are the sides. The top I cut in half, to allow of fixing the top runner firmly. The wire fronts cost 2s. 6d. per dozen. The floors and runner I make out of ordinary boxes, which you can get for about sixpence, and if you say threepence for nails, and sixpence for glue and distemper, that would make it come to about five shillings. Say that it cost six shillings to make them; even then I don't think you would miss it if you buy it bit by bit, as you want it. You can see how they are finished off, and let me tell you that all joints are well glued to keep out the red mite.—A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Harrison for his interesting lecture, and a vote of thanks to the chairman brought a very pleasant evening to a close.—W. Gilbert, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH METROPOLITAN (Open Derby) O.A.

Annual general meeting held Buchanan's Hotel, High Street, Edinburgh, Oct. 8. Mr. C. R. Drysdale, hon. president, presided over a good attendance of members. The financial statement for the year showed income was £29 5s. 1½d., expenditure £28 8s. 1d., leaving 17s. 0½d. to be carried forward. Mr. McLennan, auditor, certified the correctness of the books, and the balance-sheet was approved. The following were elected office-bearers to carry out the necessary work for the 1913 show:—Hon. Pres., Mr. C. R. Drysdale; hon. vice-pres., Mr. W. Thornton; sec. and treas., J. R. Meikle, 51, Lothian Road, Edinburgh; acting committee, Messrs. J. Dalgleish, A. Paterson, J. Hendry, P. West, J. McLennan, W. Allan, and M. Petrie; auditors, Messrs. McLennan and Allan. The Scotch Fancy classification remains as hitherto, but Belgians are now reduced to one class. The association has during the last five years done everything possible to popularise this section, but have reluctantly been compelled through the lack of sufficient support to meet the expenses to take this action. There will be no meeting in September for the receiving of members' entries for show. These now have to be sent direct to the secretary through the post. Re sale of birds at show, "should a member agree to make an exchange of bird, the transaction must be reported to the sec. at the time." The remaining rules were re-adopted without amendment. It was agreed to rent the Buccleuch Parish Hall, Buccleuch Street, Edinburgh, for the next exhibition. Judging by the good feeling which existed, and the enthusiastic way in which the members carried through the business, the officials look forward to having a good advance in the progress of the society.—J. R. Meikle, Sec.

City of Glasgow O.A. Grandly Supported

A RECORD ENTRY.

Last year's disaster retrieved.—Magnificent show in almost every section is splendidly patronised by bird-lovers.

The City of Glasgow O.A. held their 59th exhibition on October 18th and 19th, and it proved, we are pleased to say, a great success, being a record show, the entries numbering over 1,300, an increase of 320 over the unfortunate venture of last year. Norwich Plainheads were a great show in themselves, such a collection of unflighted birds never having been drawn together at this fixture before. The old bird classes were also keenly contested, and some gems were out. The sp. for best cock was secured by a tip-top buff, a bird of great size and substance, exceedingly well put down by Mr. Mabon, of Kelso, while the sp. for best hen was secured by a gem of an unflighted buff shown by Mr. R. Martin, of Kirkintilloch. The judges were Messrs. A. G. Cameron and A. Harris, and their awards were well received. Crests and Crestbreds, on the whole, were good, some sweet exhibits being staged. That old warrior of a Crest, so successfully staged by Mr. Howie, of Dunfermline, secured the sp. for best in section, while Mr. Noble's Crestbred cock did the deed in its classes. Mr. W. Paul carefully judged this variety, and his awards were well received. Yorkshires followed, and although on the whole the numbers were good, we expected to see more, as the Glasgow district is now becoming a hot-bed for this variety. The sp. for best was secured by a sweet yellow hen, of nice length and good position, in grand order. Mr. D. F. Webster judged, and we heard no adverse comments on his awards.

Some Life in the Scots Fancies.

The Scotch Fancy section saw a large turn-out. Yellow, Green, and Foul classes might have been better, but what was lacking in these was amply made up for in the others. The number of entries was ahead of last year's total by 20—very satisfactory progress; in fact, all through the collection the birds were, in point of quality, far ahead of last year, comprising as they did the very pick of the Fancy. Indeed, on no previous occasion has a better lot of Scotch Fancies been staged. It is no small wonder that this part of the hall was busy with fanciers and breeders on both days, especially so on the Saturday, when the hall was packed with people. Secretary John Young, who was responsible for the Scotch Fancy section, was well supported by a hard-working committee, who had all their arrangements made to perfection, a task which must have entailed a lot of hard work. The exhibits were exceptionally well staged. The gate must have proved a good one, and would no doubt go a long way to make up for last year's drop. The judges for Scotch Fancies were: Messrs. W. Rodger (Colinton), J. Dalgleish (Leith), A. Nisbet (Galston), G. Fulton (Partick), J. Park (Govan), and J. Ward (Shettleston). Their duties were difficult, but their awards seemed to give all-round satisfaction, being certainly well received. The best old bird in the hall was Mr. Dalgleish's famous yellow cock, and the best young bird Mr. J. D. Brown's yellow hen, the cup winner to-day; a most popular win, and the bird worth it; a perfect beauty. The same owner had the runner-up in his buff foul cock, a young bird of exceptional merit. Mr. Brown is the gentleman who a year or so ago purchased a pair of Scotch Fancies at the record price of £100. He is an all-round sportsman, and his successes to-day were very popular among the Fancy. In some cases really fine birds, which have already figured on the prize list elsewhere, were left cardless, which goes to show what a hard task the judges had to tackle in making their awards. Some good birds changed owners, Mr. Wm. Beattie taking the 5th yell. pied cock to Dundee with him at a fair figure; Mr. W. Thornton (Edinburgh) a yell. hen, also at fair figure; Mr. Andrew Jardine (Maryhill) purchased the first birds in the pair classes at a good price. We wish him good luck and trust he will do well with them. Mr. Smith (Howood) purchased the 5th buff cock. All the known fanciers of the day were to be seen in the hall.

A Collection of Gems.

Borders—what a collection of gems; all shades of colour were forward, and every class was very keenly contested. The B.F.C. medal was secured by a buff cock, well put down by Mr. J. Craig, of Brechin, grand all over and greatly admired, while the novice medal was won by the 2nd prize foul, shown by Mr. Campbell, and it was a gem, staged to perfection. Greens and Cinnamons were good, while even-marks were a notable feature. Messrs. T. Arnot and G. Hislop judged, and their decisions were very well received.

In the Mules and British we had something good to look at, though the clear, etc., Mules were a shade disappointing, and the Bullfinch Hybrid class low in numbers. No new crosses were out, but some good ones were amongst the winners. British were grand classes, and splendid exhibits were to be seen in all of them. The pick of the section, perhaps, were the winning Bramblefinch, Corn Bunting and Linnet; three outstanding birds of great merit. Lesser Redpolls were a grand class; we heard that a protest was laid against a certain bird, but as the owner had received his prize money the Society refused same. It is a pity, as it only causes ill-feeling in the Fancy. Softbills were a grand lot. Foreigners were rather few, and as they always make an attraction at a show the committee feel loth to reduce the classes, and it is to be hoped fanciers will support them better next year. The judging of these classes was in the capable hands of Messrs. J. Livingstone and A. W. Watson, and we heard very few adverse comments on their awards.

The Excellent Management.

The show was held, as usual, in the Taylor Street Drill Hall, a first-rate place for an exhibition of this size. The staging was A1, while the stewards and committee had everything in apple-pie order. The society are fortunate in having such a genial and popular president as Mr. D. Black, and he was ably backed up by Mr. F. Taylor, the worthy vice-president. The Committee are fanciers of the right sort, and kept everything well in hand, the birds being catered for in first-class style. The committee comprise Messrs. J. M'Ilwaine, F. Bullions, A. Jardine, W. Gray, W. M'Clure, G. G. Aitkenhead, A. M'Millan, A. Clark, J. Smith, A. Macdonald, J. A. Stewart, Jun., R. M'Kissock, W. Hutchison, T. Erskine, M. Craig, A. Sloan, E. Barron, John M'Lay, P. Houston, George Smart, M. Donaghy, A. Maxwell, A. Cant, W. Jackson, J. Fleming and P. Thom. The worthy secretaries, Messrs. J. Young and R. Beggie, were kept fully employed, and they got through their duties in masterly fashion. They were very hard workers, indeed, and most obliging, desirable qualities which earn them the good-will and respect of all with whom they come into contact. The show was splendidly patronised, and we hope to hear of a financial success.

Scotch Fancy and Belgian Classes.

Norwich, Crests, Yorks, and A.O.V.

NOR. CL. OR TK. YELL. CK. (16): 1, Maxwell, large even col., cobby, shapely, well filled in at neck, good head, neat carriage, wins; 2, A. Watson, large, good, well-made exhibit, scarcely so hot in col. and not just so perfect in wing carriage, otherwise well up; 3, Bishop, capital shape, good col., fine skull and neck, typical throughout, must have pressed hard for higher honours; 4, D. Smart, good one for size and condition, bit weak at top end and faulty a little in wing carr; 5, Woodhouse, small in build but hot in col., nice type, lacks size to help it further; 6, spl, Colley; 7, Grewar; 8, Sinclair. BUFF (21): 1, 2 spls, Mabon, fine large framed shapely bird, good feather and carr., well filled in, stands well across the perch, real nice bird; 2, Mitchell, all there for type and qual., massive well balanced, we shared in the opinion of many that it pressed for a win; 3, Gibson, not quite so large in build, fine type and carriage, neat head, short beak (this latter appendage does not receive the attention from breeders that its importance merits); 4, Mathieson, not just up to leaders in size, but nice type, fine tight silky feather; 5, Naismith, good size and shape, fine head and neck, good front; 6, Donaghy; 7, Scobbie; 8, spl, McCall. VAR. OR GREEN YELL. CK. (8): 1, W. P. Campbell, not just the substance that we like, but shapely and typical, nice qual., rather too fine; 2, Barron, similar in size and shape, good in chest and skull, not quite finished yet; 3, Houston, nicely got up, good in type and qual., neat in carr., might have gone up a peg with credit; 4, Calderwood, nice type, qual., carr. and col., well put down; 5, Holmes, very shapely; 6, Paterson; 7, Sloan; 8, Roberts. BUFF (15): 1, Griffiths, stylish, good qual., neat carriage, fine head and neck, set on broad shoulders, expansive front, a creditable one; 2, Martin, similar in size, grand qual., neatly filled in all through, fine top end, one of the right sort, must have gone close; 3, spl, Harper nice type and qual. fine feather with a better balanced top-end would take some beating; 4, Calderwood, nice type and qual., fair size, grand body substance, fails a trifle in wing carr.; 5, Marr, nice one; 6, Hutchison; 7, Bishop; 8, Jones. CLR. OR TK. YELL. HEN (13): 1, Aspinall, grand level even col., capital shape, typ al throughout, feather just inclined to lift at throat, still catches the eye well; 2, A. Watson, smaller in build than leader, but fine col. and qual., rather inclined to be coarse in beak, a much neglected point; 3, Calderwood, a little more massive but not quite so hot in col., still type and quality put it well in the run for 2nd; 4, Whitelaw, good size, pale in colour, nice make, fine carriage, wings, and tail, well placed; 5, Martin; 6, Potts; 7, Barrie; 8, Paling. BUFF (22): 1, spl, Barron, fair size, grand qual. feather, nice carr., very well shaped at top end; 2, Maxwell, good qual., neat at front, good top but a wee shade long behind; 3, Barrie, fine size and qual., wet when we made our notes; 4, F. Taylor, good size, nice full head and neck, cobby body; 5, Dobbie; 6, Noble; 7, W. Scaife; 8, Scobbie. VAR. OR GREEN YELL. HEN (10): 1, Blackley, short and chubby yellow green, broad, neat and well filled in throughout, a good one; 2, Parker, shapely, saddle mark, nice qual. and neat, not just so sweet in wing carriage as might be; 3, spl, nice thick-set cobby exhibit, showing too much brow and inclined to be guttered at side of neck; 4, Dowell, fair one for size and qual., but bit narrow in skull for our liking; 5, Maxwell, nice sized, short and chubby; 6, McNaughton; 7, Barron, 8, spl, Calderwood. BUFF (14): 1, F. Taylor, very neat, typical, stylish lady, sweet head and neck, but we failed to observe any variegation; 2, Barron, nice size, head and wings mkd., neatly folded wings and tail, a trifle soft when we saw it; 3, Todd, very lightly mkd., fine type, nice silky feather, short, cobby, deserves its place; 4, Webster, another really good specimen broken green, sweetly made, typical, neat throughout, hard up in the chase; 5, Marr, very nice var.; 6, spl, Hutchison; 7 Sinclair; 8 Dobbie. NON-FED COCK (23): 1, spl, Mitchell, massive shapely cl. yell., shown in the pink, a Norwich from beak to tail, nothing amiss, a proper foundation-maker, a credit to owner; 2, Lawrie, buff fine size and qual., neat carr., hardly so broad-fronted or finished as leader; 3, spl, c, Campbell, buff, nice type and qual., not so massive as those in front, still nice one; 4, Chalmers, grand yell., fine size and qual., right good one, hard lines to give way to buffs; 5, Laidlaw; 6, spl, Simpson; 7, Naismith; 8 spl, Hutchison. NON-FED HEN (20): 1, Laidlaw, fine sized cl. buff, very stylish and shapely, good head, neck, short neat beak, fine carr., clean cut away behind; 2, Martin, rare qual. yell. green, put down in capital style, cobby, typical, ran hard for 1st place; 3, Bishop, capital shaped buff green, type from top to toe, well holds its position here; 4, Chalmers, massive buff green, neat frouted, thick-set; 5, Smeaton, good sound col., yell. green; 6, Lawrie; 7, Condie; 8, Cummings. UNFLIG. YELL. CK. (21): 1, 3, spl, Maxwell, leading with a fine, deep even col. cobby bird, fine carriage and A1 qual., feather short, clean cut behind; 3rd large level-col., cl., bold, well-filled head and neck, with a little less length behind might have gone up a peg; 2, Mabon, good sized tick, fine col., nice make, fine wings and tail, bit browy; 4, Marr, smallish, nice qual. and carr.; 5, Smith, fair size, good col.; 6, McNaughton; 7, Hector; 8, Gray. BUFF (39): 1, spl, Simpson, nice tick, rare feather, fine qual., not just the sweet symmetrical appearance one likes or expects in the reserve for the medal; 2, Martin, fine one for size, type, and qual., broad front, cobby body, full bull neck, just a trifle weak at entrance to head; 3, 6, spl, Young, leader a really good all-round exhibit, stylish and typical, full head and neck and cobby made, laid down in fine trim and must have pressed hard; 4, Campbell, another nice one for qual.; 5, Sloan, fine size and neat carriage; 7, Barron; 8, spl, Smart. YELL. HEN (35): 1, Smeaton, type, qual. and col. all here, well put together, only fault inclined to cross at times; 2, Morrison, fine size, beaten in type and col. by leader, yet a good one; 3, Young, small but typical yell., green, fine broad front, short cobby build, a sweet one; 4, Buchan, real nice one for type and qual., neat throughout; 5, A. Watson, hotter in col., real good one all over; 6, Martin; 7, Woodhouse; 8, Dickie. BUFF HEN (42): 1, 3 spls, Martin, nice chubby, well-got-up exhibit, all qual., rare silky feather, stylish, shapely lady, put down in spanking form; 2, Morrison, nice one for style and qual., hard condition; 3, spl, Grewar, large, well-made, shapely lady, fine qual. and style, rare top end, just inclined to cross, otherwise very nice one; 4, Naismith, rather smaller made, but of the right stamp; 5, 8, Cairns, quite a taking exhibit; 6, spl, Holmes; 7, Noble. NOVICE CK. (22): 1, Melrood, large buff, fine feather, but weak head, grand body and style, some thought lucky

KELTY & BLAIRADAM.

Unaccountable Drop in the Entries; Fine Management and Excellent Classification Poorly Rewarded.

Annual open show held in the Gothenburg Hall, on October 19th, a splendid place, beautifully lighted, and of fine size. The birds were well staged round the sides of the hall, leaving room for the numerous visitors who thronged the show during the afternoon. We are sorry to see that the entries were down on last year. Scots Fancy were poorly represented; Borders had some grand birds, notably Mr. Spence's yellow hen, which won the Border Club medal; Yorkies were very short in numbers, but contained some good birds; Crests and Crestbreds were also down. Norwich were the best section in the show, both in numbers and quality. British, with a splendid classification (22 classes) only averaged about five, not a great reward for such generous treatment. The management was absolutely all right. Mr. Stenhouse, the President, was very energetic and the pink of courtesy, while the Vice-Pres., Mr. Fotheringham, backed him up ably, and Mr. McConville, the Treasurer, was also doing his little bit in his usual genial style to ensure the success of the show. The secretarial work was excellently looked after by Mr. Adam Dickson, who is a most popular and capable fancier, while a grand set of stewards gave the judges every assistance. The Laing cup for best bird was won by Mr. R. Jamieson, jun., with a beautiful clear Goldie Mule. Points cups: Scotch Fancy, Mr. Stenhouse; Borders, Mr. J. Anderson; Crests, Mr. James Veitch; Plainheads, Mr. Ramsay; British, Mr. Bell. Mr. Adam Dickson won the Fife Club medal. The judges were: Scots, Mr. Hogg; Borders, Mr. Stevenson; Yorks, Mr. Hunter; Crests, Mr. Robertson; Norwich, Mr. Martin, and Mules and Brit., Mr. Raine, and their awards seemed to give general satisfaction.

AYLESBURY.

Fourth annual show held in the Town Hall, Oct. 17. Cage birds came up well both in numbers and quality, and formed a great attraction to visitors. Mr. F. Rayner, the efficient hon. sec., spared no pains to realise success, and achieved his object. He was ably assisted by the chairman of committee, Mr. J. Stephens. The following stewards also rendered invaluable aid: Messrs. F. Bursill, T. Barnard, F. Cheshire, T. Franklin, R. Franklin, R. M. Gill, G. D. Meadows, G. Rayner, W. G. Weston, Riley, Fountain, and others, in various sections of the show. Some of the open Norwich were well-known winners, and in Yorks. Mr. Grant sent a couple of beauties from Southampton. Mr. A. J. Kilby secured the open special for best bird with a topping yell. green Norwich, a bird much admired. The society has amongst its patrons Lord Rothschild, Mrs. Lionel de Rothschild, A. de Rothschild, Esq., and others of the aristocracy of the district, who take a great interest in the society's doings. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

Newcastle's Record Average.

Huge Show of 1,600 exhibits: Great Crowds at the Mecca of northern enthusiasts: Interesting opening ceremony: Good advice from an inspector of the R.S.P.C.A.

When the members of the Newcastle Society held their seventh annual open exhibition, on October 18th and 19th, another remarkable achievement was added to their already long list of successes. The now famous Cambridge Drill Hall, the scene of so many of Newcastle's great shows, was again selected as the venue, and it is, without a doubt, one of the finest halls in the kingdom for the purpose. Large, lofty, well lighted, and provided with everything conducive to the comfort of both exhibits and exhibitors, small wonder that it is the Mecca of such a large army of cage bird enthusiasts, who congregate here every year upon the occasion of this great northern fixture.

A splendid schedule was again issued by the society, consisting of 80 open and 44 members' classes, and these, with a grand array of both class and section specials brought forth the splendid total of 1,600 entries. This great entry, although nominally the same as last year, is really a greater record than ever, seeing that the classes numbered 25 less than last year, thus bringing the entry per class to a much higher average. The staging of this vast array of exhibits was carried out on similar lines to previous years, with the same gratifying results, long rows of staging, three tiers high, running the length of the hall, with the usual breaks here and there to enable visitors to cross from one row to another with the utmost ease, and view without the least inconvenience the beautiful specimens in the different sections. This part of the arrangements was in the hands of the late secretary, Mr. J. E. Atkinson, and this popular fancier, in his new role of show manager, left nothing to be desired, being simply par excellence, which means that everything passed off without the slightest hitch. The splendid manner in which he attended to the wants of both visitors and exhibitors reflects on him the greatest credit, and simply endorses the high opinion we previously held of his great capabilities.

The Society's Lucky Vein.

We have previously commented on the fact of Newcastle always being most fortunate in its choice of first-class secretaries, and here we find the present secretary, Mr. J. W. Reed, although quite new to his position, taking to it as a duck takes to water, and getting through his arduous duties as though he were an old hand, all his work, even to the minutest detail, being carried out with clockwork regularity and precision. Only those who have had any experience of secretarial work can fully realise the enormous amount of time and labour that has to be expended in the working of such a large show as Newcastle, yet our friend appeared to have everything well in hand, and this, together with his courteous and attentive manner, marks him as a good example of what an ideal secretary should be. We hope, for the benefit of the Newcastle society, that they may retain his services for many years to come.

The assistant secretary, Mr. E. Coltman, is another splendid worker, and, like his chief, appeared to know exactly what to do and when to do it. He got through a tremendous amount of hard work in splendid manner.

The society is particularly well supported by local gentlemen, and Mr. A. J. Haggie, the popular president, has proved himself a real good friend to them. He is well supported by a body of 25 local gentlemen acting as vice-presidents. Mr. T. C. Crawhall, the popular northern enthusiast, as chairman of the society, leads the working committee, and shows them a good example by working hard himself. He is well supported by the able vice-chairman, Mr. M. C. Potts. The committee, a grand body of fanciers, consists of Messrs. T. Robson, J. Mackenzie, R. Young, A. Holden, A. C. Young, J. Maddison, F. Wyndham, R. Tindale, J. Milne, W. Scott, W. Curry, R. Hope, J. Brown, F. Laidlaw, J. Irving, M. Coxon, C. Farrer, W. Mackenzie, A. Hermiston, C. G. Petterson, and R. Topping. With such sterling fanciers doing their best it is not to be wondered at that everything passed off without the slightest hitch.

Crests Collar the Chief Cups.

The exhibits themselves were a splendid lot, both in numbers and quality, every section being well filled. The champion Norwich classes averaged 15, and the quality on the whole was very good. Mr. W. McGinn took the special and diploma with a very good unflighted yellow, following up his success last week at Morpeth with the same bird. The two novice classes totalled 45, and some really grand birds amongst them. Cinnamons, though small in numbers, were all there for quality, and the winner for best was a splendid buff shown by Mr. W. Dormer. Crests and Crestbreds totalled 35 in four classes, and though small, this section provided both the winner of the challenge bowl for best young bird in show, a splendid wing mkd. Dark Crest shown by Mr. R. L. Bewick, and the winner of Hindhaugh's special of £1 1s. for best bird in show, this, along with the "Kate Haggie" challenge cup going to a splendid Crest exhibited by Messrs. Dobson and Son.

Yorkshires were a grand lot, averaging over 13 per class, many of the exhibits being most stylish and brimful of quality. The winner of diploma for best was a splendid buff shown by Mr. L. Dykes. Green Yorkshires averaged over ten per class, the special winner being a grand self-coloured buff of fine length and position, exhibited by Mr. T. Rowlands. We thought this section very good in point of quality, many of the birds being wonderfully true to type, and full of col. and qual. The three novice Yorkshires classes were stormers, 24, yellow cocks, 27 buff cocks, and 30 hens, and some grand birds were staged here by Messrs. Deighton, Cattell, Bostock, Reed, Collins, Lyall, and Ridley Brothers. Scotch Fancies were slightly above the average in numbers (just over 10 per class), and the quality was of a nice standard, the diploma for best going to Messrs. Thompson Bros., with a charming, clear of grand size, with good drive and reach.

Borders made a really beautiful display, being quite one of the features of the show. The seven classes gave the splendid average of over twenty-one, and some real stormers were staged. The diplomas for best went to Mr. A. Gilchrist, with one of the loveliest yellow hens we have seen for some time. Green Borders were really wonderful, 86 birds in four classes, type and colour predominating throughout. The special for best went to Messrs. A. and W. Thompson, with a really grand self buff cock, but we thought he must have been closely pressed by the grand yellow shown by Mr. T. Parker, this bird repeating his performance of last year by again winning in the yellow class. Cinnamon Borders were a grand lot, 19 yellows and 17 buffs. The Novice Borders mustered 64 in two classes, fit to hold their own in open competition, and the manner in which the birds were staged reflects the greatest credit on their owners. Lizards were not strong in numbers, but what was lacking there was amply made up in quality, nice birds being staged in both classes, Messrs. J. Riseborough and W. Ollerenshaw taking premier honours, and the latter the special for best in section.

The Mule classes were only fairly well filled. Mr. J. Maddison's winning Clear Goldie-Canary is a real topper, this bird taking the special for best in section. British made a capital display, the field-moulted Linnet class being the strongest with 27 entries. The winner was catalogued at £1, and being quickly claimed, realised the price of 35s. at the finish. Other grand birds in the British section were staged by Messrs. C. Waters, W. Curry, G. Pearson, W. Gregory, A. Marley, J. Scott, who took special for best Brit., and M. Woodhouse, while the novice winners were Messrs. Jos. Carr and W. Gregory. Foreign birds were splendid, and attracted a great deal of attention, the many beautiful specimens being a great source of attraction to visitors. Mr. Young took special for best in this section. The white Canary exhibited by Mr. Kiesel, of London, also came in for a good deal of attention, this being the first time one of this variety has been exhibited in the North of England.

A Fair Recruit to the Hobby.

The show was opened by Miss Mary Baxter Ellis, daughter of the first Lord Mayor of Newcastle. The president, Mr. A. J. Haggie, occupied the chair, and in introducing Miss Ellis, stated that he was very pleased to do so, as she was taking a great interest in the Fancy, and was entering into foreign bird keeping herself. Miss Ellis, in a very nice speech, declared the show open, and said it gave her much pleasure to be present that day. She was very pleased to have seen such a splendid exhibition, and was greatly impressed by the beautiful condition of the birds, and the care and attention that were bestowed upon them. She was taking up the hobby herself, and hoped to be made a member of the society, and she had much pleasure in giving a donation of two guineas towards the funds, and would also give a gold medal for competition. Inspector Robinson, R.S.P.C.A., proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Ellis, and in the course of his speech declared that he wondered why more ladies did not take up the fascinating hobby of bird-keeping. He hoped that the presence of Miss Ellis that day would be an incentive to many other ladies to take up the hobby, and devote as much care and attention to the feathered beauties as they did to their cats and dogs. Mr. J. E. Atkinson ably seconded. Mr. T. Robson proposed a vote a vote of thanks to the judges, and this was seconded by Mr. R. Tindale. Mr. T. C. Crawhall then proposed a vote of thanks to the president, Mr. A. J. Haggie, and after eulogising his great services to the society, said that two great events had happened to Mr. Haggie during the course of the week. The first was that he had just become a grandfather, and the second was that be was exhibiting cage birds for the first time, and had been successful in winning a 2nd and a 3rd prize. Mr. Crawhall said he would leave it to the public of Newcastle to judge which was the greater event of the two! Before the proceedings terminated, Miss Ellis was presented with a beautiful pair of Bullfinches by Miss Mackenzie, the daughter of one of the partners in the noted firm of Newcastle naturalists, Messrs. Mackenzie Bros.

Faces that were missed.

The show was grandly patronised by visitors, many coming long distances to view the great exhibition, and we were pleased to resume acquaintance with many old friends. Two or three well-known faces were missed, however, notably Messrs. J. Currah and Son. These two well-known fanciers have emigrated to Australia since the last show, and we feel sure that their presence in the land of the cornstalks will do much to give an increased impetus to the Fancy out there. Another well-known figure was sadly missed, that genial and popular northern enthusiast, Mr. Tom Taylor, who passed away a few months ago, and during the course of the show we heard many expressions of regret at his untimely end, and many expressions of sympathy with his widow, who, we are glad to say, is still keeping up the Fancy so well-loved by her late husband. During the course of the show a good number of birds changed hands, amongst which were an unnoticed unflighted buff Yorkie, claimed for £3 10s., and a clear buff Norwich, claimed at £3 4s.

There was one alteration in the original list of judges, Mr. J. Patterson, who was down to judge Scotch and Border Fancies, being unfortunately unable to come owing to illness, and his classes were ably taken by Mr. Duncan, late Duncan and Logan. The judges were: Messrs. J. C. Barnes (Norwich), J. T. Clark (Cinn., Crests, and Lizards), J. Stewart (Yorks.), J. Duncan (Scotch and Borders), and A. Silver (Mules, Brit., and Foreign).

Before leaving the hall, I was informed by the officials that there was every prospect of the show being a financial success. I must also mention CAGE BIRDS stall. It was in charge of Messrs. Mackenzie Bro., and was well arranged and generally surrounded by visitors, who took great interest in the up-to-date books displayed thereon.

Mr. J. C. Barnes's Classes.

CL. YELL. NOR. HANLEY.

Exhibits of Rare Quality. Winning Unflighted Buff Norwich Claimed at £6.

Hanley C.B.S. held their seventh annual open show on October 17th, at the George and Dragon Hotel, and the room in which the show was held is a very good one for the purpose. Entries turned up well, about 360 birds being staged, and as there appeared to be a good attendance of visitors, the committee have good reason to be well pleased with the venture. The Yorkshire classes, under the patronage of the M.C.Y.C.C., were the feature of the show, being well filled with birds of the highest quality. Lovers of the long and straight ones met a sight to please their eyes. Norwich were not quite so numerous, but were a big improvement on last year's display, as the quality was of the best; some of the birds staged here will be heard of again before long. The winning unflighted buff was claimed at catalogue price, £6, and with ordinary luck he should be a good bargain to his plucky purchaser. British were not numerous, but the quality of the exhibits in this section was exceptionally good, several recent winners having to be content with minor honours. The hardworking and able committee comprised Messrs. G. Lawton, T. Bates, J. Williamson, S. Pygott, T. Newman, T. Dunn, S. Wild, S. Taylor, J. Charlesworth, T. L. Swetnam, H. Cooke, B. Peake, W. Evans, W. Llewellyn, J. Toplass, W. T. Lowndes, and S. Brough. The show was very well managed indeed, the committee being very fortunate in having the services of Mr. C. J. Robinson, who is one of the oldest fanciers in the district, and who carried out the secretarial duties in a most satisfactory manner. Mr. A. Hirst judged, his awards giving general satisfaction.

BLACKWOOD (Mon.

Eighth Annual Show (in conjunction with Poultry, etc.), held in the Corn[illegible] Hall, October 12th, in grand weather. Though a [illegible] and with only three Cage [illegible] ours, our friend out to be the largest and best [illegible] yet seen at this fixture. The hall, though small, was just large enough to accommodate the entry, and quite the best place was found for the cage birds on the platform, all to themselves, with a beautiful light. There is a talk of running an open show in the near future, when we think the committee may with advantage add at least an unflighted class in the Nor. and Yorks. sections. The same remark will also apply to several other shows around these parts. Right here we should like to warn exhibitors to be more careful in tying on their cage tickets, not only on the right cages, but also in the right places (in York hires on the drink hole end), quite a number of birds were found to be in their wrong classes, but fortunately corrected in time. The stewards, Messrs. Palmer, Hunt, Davis, and Poole, together with the hardworking and able secretary, Mr. W. H. Coleman, seemed eager to oblige all and sundry, and everything passed off very smoothly, notwithstanding that judging was late starting, owing to several late arrivals. The decision of the committee in withholding 1st, and giving instead two 2nds, etc., in certain classes is rather unique, and was done to save the society (which appears to be in rather low water) from getting deeper into the mire. (The rules have no bearing on the matter). The gate, when we left, gave every promise of their retrieving their losses. Special for best Nor., and cup for best bird, was won by Mr. W. Davies (Aberaman) with a bouncing yell. Nor. cock. Special best Yorks., also for best hen, by Mr. H. Parfitt, with a very smart yell. wing-ticked bird, much admired. Mr. E. J. Davies, Cardiff, made the awards and appeared to give entire satisfaction.

NOVICES TO THE RESCUE!

At the above old established society's annual show, on October 19th, in the Congregational Schools, 444 birds were staged in the 29 classes provided, an average of slightly over 15 per class, the quality being of the highest throughout. Mr. Herbert Sutcliffe, junior member of the well-known firm of Messrs. Sutcliffe and Son, officiated in the capacity of judge, and he was assisted by Mr. T. Bennett, Lidgett Green, both giving every satisfaction in their awards. The latter took unflighted hens, selling, and Norwich novice classes, and Mr. Sutcliffe the remainder. The room is the very best that can be had for the purposes of a show, splendidly lighted, lofty, free from draughts, and within easy reach by train or tram of the principal districts of Canarydom. Mr. J. Holroyd, the popular secretary, is well versed in the work appertaining to a show, and had all things in splendid order. He was ably assisted by Mr. B. Hainsworth, whilst the president, Mr. F. Self, was here, there, and everywhere, attending to the wants of exhibits and exhibitors, and Messrs. F. Self, A. Lister, G. Snead, J. Shackleton, J. Hainsworth, W. Ormondroyd, A. Sykes, and others, rendered valuable aid in making the show a success. Prize money was paid out on the Saturday afternoon to the winners present, a point that should not be overlooked by intending exhibitors next year. There was a good attendance of visitors during the afternoon, and several meetings in connection with specialist clubs were held in conjunction with it.

BURNLEY.

Wonderful Canary Sections

Again Remarkable Entries in the Amateur and Novice Classes.

Twenty-sixth Annual Show, held Fullage Assembly Rooms, October 18th and 19th. This is an ideal hall for the exhibition of cage birds, being on the ground flood, well lighted, and free from draughts. Entries totalled 500. There was a grand display of both Yorks. and Nor. British and Foreign came up badly, only one class filling. We think if the committee will be more liberal with their classification this section would do better. Mr. F. Cunliffe makes an ideal secretary, he seems to have everything in systematical order. He was well backed up by an excellent committee, comprising president R. Braybrook, vice-pres. J. Hayhurst, treas. G. Watson, and Messrs. Holden, Seed, Smalley, Taylor, Lingard, Moorhouse, Entwistle, Edmondson, Huggins, Baker, Barwise, and Clayton. The show was opened by the Mayor, Ald. Keighley. There was a good attendance of visitors, and the show proved a complete success. Mr. J. Trengove judged Nor., and Mr. J. H. Roe the remainder. Sandiford's special was won by W. Grimshaw. The Arbuthnot rose bowl and Hyde's special by Mr. Lingard.

Record Breaking at Burton-on-Trent.

Fine All-Round Display: Norwich Plainheads a Grand Section

The sixth annual show proved a record in every way. The entry was 450, which is more by a hundred than last year. The quality of the exhibits was the feature of the show; we have never seen anything like this at Burton. Mr. A. Wood, the hardworking secretary, is to be highly congratulated on getting such a show together; he makes an ideal secretary, and sits at the table just as if there is no worry at all—he finds it pays to keep cool. Mr. Wood was well backed up by a splendid committee, viz., Colonel Ratcliffe, President; vice-presidents, Messrs. W. J. Read and E. Street; chairman, Dr. Dockerty; vice-chairman, Mr. H. Hathaway; treas., E. Bond, and Messrs. England, Ford, Kirkland, Lee, Springhall, Elliott, Bond, Crouch, Morris, Mason, Freer, Ames, Oldham and Emery, who all worked hard for the benefit of the society. The birds were as usual staged on the "Bass" barrels, which make an ideal staging, and no fear of getting pushed over. There was a rare crowd of fanciers present from all over the Midlands, among whom wo noticed the genial Mr. F. Fox, Messrs. Eckersley, Halse, Hanford, Caremon, and many more, whom we cannot just think of. Mr. John Robson judged, and had a very hard day's work, which made him very late in the afternoon before finishing. Norwich were an excellent collection, the unflighted classes being keenly contested. The winner in the unflighted yell. class has, if we are not mistaken, a great future. Cinnamons were also grand, as were Yorkshires. The British section contained some really fine birds; in fact, the finest the county can produce. We regret to see the foreign class so poorly filled, as at one time Burton used to be a noted show for foreign birds.

HYSON GREEN (Notts).

Annual show at the Cricket Players' Hotel, Linsley Street, Oct. 12, and a very nice show, too. Although entries hardly came up to last year, the quality was very good indeed, and many very promising birds were staged. The society have a fine secretary in Mr. W. Cottingham, who has had many years' experience, and has the thing at his finger tips. It was somewhat of an inconvenience to visitors to find no catalogues. If they were only inst in card style, the writer is sure they would be a success. Norwich were a capital collection. Some were hardly through the moult, but were showing great promise. Crests and C.B.'s were hardly so good as have been seen here, but it is a little early for this variety. British and foreign classes did not come up to expectations, but the quality was nice. We think the society would find a little advertising money well spent. Mr. J. Goode judged, and no complaints were heard.

BEDFORD.

Tenth annual show of the Bedford and Bed's. C.B.S. was held in the Town Hall, October 17th. Mr. J. H. Roe, of Birmingham, judged. The six open classes were well filled, and included a number of very choice specimens from such well-known exhibitors as Messrs. W. H. Howe, T. Irons, A. Lewin, E. J. Rippon, J. Thomas, etc. Special mention may be made of Mr. Timæus's foreigners, all of which were in the very fine t condition, and worth going a long way to see. Local classes were also well patronised. The show was opened by the Mayor of Bedford (Mr. W. Roff), who congratulated the society upon the quality of the exhibits.

The Critique.

YELL. NOR. (11): 1, Howe, wonderful sized yell., excels in body properties, very rich in plumage; 2, Lewin, a smaller bird, just a bit heavy in brow, nice qual. and good condition; 3, he, Irons, lovely head, very smart, exc s in col. and qual.; 4, Rippon, falls a bit in wing carr., but good in col. and qual.; vhc, Hodder; c, Thomas. BUFF (20): 1, Howe, rare big bird, correct type, teems with quality; 2, vhc, Rippon, put down in prime condition, correct type, rich in col.; 3, Bushby, paler in col., excellent type and qual.; 4, Hodder, nice short, cobby bird of rare col., hardly so light as winners; he, Bonnde; c, Irons. NOR. HEN (19): 1, he, Irons, sweetly pretty clear yell., very smart, good col.; 2, Wren, cl. buff, bit pale in col., but full of bloom, and excellent type; 3, Howe, cl. yell., well made bird, and full of qual.; 4, Lewin, mkd. buff, correct type, nice qual.; vhc, Thomas; c, Fennell. YORKS. (17): 1, Mrs. Ballard, tkd. yell., nice length, well trained, stands well on perch, nice qual.; 2, c, Smart, cl. yell., trifle longer than winner, close run for premier honours; 3, 4, Thomas, very fine cl. buff, correct type, prime condition; 4, cl. yell., of nice length and qual., crosses wings a little, which no doubt put it back; vhc, Dicker; he, Muxlow. SELL. £1 (10): 1, Bateman, mkd. yell. Nor., good col.; 2, Dicker, two nice buff Yorks.; 3, Gentle, cl. yell. Nor., nice type; vhc, Corrie; he, Notley; c, Wilson. FOR. (8): All prizes to Mr. Timæus; 1, charming Paradise Whydah in wonderful plumage; 2, pair of Black-faced Love birds, tight as wax; 3, pair of Pekin Robins, lovely col.; 4, excellent Queen Whydah in the best of condition. Mr. Timæus also showed pairs of Longtail Grass Finches, Ruficanda Finches, Cordon Bleus, and Diamond Finch, all in prime condition. LOCAL: Mr. A. Bushby won Sandiford's special for hottest fed bird; Mr. A. Keech, silver cup, for most points in young Nor., this being the third time, and it now becomes his property. YELL. NOR. (13): 1, Bushby, fine large bird, good col., has "duck wings" which rather spoil his general appearance; 2, vhc, Keech, nice short mkd. yell., very warm in col., must have run very close for special; 3, he, Smith, cl. yell., nice qual.; 4, Corrie, bigger bird of rare type, carries one wing badly, or must have been higher; c, Gentle. BUFF. (19): 1, Pedder, rare bodied bird of good col., and in prime condition; 2, 3, Keech, mkd. on head, well proportioned, rare size and qual.; 3, a smaller bird of excellent type, excels in head and richness of plumage; 4, Millard, one of the largest in class, well made, good col., perhaps a bit too long; vhc, Osborn; he, Gentle; c, Smith. YELL. EAST LOTHIAN, HADDINGTON.

Second Annual Fixture a Gratifying Success.

Second annual fixture, Oct. 19. Entries were about seventy above last year's total, which is very gratifying indeed, considering the large amount of shows being held on the same day, and the officials are to be congratulated on their success. The Scotch Fancy Section showed the most marked advance. Some capital exhibits were forwarded from a few well-known fanciers, the most prominent being Mr. John Dalgleish of Leith, who, with his six entries, scored in every class. The Coronation Cup for best young bird in S.F. Section was won by Mr. J. Gordon, Macmerry, with a bird of good properties, with plenty of size and substance. The B.F.C.C. Medal was won by Mr. H. Bennet, Kelso, with a clinking buff cock shown in faultless condition. Special for best British went to a Jay belonging to Mr. Henry Craft, Leith, shown in splendid plumage. Mr. Syke, Middlesbrough, won special for most points in British Section. The hall is an ideal one for such a purpose, there being no draughts and plenty of light. The management of the show was in the capable hands of Mr. J. M'Holme, secretary, ably assisted by a hard-working committee of genuine fanciers, who did everything in their power to make the show a success and looked well after the exhibits. We hope to see in the future a steady increase, as the society is well worthy of the support of fanciers and exhibitors. There was a capital attendance of the general public. The judges were:—Scotch Fancies and Borders, Mr J. Thomson, Newtongrange; Norwich and British, Mr. G. Brown Leith; and their awards were well received. The Hall Blyth Cup for most points was won by Mr. Jas. McHolme, secretary, and silver teapot for most points in Norwich and Border Fancy Sections by Mr. Chas. Barrie, Haddington.

JOHNSTONE (N.B.).

The annual show of the Johnstone Society was held in the Town Hall, Oct. 19. Entries were considerably in advance of last year. Mr. McMecking (Glasgow) judged, his awards meeting with general satisfaction. Secretary D. P. Ritchie, assisted by an able committee, had all arrangements made to ensure success, and, judging from the busy aspect of the hall, and the bumper entry, the results of their efforts, must have been satisfactory. Visitors turned out well, and the gate must have been a good one.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

A Good and Excellently Managed Show.

The seventh annual show was held Oct. 19th in the Victoria Hall, a capital place for a show, being lofty, well lighted and ventilated, and free from all draughts. The staging was very neat, and every exhibit could be seen in comfort. The management was in the capable hands of Mr. A. Wake, hon. sec., ably assisted by Mrs. Wake, and they are entitled to every credit for the most excellent arrangements made for the comfort not only of the exhibits, but also the visitors to the show. They were ably supported by Messrs. J. Ibbison (chairman), C. W. Watson (vice-chairman), W. Thompson, T. Wells, T. Gibson, J. Carr, W. Appleyard, R. Rand, J. Greenfield, F. Hall, A. Milburn, T. Wiggins, J. Harrison, Mrs. H. Turner, H. Metcalfe, and J. Swinbo. Yorkshire took pride of place as regards quantity and quality, and some very fine birds were staged by Messrs. Barker, E. E. Pyman, E. Clegg, and Cook and Hood, who, amongst them took most of the spoil. Norwich, though behind in numbers, were a nice lot, and had many admirers. Crest classes, for this district, were well filled, and contained birds of great merit. Mules and British were, as is usual up here, very strong, and competition was very keen. The winning Linnet was quickly claimed at catalogue price —£2 10s. In the selling classes were many cheap birds, and several cages were decorated with claimed tickets. Foreigners added to the attraction of a most successful show. The placing of the tickets was in the hands of Mr. W. A. Cowgill (Canaries) and Mr. F. Marwood (Mules and Brit.), and their awards were well received.

ASHTON UNDER LYNE O.S.

Final table show of the season held at head quarters, the P.S.A. rooms, Oct. 12th. Considering the early date and the bad luck experienced by many of the members, the muster of 77 exhibits was gratifying. Judging was in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Barraclough, of Hyde, and his awards were generally received as satisfactory.

SITTINGBOURNE C.B.S.

Table show held October 7th, when there were over 60 birds staged, including some very fine specimens. In all sections quality and type have much improved since this Society was first formed, in 1910. In the Canary section Messrs. Olive, Clayton, Broadbridge, Whatford, and Attwood shared the leading points with some good specimens. In the British bird section Messrs. Grant, Attwood, and Jacobs took the lead. Mr. Grant exhibited a fine specimen of a starling, of which more will be heard during the coming show season. Mr. Grant also showed a splendid Pin-tailed Whydah. Mr. F. J. Wickham, Chatham, placed the cards:—NOR. YELL. (cock): 1, Broadbridge; 2, Whatford; 3, Attwood. BUFF: 1, Whatford; 2, Churchill; 3, Wakelin; 4, Attwood; vhc, Olive; hc, Broadbridge. TKD. TORQUAY.

Late Entry Nuisance Responsible for Unfortunate Happenings.

Fanciers' Show, held October 17th, in the Bath Saloon. The committee did well in adding an Open Cage Bird Section, which proved a strong attraction; they were staged to perfection, and the birds were thoroughly well looked after. Mr. J. R. Fox had charge of the section; no one could have worked harder, as when we commenced to take notes just after midday Mr. Fox appeared to be working single handed a most unthankful task. Some of the open classes were not judged until three o'clock, just three hours after opening time, the result being that mistakes that were made could not be satisfactorily altered, as Mr. Tope had left the hall, having had a still task in taking so many sections. The secretary, Mr. Walker, is not to be blamed for the mistakes, as a more efficient secretary would be hard to find. The usual late entries caused most of the trouble, and it would be advisable that these be not accepted another year, after the catalogue is printed. Owing to these late entries some of the awards could not be traced in the catalogue, but these were kindly supplied to us by Mr. Fox, as Mr. Walker was dealing with about 1,000 exhibits in another part of the hall. A most unfortunate happening occurred with two of these late entries; one, a yellow hen, showing mealing, got put in a buff class, with the result that two classes had to be re-judged, and then wrongly, as Mr. Redwood's var. buff hen, entered in the hen class, got among the buff cocks and stood 1, and special. This bird was taken back to the hen class with the result that this class stood with two first prize birds. Then it was discovered that the judge had awarded Mr. Boundy's winning yellow Yorkshire special for best in show, although it had lost to a buff for a special for best in two classes, but, as previously stated, Mr. Tope having gone, this had to stand. Unfortunately, we cannot give the numbers in each class as several entries were missing in catalogues. Mr. R. B. Tope judged.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the seller after the expiration of three days.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

I am very pleased with it. I could not buy one like it here for double the money. With many thanks.—J. Rouse": B. Savory, Great Hampton-row, Birmingham. (185) for the best; send to me and get it. If you want highest possible value at rock bottom price, just give me one trial. Everything sent on approval, and if you find they are not as advertised, or that you can get better value elsewhere, just smash my goods up, and I will refund money in full. Clap nets made from 60s 3 cord thread, ¾in. mesh, 3 yds. long, 5½ft. deep, and 4ft. fly, 4/- pair; ditto, 4 yds., 5/-; 5 yds. 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7yds. 8/-, 8 yds. 9/-, 10 yds. 11/- per pair. These clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, are armed all round, guaranteed of exact measurement stated, and are fitted complete with pegs, poles, and lines ready for immediate use. Single nets, at exactly half above prices. Bat-folding Sparrow nets, lifted on 15ft. bamboo poles, 5/6, ditto 17ft. poles 6/-, ditto 19ft. 6/6, complete; Lark nets, 20 yards long, 17/-, ditto 30 yards 24/-; self-acting spring net traps, 24 by 18 inches, 1/2 each, ditto 18 by 14 inches, 11d. each, post free. These net traps are entirely different to the old fashioned board traps, and are by far largest and most effective traps on the market. Single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double ditto, 1/- each, 10/- dozen; treble ditto, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all have separate compartment for call bird, in addition to traps stated. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (reg. No. 23927), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; round or square-topped call cages, all wire tops and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers, and holds in rain, ¼lb. 6d., ½lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6, sample 3d., all post free. Please note, as the name of my lime is being copied by others, I beg to say I have no agents whatever, and it is of utmost importance that you should order direct from me if you want the genuine article. Loose thread netting, as used in my nets, ¾in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d. yard, ditto 9ft. deep 4d. yard, ditto 12ft. deep 5d. yard; extra stout netting, for use on rough ground, ¾in. mesh, 5d. yard; Lark or Starling netting, 1¼in. mesh, 12ft. deep, 4d. yard; all netting post free. Flirt pegs and lines, 6d. each post free; Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun by hand, free from snarl, 60 yards long, and strong as boat lines, 1/4 each, post free; brace swivels, three 3d., twelve 6d., post free; birds' calls for imitating call and song of all birds, 2d. each, six 6d., twelve 10d., post free; absolutely every up-to-date article required by catchers always in stock and ready for immediate dispatch; send stamp for full descriptive list, which also gives hints on net-making. Following testimonials speak volumes for quality of my appliances. "Gedney, Hobbeach, Lincs., September 3, 1912.—Sir,—The pair 12 yard clap nets safely to hand. They are an exceptionally good pair, and thread so fine they are hardly visible, and they match the ground so well. Rather different nets for Linnet catching to the herring and garden netting offered for sale by many netmakers, who ought to know better than send such rubbish out. Without doubt, yours are best fine thread nets extant. I shall want more shortly.—Yours, Charlie Cubley." "Wood St., Guildford, August 22.—Sir,—Received the two pairs nets safely. I am well pleased, and so is my friend. We shall not take the trouble to make them when we can get them so good as these for the money.—Yours, S. Bowen." "4, Castle Place, Scarborough, Aug. 26.—Sir,—Please send 1lb. lime. It is best lime I can get. I caught over 200 birds with last lot.—Yours, W. Whitehead." "64, Main St., Benton, Scotland, Aug. 13.—Sir,—Please send 1lb. lime, as the last pound I got from you was the envy of all the catchers here. I cannot say enough in its favour.—Yours, J. McKim." "52, Silver St., Nenagh, Ireland, Aug. 17.—Sir, Please send following. The net trap was best I ever saw for the money. I caught 38 Goldfinches with it first day.—Yours, Dennis Hayes." "65, Rockdale Rd., Tunbridge Wells, Aug. 23.—Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from you 7 years ago, and am still using it.—Yours, H, England." If you want reliable serviceable appliances, send to the man who makes them; no connection whatever with any other advertiser.

Result of Good Bird Seed

Read the following Testimonial from Mr. A. J. MARLEY, the British Bird Fancier and Exhibitor.

Messrs. W. A. Rudd and Co. 83, Manor Road, Leyton,

Dear Sirs,—I take the opportunity of thanking you for your prompt and businesslike attention to my order, and I am also pleased to inform you of the magnificent results I have obtained by using your seeds for my birds. Hitherto I have been sadly disappointed with my seed merchants, and have not been able to rely upon them.

I consider your firm a great boon to London and provincial fanciers, and you will be glad to know that my winning teams at Newcastle, Manchester, Sheffield, and Swansea, also the L.C.B.A., Horticultural Hall, were moulted and fed entirely on your Seeds and Foods, and I attribute much of my success this season to the exceptional quality you have supplied, for I am a great believer in purity and cleanliness.

Your Goldfinch and Linnet Mixture is a treat; absolutely nothing to equal it for bringing the birds into condition. I may also mention that my winning Waxwing and Blackbirds were fed on your insectivorous Foods mixed to my special requirement.

I enclose postal order in settlement of account, and remain yours truly, A. J. MARLEY.

If we did not supply the very best Seeds and Foods it is quite certain we should not have received this Testimonial.

We believe in cleanliness. Our store is the smartest and cleanest in London, and we claim that the quality we supply will appeal irresistably to all fanciers. Below we give you a few of our Special Lines, and we would ask you to send us a trial order, and we are confident in saying that you will be more than pleased with the quality we send out.

Free delivery to any part of London and Suburbs on all orders over 5/-. Country orders carriage paid. 6d. bushel, 1/- cwt. extra.

Full list and samples of any seeds post free on application. State wants.

RUDD'S CELEBRATED INSECTIVOROUS FOOD, for Valuable British and Foreign Birds.

This is the finest Insectivorous Food on the Market, and has no equal for British and Foreign insect and fruit-eating Birds.

All the ingredients are of the finest quality in right proportion, and blended with Pure Honey. It requires no mixing with water, and is especially suitable for Nightingales, Robins, Wrens, Tanagers, Bulbuls, Shamas, Mocking Birds, Woodlarks, etc., etc. A mere glance will prove to you at once that it is far superior to any other insectivorous on the market. 1/3 per lb., post paid 1/6. 7lb. tins 9/-, post paid.

RUDD'S SPECIAL WILD SEEDS.

This is a wonderful mixture of all British and Scotch wild seeds, and is blended with Thistle, Dandelion, Cornflower, Shepherd's Purse, Golden Pleasure, etc., etc.

It is the finest tit-bit for British Finches that you can possibly give them, and has been described by one of our best bird judges as the finest mixture he had ever seen. 6d. lb., 7lbs. 3/-, post paid 3/6.

Postage on any quantity less than 7lbs., 4d. We will send you a large sample of any of these Foods or Seeds for 3d. stamps.

RUDD'S GOLDFINCH MIXTURE.

This is the best seed you can give to Goldfinches, etc. It contains a good percentage of Thistle, Dandelion, Cornflower, Golden Pleasure, Sesame, and freshly-gathered wild seeds. It is the only really scientific mixture on the market. 4d. lb., 7lbs. 2/-, post paid 2/6. Large Sample post paid for 3d.

RUDD'S EXTRA SPECIAL MIXED SEED.

Containing 15 varieties. For high-class Canaries. All the very best seeds are used in this mixture, and mixed suitably for the time of year. It is entirely free from cheap Red Millet, Niger and Hemp, which are used in nearly all packet seeds for cheapness. They are useless seeds to good birds. 3/6 Peck, 13/6 Bushel. Send for a sample.

RUDD'S SPECIAL GERMAN ROLLER CANARY MIXTURE.

There is nothing on the market like this, and it is the finest tonic mixture for keeping these songsters in good health, plumage, and song. After a railway journey it is a fine pick-me-up. 4d. lb., 7lbs. 2/6, carriage paid.

RUDD'S CELEBRATED LARK AND BLACKBIRD FOOD.

This is a splendid Lark Food, made with pure Biscuit Meal, and entirely free from common Barley Meal, which is the basis of most Lark Foods. It contains Dried Flies, Ant Eggs, Meat, Fruit, and Seeds, forming a most perfect food for all Softbills, such as Blackbirds, Thrushes, Larks, Magpies, Jackdaws, Jays, etc. Mix with a little water just sufficient to make it crumbly, or, better still, a little raw carrot scraped very finely. 4d. lb., 7lbs. 2/-, post paid 2/6.

RUDD'S SPECIAL LINNET MIXTURE.

Contains all the seeds that Linnets are accustomed to in their natural state, and will keep them in finer plumage and song than any other mixture. Like the Goldfinch Mixture it is free from all useless seeds that the birds will not eat, so often found in cheap packet mixtures. 4d. lb., 7lbs. 2/-, post paid 2/6. Give it a trial.. Large sample post paid 3d. stamps

RUDD'S FOREIGN FINCH MIXTURE.

For Gouldians, Zebras, Weavers, Waxbills, etc., etc. This mixture contains a percentage of wild grass seeds that most of these birds are accustomed to in their natural state. 4d. lb., 7lbs. 2/-, post paid 2/6 Sample free.

RUDD'S SPECIAL AVIARY MIXTURE.

This is particularly suitable for Outdoor Aviaries and contains a good percentage of Wild Seeds. 2/6 Peck, 9/6 Bushel. Sample post free.

RUDD'S PERFECT PARROT FOOD.

Supersedes all others. 2/6 Peck. 10/6 Bushel. Carriage paid.

SOLE AGENT UBAL GOLD MEDAL ROLLERS

Patronised by all the leading fanciers in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. I claim to have sold more British winners than any three dealers put together. All my customers are delighted. No less than nine of my customers secured 1st and 2nd prizes at last week's shows. For size, style and quality my birds stand alone. It costs you nothing if I fail to please you, as all my birds are sent out on seven days' approval at my risk for cash or deposit with CAGE BIRDS. I have a grand lot of very large, fierce singing cock Linnets, right for catching or time singing, 1/- and 1/6 each; with new back cage, 1/6 and 2/- lot. I have a very nice lot of giant muling Linnets, 1/6 each. Look the pride of the singing world. Cock Linnet taught under my undefeated champion of England cup winner, 2/- each, with new contest cage and book of secrets 3/6 lot; cannot be beaten at double the price elsewhere. I thoroughly understand the song (see "Nutshell" series No. 2), and do not copy adverts. To exhibitors, I have the finest lot of Norwich type cock Linnets ever seen, real giants, well pencilled, with feathers like silk, ready to win, 2/- each, gem 2/6; these gems have won in house-moulted classes at Newcastle, Blaydon, Alnwick, Hull, Sunderland, etc.; they attract the judge's eye at once. Real Siberian cock Goldfinches, marvellous colour, truly magnificent gems, in full song and ready for immediate showing, 5/- each; one, a stormer, 6/6. Real English Peartree cock Goldfinches, will sing anywhere; sure mulers and good call birds, 2/6, 3/- each, specials 3/6; gems, with deep square-cut blaze, broad heads, well buttoned, ready to win, 4/-, 4.6; extra gems, 5/-. Cock Twites, well laced, real beauties, 1/-, 1/6. Lesser Redpoll, one of the best I have had, 2/6; other gems, 1/-. Giant cock Greenfinch, 1/-. Cock Chaffinch, a beauty, 1/-. Cock Larks, singing day and gaslight, 1/- and 1/6; all finger tame. Lark, Thrush and Blackbird food, 4d. per lb., 7lbs. 2/-. Just arrived, the Ubal gold medal Rollers. They surpass anything that has even been heard in Roller Canaries. Their beautiful long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, bell, harp, gong and flute notes, Nightingale jugging, piccolo trills, waterbubble runs, heaving, chattering, etc., secure admiration at once; they will sing anywhere, day or gaslight, 7/6 each; far better than any 15/6 Schoolmaster ever sold. Please give me a trial, you will not regret it. State wants. Correspondence a pleasure. Thanking you all for increased patronage. See last week's advt. for testimonials: Fred Allen, Bird Specialist, 548, Queen's-rd., Sheffield. (178)

"San Francisco, October 12th, 1912. I received one of your books by Albert Rettich, through "Cage Birds," which I find gives the best information on the Roller Canary I have found yet. David O'Brien to W. Rudd."

[the above book is published by the sole proprietor, W. Rudd, at 9d. in paper cover, and 1/3 cloth gilt.]

"Superb." —"26th October, 1912. Dear Sir, I got the Rollers on Wednesday, and they arrived in grand condition and started singing next morning. I consider them superb at the money. I shall direct any one to you that I know requiring a bird, for honest dealing.—Yours, T. McCormick."

CHILCOTT'S ROLLERS

Owing to ill-health, Mr. A. G. Pattison, late of Gravesend, has disposed of all his Rollers to Mr. A. Chilcott, of Southend. Most of the 1912 birds are bred from two £5 cocks, bought direct from Mr. Randall; these are bred from the champion cock claimed at club show by Dr. Read at £10. A few of these grand birds for disposal at reasonable prices; enquiries solicited; also a nearly new Queen organ for sale. (180) best, and the best Roller on the market to-day is undoubtedly the Leipzig Roller, as imported by me. I want you to prove the truth of this statement by having a Leipzig Roller from me on trial, and an ordinary Roller from elsewhere at any higher price; test them side by side for a week, and if in your opinion and the opinion of any Roller judge you like to ask, mine is not by far the best value at a lower price, return it to me, and I will instantly refund the whole of your out of pocket expenses. By accepting this offer you cannot possibly lose one penny. I am by far the largest retailer of Roller Canaries in United Kingdom, and this trade has been built up solely by the merits of the birds themselves, and not by lavishly displayed advertisements. I import the birds direct, and am sole importer of Weber's Leipzig Rollers, therefore am enabled to sell birds at far less price than others. At present time I have a splendid stock of these Leipzig Roller cocks in full song day and gaslight, with long, hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft rouladoes, piccolo trill, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, gong, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from any harsh or objectionable notes, whatever; price, 6/6 and 7/6 each. Special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, 10/-, and 12/6 each. Hens, guaranteed same strain, 2/- each, 3/6 couple. I have also a splendid stock of loud free singing Hartz cocks (often sold as Hartz Mountain Rollers by unscrupulous dealers), in full, loud, vigorous song day and gaslight, just the thing for public bars or coffee houses, where plenty of loud, noisy song is required, 5/- each, seven for 29/9. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with food and water to last 48 hours, free of extra charge, and sent on full week's trial at my sole risk during whole time, either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and unless birds prove all I say they are and realise your every expectation, the whole of your money is promptly and cheerfully refunded. Following few letters are entirely unsolicited and full address is given so that any sceptical person may make every enquiry as to their genuineness. "16, Brynteg-terrace, Merthyr Vale. Oct. 23. Sir,—Received birds safe and healthy this morning, and I can tell you I am fully satisfied as they are fine birds and well worth money.—Yours, J. Williams." "Rose Vale Cottage, Windsor-st., Rhyl, Oct. 22nd. Sir,—Very pleased with Roller, which arrived safe, and is doing well. Please send another for enclosed P.O.—Yours, W. Griffiths." "56, Belgrave-st., Nelson. Sir,—I would like you to know about Roller cock you sent me in January. He is a knockout for song. He has sung at 2.30 a.m. this summer, and I have had him singing at midnight. In fact, I can get him to sing any time. He is now moulting, but still gives us a tune. Double the price I paid won't buy him.—Yours, S. Addy." "10, St. Andrew-st., Dublin, Oct. 20th. Sir,—The Leipzig Roller I got from you two years ago is better than ever: he is doing so well and in such grand song that I have been offered twice as much as I paid for him, but will not part.—Yours, T. Heury." "26, Nelson-st., Low Moor, Clitheroe, Oct. 18. Sir,—Please send me one of your world-famed Leipzig Rollers, price 7/6. I had one of your Rollers before, and was well satisfied with it. I have had a little experience with Rollers, and can assure you if I get one as good as last I shall be well repaid.—Yours, R. Hitchin." "6, Fell Avenue, Blaydon-on-Tyne, Oct. 25th. Sir,—Birds arrived safe and sound, with which I am delighted. They are two splendid birds, and I could not wish for better. Please send following.—Yours, Geo. Robson." "Halberton, Tiverton, Oct. 5th. Sir,—Roller cock I had from you last year is a beauty, and giving great satisfaction.—Yours, W. Harris." "7, Primrose Hill, Northwich, October 19.—Sir,—Received pair Canaries safe and in good health. They are two nice birds, and I am well satisfied.—Yours, S. Lyons." "20, Tuson-st., Preston, Lancs., Oct. 23. Sir,—Please send one Leipzig Roller cock and 5 hens for enclosed P.O. I have been well recommended to give you my order.—Yours, F. Ridding." "3, Blawarthill-st., Yoker, Glasgow, Oct. 26. Sir,—Bird arrived quite safe, and in best condition, and I am very pleased with it. Thanking you for prompt attention.—Yours, J. Cooper." "I have hundreds of similar testimonials, all open for inspection any time. Please note I am the only importer of this strain of Rollers, and all cocks are stamped on wing "Hans Weber, Leipzig." Save all dealers' profits by sending orders direct to me. (See British Bird and Appliance columns for other advertisement.)

THERE'S ONLY ONE

HAVE YOU

'Run Them Too Fine?'

If so, I have some big, bouncing, well shaped birds that will put your small stock right. State requirements.

It's the value for money that tells, and that is where I "tell" right through.

I am never afraid of comparison!!

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words. Cocks, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Greens, Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6; Hens, 2/6, 3/6. Cages, 3d. extra.

Greens, Cocks 5/6, 6/6, 7/6; Hens, 2/6, 3/6.

QUALITY WINS

Do you want to improve your stock? If so, get the best. If you are a beginner, be sure you start with good quality birds. They are always the best, therefore the cheapest. Do not be misled by unshapely crossbreds, but have reliable pure bred birds, on seven days' approval at my risk, so that you may judge the value I give. I have had many years' experience, and supplied many winners to my customers. I have none reserved; every bird is for sale; that accounts for my customers doing so well. My Yorkshires are all bred from the very best of high-class exhibition birds, full of quality, of standard length, light in feather, etc. Cocks, on song, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; hens, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6 each; matched pairs, properly mated to breed the right stuff, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-. I have some real fine Norwich, same price as Yorkshires. Remember I send all my birds to you on 7 days' approval at my sole risk. Illustrated price list, post free: E. L. Storey, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster. (10)

Dear Sir,—I received the birds safely and exceedingly well packed, and I wish to state they are past my expectations, and your choice for me is excellent.

Yours faithfully, G. W. BIRKIN.

34, Rue Denick Straate, Koekelberg, Brussels, Belgium.

To W. Rudd, Esq., Bird Specialist, Norwich.

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of Canaries to hand and am pleased to say that they arrived in sound condition and were well cared for in the packing and transit. I am highly pleased with them, also the prompt and personal attention that you gave to my order. Yours very fraternally,

WM. WOOLDRIDGE.

To W. Rudd, Norwich. From India, 1912.

Dear Sir,—I feel pleasure to say that the birds you sent me out to India twice this year were highly approved of by myself and my friends. They are exactly the birds I wanted, and I must thank you for the splendid way of packing them, as all the birds reached here in splendid condition and in the best of health. All my future orders will be placed with you.

Yours faithfully,

NAWAL SAADUT ALI KHAN.

ROUND THE SHOWS.

Record Show at Cheltenham.

Nearly 900 Exhibits: Magnificent Yorkshire Section: Splendid Management.

Cheltenham's claim to rank as one of the leading shows was fully maintained at the annual fixture held in the Drill Hall on October 30th and 31st. The entries came up well, nearly 900 birds being entered—a substantial increase on last year of over 150. Good luck to you, Cheltenham—you will have 1,000 next year! Of the management we cannot speak too highly, but this is not to be wondered at with Messrs. Treasure and Pomsett acting as Sec. and Show Manager. These gentlemen have had a good many years' experience, and have everything at their finger tips, and are withal courteous and obliging to exhibitors and visitors alike. They were ably supported by Mr. D. Lewis, chairman, and Mr. A. Hands, Vice Chairman, and a splendid body of stewards, composed of Messrs. Madagan, Brown, Elston, A. Smith, R. Smith, Child, Kilminster, Hamblin, Houghton, Hayling, Hiles, Sallis, Hope, Stevens, and one or two others whose names we did not get. The birds were grandly staged at a convenient height, so that every bird could be seen without any effort. The beautiful palms which so enhanced the appearance of the room were kindly lent by Mr. Geo. Pates, florist. We were glad to see so many of the Welsh fanciers represented, no doubt the Shellam and Longden medals were an attraction. All the sections, Canary, Brit. and For., were magnificent, the quality of the exhibits being very high. The judges were Messrs. W. E. Greeves (Crests), C. Rochl (Rollers), H. W. Battye (all other Canaries) and John Frostick (Hyb., Brit. and For.). We are pleased to say that their awards seemed to give very general satisfaction.

Mr. Battye's Classes.

Mr. Roebl's Classes.

The Roller classes were not so well patronised as they should have been, but considering this is the first effort of this society to introduce Rollers at this show, and that the Midland R.C.C. show at Wolverhampton was on same date, and most of the Roller fanciers were sending their birds there, the entries were fairly good, and the birds were in fairly good song. We hope in the future Cheltenham and District will make a special effort to cultivate this splendid variety of Canary. Open Any Age: 1, sp., F. Wilson, specially good in hollow roll, and other tours, points, hollow roll 6, hollow bell 1, bass 3, schockel 4, flute notes 3, water roll 2, deep B.W.T. 3, bell tour 1, bell roll 2, general effect 3, total 28; 2, Carruthers, another good bird, H. roll 5, bass 3, schockel 4, flute 3, water roll 2, D.B.W.T. 2, bell tour 2, bell 1, general effect 3, 25 points, 1 off high schockel, total 24; 3, Mrs. Manley, specially good in hollow roll, points, H. roll 5, bass 3, schockel 4, flute 3, water roll 2, D.B.W.T. 2, bell tour 2, bell 1, general effect 3, 25 points, 1 off for high schockel 24; 4, Luther Short, a very decent bird, specially good in his hollow roll, and schockel, which he displayed in wonderful style, points, hollow roll 3, H. bell 2, schockel 4, flute 2, bell tour 2, general effect 2, total 15; vhc, Carruthers; he, Wilsden; c, Allsop. Young Birds: This class must have been a real trouble for the judge, as we have been informed that he had many of the birds for 4 hours on the table to get some more if possible out of them, but unfortunately there were several which, with all the trouble did not open. 1, Netherwood, a bird with many good qualities, but not nearly in his prime, hollow roll 5, bass 2, schockel 4, flute 3, water roll 2, bell roll 2, general effect 3, 21 points, 1 off for high schockel, total 20; 2, Netherwood, nearly the same qualities at the first winner, hollow roll 5, bass 3, Schockel 4, flute 2, water gluche 3, bell roll 2, general effect 1, 20 points, 1 off for high schockel, total 19; 3, 4, Lister, very nice soft bird which will no doubt be heard of again, hollow roll 5, bass 3, schockel 3, flute 2, bell 2, bell roll 1, general effect 2, total 18; 4th almost the same qualities as 3rd, hollow roll 4, bass 2, schockel 3, flute 2, bell tour 1, bell roll 1, general effect 2, total 15; vhc, he, Allsopp, 12 and 11 pts; c, Lewis. MEMBERS—A very fair class, and the keenness of the members who showed will be greatly appreciated by the other Roller fanciers in Cheltenham: 1, Allsopp, a very good bird, with a splendid hollow roll and other good tours, points: hollow roll 6, bass 4, schockel 4, flute 3, bell tour 2, bell roll 2, general 4, total 25; 2, Roberts, very decent bird, specially good in hollow roll and hollow bell, hollow roll 5, hollow bell 1, bass 4, schockel 4, flute 2, bell tour 2, bell roll 1, general effect 3, total 22; 3, 4, Short, very nice bird, with a beautiful water gluche, hollow roll 4, bass 2, schockel 4, flute 3, water gluche 3, bell tour 1, bell roll 1, general effect 1, 1 off for high schockel, total 18; 4th a bird of almost equal qualities, hollow roll 3, bass 2, schockel 4, flute 2, water gluche 3, bell tour 1, bell roll 2, general effect 2, 2 points off for high schockel and sharp bell, total 17; vhc, Lewis, 13; he, Roberts, 11; c, Lewis. One bird in this class expelled for zitt and chop.

Mr. J. Frostick's Classes.

GOLDFINCH (13), really fine class, thus early in the season, and the tables will be turned in many cases at later shows: 1, Harris, large expansive blaze, well burnished, very forward, rich chestnut, well put down; 2, Routh, fine face, fails only in breast colouring to winner; 3, vhc, Jeffreys, both typical birds, but not yet up in colour; 4, Ray, will improve; he, Edwards; c, Tilley. GOLD., F.M. (3), disappointing class; 1, Lewis, beautiful specimen, in full bloom; 2, Nash; 3, Jeffreys. BFLLEFINCH (12), 1, Carrier, nice col., splendid cap and wing bars; 2, Brown, good in col., beautifully steady; 3, Harris, nice all round bird, fails slightly in cap; 4, Tilley, fine type, trifle unsteady; vhc, Wren; he, Gregory; c, Ford. GREEN (8): 1, Tams, grand massive yell., rich col.; 2, Harris, another large yell., fails only in high condition, will be heard of later; 3, Marley, well-known buff bird of great merit, might be bigger; 4, Ford, very nice, will improve; vhc, Wren; he, Jeffreys; c, Mrs. LINNET (14): 1, Heal, Clapham winner, perfect wonder for density of markings, richness of col., clear wh.; 2, Nicholas, beautiful quality, nice col. but trifle open in breast work; 3, Marley, good bird, nicely staged, but beaten to-day; 4, Rees; vhc, Jones; he, Jeffreys; c, Routh. LIN., F.M. (8): 1, Bancroft, well selected bird, grand col. and mkgs., steady, should be heard of again; 2, Elston, another of the right sort; 3, Davies, full of work; 4, Lewis; vhc, Jenkins; he, Tams; c, Gregory. LESSER REDPOLL (9): 1, Nicholas, nice even tone of col., good markings; 2, 3, Jeffreys, brace of good ones; 4, Whishaw, fine size and markings, trifle pale breast col.; vhc, Routh; he, Marley; c, Heal. SISKIN, ETC. (7): 1, c, Jones, Siskins, leader a bonny natural col. bird, good thigh marks, well laced cap; 2, Bancroft, nice Mealy, well staged; 3, Hawkins, rich col. Twite, trifle unsteady; 4, Dark, good Siskin, fed; vhc, Heal; he, Bull; c, Jones, last two exhibits both clinking good Siskins, but had unfortunately lost flights in transit to show. BRAMBLE, ETC. (9): 1 Brotherhood, Bramblefinch, Clapham winner, a walk over here; 2, 4, Marley, Chaffinch and Bramblefinch, brace of well-shown beauties; 3, Jeffreys, another very excellent Chaffinch; vhc, Routh; he, Wren; r, Tyler. A.O.S. HARDBILL (13): 1, Harris, the well-known champion Hawfinch, looking as well as ever; 2, Marley, beautiful Cirl Bunting, shown in best possible condition; 3, Bancroft, nice cage-moulted Crossbill, in grand feather; 4, Whishaw, another good Hawfinch; vhc, Older, nicely marked Cornbunting, should make a good one; he, Ford; c, Ray. BULL., HEN (7) Unsatisfactory class, with exception of 1st, all wearing "stockings" when judged: 1, Jones; 2, Wren; 3, Gregory; 4, Elston; vhc, Routh. A.O.S. HEN (9): 1, Ford, bonny Cornbunting, well fed, rich col.; 2, Marley, real good Hawfinch; 3, Jeffreys, good yell. Siskin, sweet little bird; 4, Jones, nice Linnet; vhc, Brown; he, Hawkins; c, Jenkins. THRUSH ETC. (4): 1, 2, Marley, magnificent Mistle Thrush, L. and P.O.S. winner and clinking good Blackbird, beautifully shown; 3, Jeffreys, also a fine Mistle Thrush; 4, Price, yet another Mistle. A.O.S. (1): 1st, Lewis, wonderful hen Jackdaw that prefers living in a cage to sweet (?) liberty. Humanitarians please note: This bird tore the kitchen mat to shreds to build its nest, went out and found a wild mate and finally brought back to her old master two of her offspring to enjoy the comforts of captivity. Who will say after this that it is cruel to keep birds in cages? HYBRIDS, CLR., ETC. (8): 1, Shellam, well-known cl. Greenfinch, the Plymouth sensation; 2, 3, Lawrence, equally well known light Goldfinch, turned out in tip-top order; 4, Spillman; vhc, he, Bartlett; c, Prosser. DARK GOLD. (8): 1, Lawrance, very fine buff; 2, Harding, well-fed yell.; 3, Rees, real good buff; 4, Hingley; vhc, Brookes; he, Brown; c, Dark. DARK GREEN. (4): Lawrance, good Cinn.; 2, Hingley; 3, Edwards; 4, Bevan, all excellent specimens. DARK LIN. (5): 1, Shellam, fine bird, hardly at its best to-day; 2, Lawrance; 3, Portman; 4, Bull, a trio of real good ones; vhc, Lanham. SISKIN, ETC. (6): 1, Shellam, Siskin, real topper, put down in A1 style; 2, Buckingham, an old favourite, the well-known Redpoll; 3, Tams, another good Siskin; 4, Lawrance; vhc, Rees; he, Moss. A.O.V. (4), only four entries, but a really delightful class, every bird a champion grand to behold: 1, Shellam, probably the best Canary-Bully living, real picture; 2, Lamb, equally good Goldfinch-Bully, and 3rd, same owner, Goldfinch-Redpoll, both well-known and staged to perfection; 4, Edwards, Goldfinch-Bully. A.V. HEN (7), a new venture in the exhibition world; by the way, is it correct to call a hybrid a male or female? 1, Lamb, clear Goldfinch-Canary; 2, Portman, Greenfinch-Bully, a big bird, but rather rough; 3, Pitchford and Stocker, nice Goldfinch-Bully; 4, Prosser, lightly var. Goldfinch; vhc, Davies; he, Maddocks; w.e., No. 7, Linnet-Can., thought to be a cock (?). Club Reports.

HIGHGATE & HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Meeting held Oct. 25th, Spencer Hall. Washing competition for members; Mr. Shakespeare judged to satisfaction of all, and awarded medals to Mr. J. Hyde (amateur section), and Mr. J. Street (novice). There was a good muster of members and friends who thoroughly enjoyed themselves. A vote of thanks to Mr. Shakespeare for judging ended meeting. J. Hyde, Hon. Sec.

NORTH WALES C.B.S.

As will be seen from advertising columns, the open show will be held at the Assembly Rooms, Market Street, Carnarvon, on Dec. 7. Schedules will be sent out this week. There are 3 classes for novices and 26 specials (to be competed for by members only). We are making great efforts to double last year's entry; 3 challenge cups given. Particulars from J. Wynne Parry, Hon. Sec., 18, Tithebarn Street, Carnarvon.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at Maskell's Hotel. Mr. Whetton presided over a good number of members, Messrs. Whetton, Smith and Stocking promised a bird for our prize drawing. I am still one short. Mr. Merrit and J. H. Brown volunteered to act as night stewards. Judges' stewards are: Messrs. Maggs, Chedgey, James, Morgan, Adams and Dugmore. Messrs. J. Hind and C. Martin, Cardiff, were enrolled members. Next meeting, Nov. 11, as our usual meeting would be on the show date. Those not able to attend please let me know if they can help at the show.—E. Thomas, Sec.

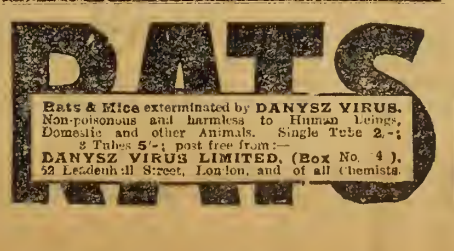
GATESHEAD AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held Oct. 22nd, Mr. R. Tindale in chair. Discussion as to best means to advertise show to the general public. Several propositions were placed in secretary's hands to make application, to be placed before members at next meeting. A fair amount of business was gone through in connection with show. Several specials were accounted for; hope those who have books will endeavour to have all in for next meeting, Nov. 13th. A few subscriptions are overdue; please see to these at once. Admission tickets for show are now ready; will members try to push these to best advantage. Schedules ready soon after next meeting.—J. G. Greason, Sec.

MUSSELBURGH O.S.

Meeting held in Mr. Cossar's rooms, Oct. 25. President, Mr. A. Moffat, occupied the chair. Show business claimed attention. It was decided to have 12 open and 1 novice classes for Norwich Plainheads, 11 open and 1 novice for Borders, 3 for Mules, 13 for British, and 3 for Foreign. Mr. John Evans, Amusement Caterer, Leith, has granted the society a trophy for the best insectivorous British bird. Mr. Evans was cordially thanked for his handsome special. Messrs. J. Lawson, T. Taylor, D. Moffat, A. Fleming, G. Storie, and J. Sykes were appointed stewards; doorkeepers were also appointed. Next meeting, 8th Nov., at 7.30, when final arrangements will be made. Schedules will be posted to applicants and leading fanciers at early date.—Wm. Nisbet, Sec.

LLANELLY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.



Meeting held Oct. 23, at Headquarters, Greyhound Hotel. Members turned up well, Mr. D. R. Jones in the chair. Having finished the classification, we commenced placing the specials, and am glad to say our next schedule will be the best sent out by us. Grand array of cash specials and cups. The society are very fortunate in having as president Jos. Holmes, Esq., who never loses a chance to befriend the society. This year again he is giving a silver cup to be won outright, which was received by the members in high glee. The example was well followed by members present, who came out well. The work of secretary is getting rather heavy, Mr. H. Webster was appointed to assist him, which he well deserves, as he is no shirker, and leaves nothing undone to bring the show to a successful issue.—D. John, Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Usual fortnightly meeting held Oct. 28, at the Church Institute, Paddington Street, W. A. Shepherd, Esq., in the chair, Mr. W. H. Dickinson, Hon. Sec., and 35 members present. In reply to letter from London Federation, it was agreed to lend the society's staging for their second annual show and also to grant 10s. towards special prize fund. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Hon. Mrs. Bourke, Mrs. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Weston, Mr. T. C. Picard, and others for their kind donations towards special prize fund for annual show, Nov. 15 and 16 next. The feature of the evening—a judging competition of Yorks—then took place. Members staged a very fine lot of birds, which were divided into two classes—12 yellows and 13 buffs—Mr. J. Burton acting as final judge. After answering several questions, members expressed their hearty appreciation of his services.—F. Thynne, assist. hon. sec.

BOURNEMOUTH C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Quadrant Restaurant, Oct. 17. Mr. H. Goodland gave a very instructive and interesting demonstration of washing and generally preparing Canaries for show. He dealt with his subject in a very able manner. He remarked on the necessity of having the proper pattern and colour of show cages to suit each type. He invited anyone present to wash a bird under his superintendence. His invitation was accepted by Miss Dennis, who was highly complimented by those present on the able manner in which she carried out her task. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. H. Goodland. Mr. H. Mathews announced that his firm (Messrs. F. H. Powell and Co., Ltd., Cartage Agents, Poole) were presenting a valuable silver cup for competition amongst members at show, Nov. 19th and 20th. In addition to the open specials offered in the schedule, specials of 2s. 6d. will be given for best unflighted Yorks cock; and best unflighted hen. Other specials will also probably be offered.—G. W. Jones, Chairman.

I beg to thank you for the excellent report of our recent show, writes Mr. E. Cowling, Sec., Morpeth C.B.S. Also your reporter for the many nice things said about myself and fellow members. We shall still, in the future, endeavour to make ourselves worthy of the compliments paid to us.

We wish to thank you, write Messrs. Keymer Bros. (Gorleston-on-Sea) for depicting our clear buff hen winner at Norwich, on the front sheet of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. It is a faultless image of her. It was a pleasure to read the "knowing ones" acknowledged her the best hen in the show. We should like to remark that this hen is one of three buff hens we bred in one nest, all of which have proved themselves winners.

I have been informed, writes Mr. R. B. Wright, hon. sec. Annfield, Everton, and District C.B.S., that a report has been circulated in the Bradford district, that there will be no railway facilities for our show on December 26. I hasten to inform Yorkshire fanciers that very satisfactory arrangements have been guaranteed by all the railway companies running into Liverpool from the Yorkshire districts, particulars of which will very soon be in the hands of all members of the N.G.M.Y.C.C. and Y.C.C., and other well known fanciers.

We hear that a Fanciers' Society has been formed for Wingate (co. Durham) and Dist. The hon. sec. is Mr. J. Burdett, 3, Todd St.

Will show secretaries in the South or South-East send me on schedules, writes Mr. F. J. Smith, 72, Tideswell Road, Eastbourne.

Will show secretaries, etc., please note the following change of address:—Mr. E. Pettet from Walthamstow to 8, Etchingham Rd., Leyton.

At Burnley show the winner of Sandiford's medal, vhc, ticked yellow and 1st buff hen should be Mr. W. Crawshaw (Accrington), and not W. Grimshaw.

The silver cup for most points at Stamford show was won by Mr. G. Lawrence (Coventry) with a total of 93 points, writes Mr. A. Harrison, the Secretary.

Mr. Sarjeant, hon. sec. Canterbury F.S., writes asking us to state that a class for Yorks hens, yell or buff was omitted from the schedule. This is class No. 39a.

Mr. E. Lindley, of Wombwell, is, we hear, on Nov. 11 sending some winning Yorkshires to New Zealand, which should make a name for themselves in their new home.

We have omitted the British Goldfinch class from the schedule of Leith O.S., writes Mr. G. Brown, Sec. This will be class 39a. Will members please note when entering.

Stockport members' show will be held Nov. 22 and 23. Judge: Mr. W. Bowyer. New members joining at once will be entitled to show, writes Mr. W. Stafford.

Through unforeseen circumstances, the Wood Green Society have found it necessary to postpone their annual show till Jan. 4, 1913, writes Mr. G. T. Harris, Hon. Sec.

Heywood and Dis. O.S. hold their annual members' show on Nov. 16, when Mr. Robert Barrass (Rochdale) will judge, writes Mr. A. H. Meadowcroft, the Hon. Sec.

By an error, our prize-money appears in Manchester show catalogue as 10s., 8s., 4s., 2s.; it should read 10s., 6s., 4s., 2s., writes Mr. R. Blincoe, Sec. Rochdale O.C. show.

An entry form, bearing neither name nor address (envelope post-marked Coventry) has been received at Nottingham show. Will the sender please communicate with the sec.?

I won second at L. and P.O.S. show in light Canary Hybrid class, with a buff Goldfinch Canary, writes Mr. E. J. Lamb. Mr. Mortlock's bird, reported as second, stood vhc.

Fanciers should visit the Metropolitan record show this Saturday, Nov. 2, All Saints' Parochial Hall, Battersea Park. Rare lot of Yorks, Norwich, etc., for sale.—Advt.

Will members of the Bootle C.B.S. kindly let me have unpaid subscriptions as early as possible. Anyone wishing to join should communicate with me, the Secretary, L. S. Hamilton (The Lodge, Linacre Lane, Bootle).

The novice Border classes (New Cross C.B.S.), write Messrs. Barton and Barton, Hon. Secs., were omitted from schedule of the annual show, Nov. 7, and they will now read 13a, 14a, 15a, and 16a. Judge, Mr. Norman.

Owing to clashing of dates, we have changed our show of cock birds from Nov. 9 to Nov. 16, write Messrs. Sutcliffe and Walker, Hon. Secs., Sowerby Bridge and Dis. C.B.S.

In the Yorkshire section at the City of Glasgow show, first in the clear, etc., yell. cock and first in the A.O.C. cock, bred 1912, were won by Mr. T. Bennett, of Lidget Green, Bradford.

Oldham C.B.A. have decided to hold their show at the Textile Dining Rooms to-day, Nov. 2, when we shall be pleased to see all old fanciers and friends, writes Mr. Jas. Cope, the Secretary.

Mr. Joe. Thomson (Newton-grange) will judge Canaries at Gorebridge show on Jan. 18, writes John Lambie, Secretary. We have a better classification for Borders this year, and six classes for British.

The success of our show at Hamilton depends on the readers of Cage Birds giving us a fair share of their entries, and I hope they will not overlook us, writes Mr. G. Marlin, Sec. Hamilton, Cadzou Oak O.S.

I would like to express my gratitude and appreciation for the splendid report of our show given by Cage Birds, writes Mr. John Young, joint Sec., City of Glasgow show. What a boon your Journal is to the Fancy.

Messrs. Hill and Dascombe, Secs. of Wivelscombe show, hope that exhibitors of cage birds will give them a big entry, as their birds will be well cared for, and they have good judges, prize-money, and specials.

We are informed by the respective secretaries that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows:—Glasgow, L. and P.O., S. (Holborn), Burton-on-Trent, Stamford, Newcastle, Bromley, Mumbles, Chatham.

Fanciers will do well to visit the New Cross and District Cage Bird show at the People's Hall, Tanner's Hill, Deptford Broadway (adjoining Theatre) on Thursday, Nov. 7. All South London trams pass the door.—(Advt.) (184)

OBITUARY.

Our Glasgow readers will regret to learn that the esteemed Hon. President of the Govanhill O.A., Mr. Wm. Tennant, has lost his wife, at the age of 63 years, after a short and painful illness, following a serious operation. Quiet and kindly, and ever ready to assist in her husband's hobby, she leaves a grown-up family of sons and daughters to mourn her loss, and their grief will be shared by a large circle of friends, by whom she was much respected. Her remains were laid to rest in the little churchyard of her native village, Rutherglen, on Oct. 25.

The winners of the £5 5s. challenge cups at the London and Provincial O.S. show were: Norwich, Mr. E. Baker; Crests, Mr. Lazarus; Yorks., Mr. J. Wilcock; Mules, Mr. E. J. Lamb; Brit., Mr. Marley; Foreign, Miss Bousfield.

Mr. W. H. Howe, of Wellingborough, has bought my unflighted yellow cock, first Morpeth, first Newcastle, and special best Norwich in show, for a good figure, writes Mr. W. McGinn, and I hope it will win many firsts for its new owner.

As will be seen in our show advt. columns, the Swansea C.B.S. have engaged Mr. J. F. Dewar, of Edinburgh, to judge Mules and British. This is the first visit of Mr. Dewar to Wales as a judge, and the society deserves a large entry for its enterprise.

Metropolitan fanciers should visit Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. show held Tuesday next (2 to 9.30 p.m.) at Reindeer Hotel, Rye Lane. Some of the best birds in the Fancy on view; and some bargains for buyers. Admission by tickets, sixpence.—Advt.

Haverfordwest show, held Nov. 12, deserves the support of fanciers, as a good committee attends on the birds, the hall is a fine one, and a main railway line serves the town. There are some excellent specials, including silver medal for best Canary (see advt. this week).

The eleventh annual International poultry, etc., show is due at the Crystal Palace on Nov. 12, 13, and 14. In addition to this year's exhibition being a record for entries, we understand that a great many foreigners have sent over and will compete for the valuable prizes. The visitors, too, will include distinguished representatives of many foreign nations. Nearly 1,300 birds will be on view.

The Brighton and Hove C.B.A. are offering the finest prize money on the South coast at their forthcoming open show, Nov. 14 and 15, writes Mr. W. H. Gibb, the Hon. Sec., and six money prizes are offered in the Brit. classes, while added prize-money is given in the non-col. fed. classes, besides many specials. The entry fee is only 1s. 6d. The show is being held in the splendid North Rd. Lecture Hall, situated close to the Central Station and on the tram route. Entries close Nov. 6; fanciers, give us a bumping entry.

Although our entries close Nov. 2, writes Mr. E. A. Stickland, Hon. Sec. Windsor show, at the present time I have only received three. We have 9 novice classes, classes which all bird-men are asking for at shows, and I hope that the novice bird-keepers will fill up all the classes.

Barnsley and Dist. C. B. S. hold members' show to-day, Nov. 2, at Clarence Hotel, Sheffield Road, writes Mr. F. C. Sims, the Hon. Sec.; 17 classes. Judge: Mr. J. Overend (Ravensthorpe). Birds to be staged by 3 o'clock. Exhibition open to public at 5 o'clock; local fanciers will do well to visit the show.

We have, writes Mr. J. R. Reid, Sec. Cowdenbeath C.B.S., 7, Woodland Place, Park Avenue, posted 1,100 schedules this week to all known exhibitors, including members of the Border Fancy Club, Scottish Yorks Club, the Scottish P.C. and the Scottish B.B. and M.C. If any exhibitor has been overlooked, will he kindly apply to me for one.

Tavistock fanciers are this year holding their show Nov. 27, the day following Launceston, and we understand from Mr. J. Young, hon. sec., that exhibitors entering for both shows before entries close will be given free carriage between the two towns, thus enabling them to exhibit at two shows at one railway charge.

Our report of the unflighted Yorks class at Middlesbrough credits Mr. Pyman with 2nd, 3rd, and extra 4. We understand from Mr. W. Rand that he won 3rd, and Mr. Pyman extra 3. In Blackwood report, Mr. Cook is credited with vhc in Nor. yell and extra 3 in buff. Mr. W. Morris, Ebbw Vale writes that these should be credited to his name.

We have omitted from schedules, writes Mr. Mitchell, hon. sec. Codnor Park and Eastwood show, the special prizes in the gift class, viz., 1st bottle spl. whiskey, 2nd one stone canary seed, 3rd value 2s. 6d., 4th tin of cigarettes; bottle whiskey for most points in gift class; also that Cage Birds' special is to be for the runners-up for the cup.

At Spalding show, Nov. 7 (see advt. in this issue) the stewards are well-known bird fanciers, and exhibitors need have no fear that their exhibits will be treated otherwise than with the greatest possible care. We are hoping, write Messrs. Elviss and Mouncey, Secretaries, to have a good entry; closing date extended to Monday, Nov. 4.

Record Gone at Sheffield.

All Sheffield records broken, nearing thousand, wires Mr. Bishop, just as we go to press.

A True Help-meet.

Owing to my wife's illness, I will not be able to show my birds for a time, as she steadies and colour-feeds them, and also enamels all my show cages, writes Mr. T. Brown, Foxhouses, Whitehaven, as I have not time myself. This is the first time I have missed Carlisle show, and it is a great disappointment.

Where Our Section is Appreciated.

I should like to say that the cage bird section at Lewes show was quite distinct from the poultry, and established in the gallery free from draught, and not stuck away in a corner like we see at most mixed shows, writes Mr. J. Martin, the Hon. Sec. The birds were a good lot, and although the classes did not fill as we should like, full prize-money will be paid. All exhibits were on rail before 10 a.m. the morning after the show.

Liberal Treatment for Exhibitors.

The entries for that very old-established and always splendidly-managed Midland fixture, Nottingham show, held Nov. 9 and 11, are due to close and the officials are anxious to beat all records this year. The classification is excellent, and the prize-money very liberal, while the special prizes are both valuable and numerous. Fanciers should send at once for a schedule to Mr. J. G. Royce (29, Tennyson St., Nottingham) and participate in the good things. There are classes for novices and amateurs (including two for British birds) and specialist judges for all sections. Foreign birds have 4s. extra prize-money in each class.

Bramblefinch's Successful Career.

Allow me to express my appreciation of the very excellent sketch by Mr. H. Norman of my Bramble, which appeared in the last issue of Cage Birds, writes Mr. C. Brotherhood, (Newport, Salop). Not only is the drawing in every way admirable, but the work of your staff is equally fine, when one takes into account the fact of the issue being actually on sale before the show (at which the bird was sketched) closed. Smart work this. The bird is a well known face on the show bench, and is enjoying a most successful career. Up to the present he has been exhibited 31 times under 16 different judges, result: 20 firsts, 4 seconds, 2 thirds, 5 fourths, including premier honours at the Palace, 1911, and most of the leading exhibitions throughout the country.

Wild-Bird Life.

The Chough at Home.

From time to time, at our most important shows, there appears a big black bird, with coral red beak and legs, in the class provided for the larger British birds. To the uninitiated the Chough has a somewhat foreign appearance, and his scarcity aids the deception. He has been driven from his old haunts by various means, not the least of which is the greed of the egg collector for annexing the eggs of a species which is now fast disappearing. The writer of these notes was fortunate enough recently to visit the home of a pair or two of these fine birds. The spot was a rough, rocky coast, where in some cases the cliffs rose straight up from the beach, and at high tide the waves dashed against them. At first the two or three large black birds seen occasionally were thought to be Crows or Jackdaws, and, as many other species claimed immediate attention, no particular notice was taken of them, but one day happening to get the glasses fixed upon the shape and the red legs and beak, identified them at once as Choughs, consequently for the rest of the visit a considerable time was given up in observing their doings. There appeared to be two pairs of them, and, although they mostly haunted a particular line of cliffs, at times one was unable to locate them. But chancing one day to get further inland in search of scenery and birds, the Choughs were noticed upon the side of a hill, pecking about in the neighbourhood of a flock of sheep. Some books tell us that the Chough never settles upon grass, but from personal observation it seems very probable that he gets most of his food upon the hillside and meadow-land. At times one could see them hunting upon the edge of the tide, or upon a sand-bar that was exposed at low water. The flight of the Chough is rather peculiar, somewhat resembling the dipping flight of the Wagtail: he drives through the air uttering a metallic "chaar."

I have been greatly interested, writes Mr. W. Hainsworth (Preston) in the articles "Musical Box of the Canary Family," "Unprolificacy in Canaries," and "Experiences of a 50 year breeder of Yorks. Canaries." They are splendid.

Everything that can be done to encourage exhibitors to support us, we are doing, even to accepting entries up to the last moment, which will include those bearing Saturday's (Nov. 2) postmark, write Messrs. King and Joiner, the hon. secs. of Portsmouth show. Good prize-money, magnificent specials.

Mr. R. Halliday has been engaged as assistant judge for Bradford East show, Nov. 16, writes Mr. H. Hill, the Sec., and he will judge at the Union novice classes and the selling. A silver-plated breakfast cruet will be given by Mr. J. W. Ramsden, Esq., for best colour-fed Yorks., fed solely on Ramsden's peppers, exhibitors to mark 'R.P.' on entry form. Dr. M. A. Wilson will give a bound volume for most points gained by member of Y.C.B.B. and M.C. in British.

Cause for Congratulation.

A most remarkable number of foreign orders have been received within the last week or so by that enterprising Norwich bird specialist, Mr. W. Rudd, which clearly evidences the great business his ability has built up, and the satisfaction his methods afford bird-keepers the world over. Here are a few of the orders in question (the originals can be inspected at Mr. Rudd's offices) and each order is from a different customer: Consignments of birds to Holland, France (3 lots), Gibraltar (3 lots), New Zealand, Belginm (2 lots), Turkey, South Africa (3 lots), Canada (5 lots), India (2 lots), Australia (3 lots), Italy, etc. Consignments of goods, cages, and other Bird Room requisites, to Malta, India (5 lots), Canada (3 lots), Ceylon (2 lots), Switzerland, Belginm, South Africa (3 lots), Australia, Nova Scotia and Asia Minor.

Through a Bird-room Window

This article on Blue-Crowned Hanging Parrakeets is No. 29 of the new series of personal birdy experiences related by that eminent aviculturist, the Rev. C. D. FARRAR.

No. 29.—My Blue-Crowned Hanging Parrakeets.

SOME years ago I was visiting my friend, Mr. Stevens, of York, who at that time had a fine collection of foreign birds; but who has now, alas, deserted his former love. Among some of the birds I greatly coveted were some lovely little Blue-crowned Hanging Parrakeets. For some reason, I forget what now, Mr. Stevens was in a reasonable mood, and agreed to let me have them. These were in a fairly large compartment in his bird-room, and looked the very picture of health. I believe, now I come to think of it, that Mr. Stevens was making some alterations in his premises, and was compelled to reduce his stock.

I had never been able to get any Blue Crowns before. They are fairly scarce at any time, as can be seen by scanning the advertisement columns of CAGE BIRDS and the dealers' weekly lists; so that I had no sort of hesitation in buying. Nature has no more intoxicating illusion than that of turning over a new leaf, or beginning a new life. When I got home, I felt a bit tired. Nothing fills one with so exquisite a weariness as a day spent in good resolutions and good thoughts, and when I started for York that morning I was positively brimming over with good resolves; and the chief was, that I was not going to buy any new birds (I believe because I thought Mr. Stevens wouldn't sell any) but merely to spend a happy day in looking at his treasures.

I know it only needs courage to say "No" at any time, but I always lack courage most of all. In vain I said to myself that it was like swimming, and all that one needed was the courage to make the plunge. That was the very thing I couldn't muster courage for. When, therefore, Mr. Stevens happened to say that the birds were for sale, I fell an ignominious victim to their beauty. If I hadn't, somebody else would.

There were lots of other birds for sale that day, and my eyes flew like bees from one to another; but alas, the res angusta domi presented a fatal obstacle to universal purchase, so I decided that it must be the Blue-crowned Love birds. It is worth while to interfere with such an accepted beatitude as—"Blessed are the untempted, for they shall be accounted the best men."

A Surreptitious Introduction.

On reaching home, I felt there would be a serious difficulty—how was I to get the birds upstairs without being found out? In the world, although deceptions are welcomed everywhere, it is only on certain conditions, one of which is that they must be carried through with a high hand. Still, I never neglect caution. There is a little window by our side door, and on this ledge I quietly deposited the cage, trusting that the birds would not betray me by any unseemly cries, and then went boldly forward to see how the land lay. The moment I entered the dining-room I was asked if I had spent a happy day, and a hope was expressed that I had enjoyed myself. I answered in general terms, and then, on the pretext that I must go upstairs to feed the birds, I quietly slipped across the hall, got the cage and stole upstairs as silently as a Chinese Empress returning to her disturbed dominions.

If anyone had met me they would have learnt nothing from my face, and would probably have concluded that the box I carried contained only some necessary items of food. The first woe was passed, but the second was about to begin. I wanted some honey, and there was none in the house. Tender enquiries were made as to why I wanted it. "Did I fancy some for tea?" No. Well, what did I want it for? At last I had to confess that I was going to give it to some of the birds. I made it as vague as possible, and my people are so accustomed to my strange ways that they probably concluded I was only making some curious new mixture.

Wherever I had seen Hanging Parrakeets in the shops, they looked so woe-begone and moribund that I felt sure the feeding was to blame. My birds were in such perfect form that I was sure that Mr. Stevens had done the right thing by them. Whenever I buy new birds, I carefully note how they have been fed. In this case I noticed that though there was a pot of soft food in the cage, there were also some lovely ripe bananas, and also a pot of honey.

The Way to Give Honey.

Now, honey, I believe, is absolutely essential to these birds to keep them in health, but honey is very messy stuff, and given unwisely will defile the most careful of birds. I don't say that my plan of giving it is the best, but I know of none better. I get a long deep glass vessel with a narrow neck, and hang it on the wires of the aviary near a perch, and fairly high up. The birds will soon find it. I suppose by the scent, and you will find that they make constant visits to it through the day; and they never make themselves in a mess. In fact, they can't. Whereas, give them an open vessel and they will get into it and smear themselves all over, like children who have free access to the jam-pot.

It is well to have a pot of soft food about, in case the birds seem inclined for it, but I believe they get the chief of their nutriment out of the banana and honey. It is well to put the food vessels all on the wires, as Blue Crowns very seldom descend to the floor, but spend most of their time on the wires or perches, hanging upside down. I put my Blue Crowns, of which I had some seven or eight, into a compartment of my indoor bird-room, and I arranged it with natural branches, which afforded them plenty of resting-places.

Blue Crowns, like all soft feeding birds, are very dirty in their excretions, and highly smelly; and so after a lot of thought I decided to cover the floor of the compartment with pine sawdust. This not only absorbed the moisture, but killed all smells. I forgot to say that I fastened a tin to the wire, filled with fine grit, as, of course, like all birds, they need it to assist digestion.

The Blue-crowns Described.

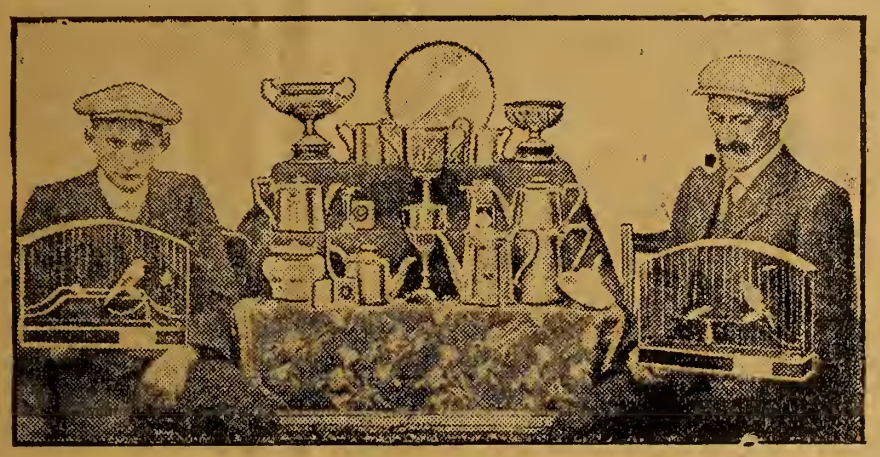
Blue Crowns are most lovely little creatures, of a beautiful metallic green, with a long blue crown of turquoise blue and a bib of the same. They are very small, about half the size of the Redfaced African Lovebird, and very weak billed. This is a distinct comfort. A nip from them is merely a gentle nibble, whereas the bite of a Red-faced African Lovebird is like the bite of a rat.

They are gentle little creatures, far more fond of climbing and creeping about than of flying; so that a compartment 4ft. by 6ft. is ample for half-a-dozen, and they agree perfectly with their cousins, the Red-crowned Hanging Parrakeets. I don't think that they are at all delicate; as I kept them all through a Northern winter in an unheated room, and I could never see that they seemed to suffer. They were always tight and spruce, which is the sure sign of health.

Kindness goes unrequited.

I hoped that I should be able to get them to nest, and I gave them every encouragement, I am sure, in the shape of tempting little log nests, but they refused to snap my well meant attempts. In fact, they were doing the same things day after day—a visit to the honey-pot, a mouthful of banana, a scramble in the soft food dish (wasting more than they consumed), and then a wild scramble up and down the branches, and at length a gentle snooze upside down and side by side.

Satiation—and a Fable.



Day after day to do the same thing, and month after month, is like eating a quail a day for thirty days. A quail toward the middle of the month, a fellow begins to feel for a boiled Crow or a slice of cold dog. That's how I felt after six months with my Blue Crowns. Still, I thought I ought to ask advice. You know you need never take it! There is a passage in Seldon's Table Talk, which if I recollect aright may be paraphrased in some such form as this: The lion reeking of slaughter, met his neighbour the sheep, and, after exchanging the time of day with her, asked her if his breath smelt of blood. She replied, "Yes." Therefore he snapped off her head for a fool. Immediately afterwards he met the jackal, to whom he addressed the same question. The jackal answered, "No," and the lion tore him to pieces for a flatterer. Last of all he met the fox and asked the question a third time. The fox replied that he had a cold in his nose, and could smell nothing.

I received a visit about the time of indecision from my friend, Mr. Oates, and I asked him what he would do. I fancy he must have read my fable, the moral of which is of course, that wise men say little at dangerous times, for he would give no advice, but told me I was old enough to please myself. Probably he did not wish to be called either a fool or a sycophant, and so meet the fate of his friend in the story.

A Sorrowful Parting.

I hate, above all things, having to make up my mind, and here clearly was a case where I should have to do so, but here again Fortune helped me. I fell ill, and for many weeks I was not allowed so much as to look at my birds, and their entire care devolved upon others. I can't tell the agonies I went through, wondering whether things were going right, whether anything had been forgotten. It is fearful to think what a single little act of forgetfulness may involve in an aviary. They said when I came down, my hair was perceptibly whiter. Everybody urged me to give up my birds, but this was too big a sacrifice. Still, I felt I must do something to appease the present unrest, so I determined to sacrifice my Blue Crowns.

I had studied them from all points, and found out all I could about them, and had discovered apparently that they had a rooted objection to reproduce their kind in this country. This being the case, I felt they must go, and make room for some more sympathetic species. One day a rich Ahab came along, coveted poor Naboth's vineyard, and got it, though without enacting murder by deputy, as in the old story. Alas, my poor little friends did not long survive. They were entrusted to the care of a "bird-man," and though I tearfully impressed upon him that without honey these birds would not live, he soon forgot to give it, and they got weary of life. I wished then that I had never seen them, and I have never been able to get them again.

Accompanying this issue will be found a coloured plate by Mr. H. Norman, of a group of Norwich Plainhead Canaries. When composing this picture Mr. Norman had not in mind the portrayal of ideal, or even idealised, specimens, but specimens with failings such as may be found in many of the exhibits seen at our shows. His reason for so doing was to enable us to get one or other of the leading Norwich Plainhead experts of the day to frankly criticise the birds depicted, so that we might thus provide what may be described as an object-lesson for those of our readers who are striving to secure a footing near the top of the ladder of success in the breeding of this popular variety. We are pleased to have been able to secure the kindly co-operation of that very good fancier, and famous breeder and exhibitor of the Plainhead, Mr. E. Baker, of Cowes, Isle-of-Wight, whose notes are given below. This gentleman's shrewd observations and helpful criticism will, we are sure, be widely appreciated. That the combination of Messrs. Norman and Baker will assist many to a better understanding of both the finer points and the failings of the Norwich Plainhead we have no manner of doubt.—Editor.

The Gentle Art of Criticism.

I HAVE much pleasure in acceding to your request for my opinion on the birds so well portrayed by Mr. H. Norman. I presume the Greens represent a yellow and buff. The top bird, the buff, has many good points, being short and cobby, and with wings well braced. It is, however, a little too stilty on legs, showing a little too much thigh, and has too straight a rise from base of beak to skull. The second Green I like much better. It has a nice rise or arch from the base of beak to skull, is smaller in beak, thicker in neck, and not so stilty on legs. This is a nice, typical bird, and one that many fanciers would call an ideal bird for putting type and colour into their stock.

The last bird is very nice bodied, stands well across the perch, but is not quite so nice at the tips of the wings. The worst feature, however, is its head. It is what I term "pigeon-shaped," that is, runs almost parallel from point of beak to the crown of the head. This is a fault I detest, for however good a bird may be in every other point, one of these heads drowns, so to speak, every other good feature. The bird has a very taking style, shows a very nice neck, though possibly a trifle too hollow.

In offering these criticisms on the birds portrayed, I have no doubt that many fanciers will not see eye to eye with me; others will say it is all right to write or talk about the perfect ones, but how many of them do you get? To such I would say the latter are few indeed, and although personally I do not claim that my judgment is worth much, I do claim to be a real lover of the Norwich, and every spare moment I have is spent with the birds, and every show that I can conveniently attend, I do. In my ramblings amongst them I have found that, although the breeding of the Norwich Canary has wonderfully improved, there remains much to be desired.

The Greatest Failing of All.

The chief fault is with the heads. This season I have visited two good shows, and have seen many real gems, but—what a lot I have seen with most beautiful bodies, short and cobby, with lovely quality of feather, but with thin necks, and narrow heads absolutely out of all proportion to the other parts of the bird. Now, as a breeder, I know only too well how very difficult it is to get the perfect ones. Still, I am confident that it can be improved upon. I am not a believer in pairing an almost perfect bird to an inferior one. Many a fancier will look out a real good one, nice in type, good in quality, with grand head and neck, and then for its mate will select a much more imperfect specimen, with poor body and weak head and neck, and pair up with the idea that the progeny from these will possess all the good points of the perfect parent, and none of the bad ones of the imperfect one. What a rude awakening they get.

How Failings Persist in Strains.

We often hear that you need not expect to get the best results from prize birds; that does not necessarily follow. Common sense should teach us that if we try to breed with the best of type and quality we have the right to expect that better results will follow. For instance, if you pair two grand headed birds with full necks, you have no reason to expect their progeny to have snipey heads and weak necks. True, you may get some that will be throw backs; one cannot altogether avoid undesirables.

I have been much impressed with the fact that you can go into a particular neighbourhood and begin to examine the birds of the fanciers of that district, and you perceive a weakness in the birds, it may be only a slight one, but as you go from room to room your experienced eye detects the same weakness. Then try and find out whence the stock originated, and you will in almost every case find it came from an old, or fairly successful fancier, and there you will find this same weakness. It has been perpetuated by all the stock coming from that strain. I remember being invited into a bird-room in the North; directly I entered I noticed a glaring fault with almost every bird. It was an enormous lump of fat on the chest, which absolutely spoilt the outline of the bird, and rendered it unfit for exhibition.

Why Not, Indeed?

Now, if all these failings can be perpetuated, why not the good points? Hence my advice to all fanciers and breeders is: Breed with those birds, both cocks and hens, possessing the most perfect points. I do not say that you may not then get plenty of wasters, but I do say that we shall see birds on the show bench containing a far greater percentage of good points, which will enhance their value, and be far better to look upon.

Before closing, I should like to put in a word for the judges. Almost every fancier must admit that judging is a most difficult task. A bird is often so wild durin the time a judge is making his selection, and so persiste in its apparent determination not to give the judge a chan of discovering its perfections or otherwise, that often has to be placed on one side. Yet possibly in an hour time a fancier comes into the room and says: "Oh, look here's the best in its class, and not a card." Little do they think of the anxious time that has been spent over it, and the utter despair of the judge who has conscientiously tried to do justice to the bird and its exhibitor.

At Plymouth I looked over a particular class of Norwich soon after entering the show, and was very pleased to see how well it had been judged, although my own bird had to take a second place. It gave me great pleasure to raise my hat to the first as being the best in the class. On visiting the class again some hours after, however, I could scarcely believe my eyes. The first prize bird then, even its owner would scarcely recognise it. It was drawn up like a Yorkshire; in fact, had its owner offered it me for 7s. 6d. and I had not seen it previously, I should have declined it. In one's own room one can see the rapid change in appearance of one's own birds. Hence every fancier should be as charitably disposed as possible towards the judges, and let the true spirit of a good fancier and sportsman dominate him. If we are beaten to-day, let us come up smiling to-morrow, and the possibility is that, whereas we are down to-day, we may see a first and special adorning our own cage to-morrow. That all good fanciers may meet with unbounded success this season is my sincere wish.

A PILLAR OF THE FANCY IN LANCASHIRE.

Mr. Sam Cook, of Newton Heath, a celebrated breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Plainhead Canaries, with some of the trophies won by his birds.

In travelling from show to show I have been much impressed with the very fine type and style of the Green Norwich, and often have I heard the remark passed, "What a pity it is we cannot get the Clears so good." I have invariably found that where the Greens were of such exceptionally good type and quality the breeders had bred from the same strain for many years, hence, doubtless, the birds were more or less inbred; consequently the type had become thoroughly established. My previous opinion was confirmed in looking at the perfect specimens exhibited by my friend Mr. Deacon of Liverpool. His, of course, were the grass green kind, which many fanciers refuse to breed into their Norwich because of the tone of colour.

A Reputation Besmirched.

Many fanciers are of opinion that the bronze greens are great producers of colour. From many years' experience in breeding I doubt somewhat whether this kind deserves all that is claimed for it. I have introduced some of the best bronze greens procurable, and paired them with some of my best yellows and buffs, but the results have been most disappointing. I do not say that some fanciers may not have obtained satisfactory results. I merely give my own experimental results. Undoubtedly the secret here, as with almost all others, lies in getting the two birds whose feathers are best suited to produce the best results, or, as my friends in the North would say, "You want two that hits it."

The yellow eye and wing-marked represents a very nice bird but possessing some of the faults of the first Green, viz., is too straight from beak to crown of head, and too leggy for a good Norwich. In spite of these slight faults, it is a bird of nice type, and one doubtless many fanciers would like to possess.

The centre bird of the three, lightly marked on the eye, is a really bonny specimen, and my choice of the five, being very short and typical, standing well across the perch and possessing a nice head and neck, a nice short beak, and that very desirable rise from the beak to the skull. The plate I have seems to show a slight flatness on the top of the head, which somewhat spoils the otherwise almost perfect specimen.

UNPROLIFICACY IN CANARIES.

with other partners. If despite these manifestations, the eggs are unfertile, I consider such infertility may be attributed to incompatibility of disposition, mutuality being, I believe, essential to successful impregnation.

Thus we have innumerable instances of unfertile eggs from Canary (and especially Hybrid) pairs which have given more grounds for the belief that the mating would be productive than another pair which have produced fertile eggs. In the latter case mutuality will have existed for a period sufficient to allow an effective copulation, however antagonistic may have been their previous or subsequent attitude. In the course of the experiments I have described in testing the fertilising powers of the male, I am fairly certain that I have succeeded in getting fertile eggs from pairs which, if mated in the orthodox manner, would have proved unreproductive, the antagonism displayed after copulation being, in many cases, so acute as to give grounds for the belief that such forced company would have the effect of engendering a repulsion detrimental to further copulation if the first should prove premature or ineffectual. But I fear I am going too deeply, and though I should have liked to give my views of certain other causes of unprolificacy and hereditary effects I will close with the hope that the above has given the breeder grounds for belief that a remedy for unprolificacy is possible.

A HORRIBLE PARASITE.

When I was examining a freshly-killed Song Thrush, an evil-looking insect appeared from under its feathers, slid rapidly along with a peculiar skating movement, and vanished once more in the plumage, says a writer in the "Manchester Guardian." It was a flat-bodied, green, blood-sucking parasite, one of the Diptera or two-winged flies. Next time it appeared it took wing, but after a buzz round alighted on my jacket. It repeated this manœuvre every time I tried to catch it, pitching upon me time after time, but at last I bottled it. My museum friend, to whom I sent it, tells me that this is a well-known habit, and quotes from Austin's "British Blood-sucking Flies":—"If a bird infested by one of these insects be shot, the parasite will sometimes take wing and fly with great pertinacity round and round the person carrying the bird."

Unprolificacy in Canaries.

The final instalment of a well-considered and intensely interesting article which has caused Canary breeders to think.

Effect of Vibration or Shock.

MANY fanciers dread shock as being detrimental to incubation; a slammed door or the dropping of any heavy article being sufficient to raise their hair. While I deprecate any unusual shock or noise, as being likely to frighten sitting hens, the fact that I have seen eggs successfully incubated in such places as main line signal boxes, with expresses thundering past within a few feet of the breeding cages, and in engine-houses where the vibration of the machinery was distinctly visible on the cages, convinces me that the dangers are more apparent than real. Extremes of vibration and shock must have been endured by a Wagtail whose nest I located under the sleeper of a main line where traffic was almost continuous, yet she not only continued to sit while the trains passed over her, but reared her brood.

I have on a few occasions seen a clutch of eggs condemned as having perished because they failed to hatch out on the fourteenth day. I would warn the young fancier against such action, as the incubatory period is slightly elastic, and may be prolonged either because of the hen not sitting very close, or failing to generate sufficient heat, and an extension of incubation should always be allowed. Placing eggs in tepid water reveals whether or not the chick is alive. If the egg shows no signs of motion, it may safely be presumed the embryo has perished. I will now return to the bird and deal with

The Bad Feeder.

This is one of the most common causes of mortality, and if anything could be more annoying than a failure of chicks to make their appearance, it is the seeing their parents or foster parents allowing them to die of starvation. I need hardly picture the feelings of the fancier who has had his hopes raised by producing valuable Canaries or Hybrids, only to have them shattered by a failure of the hen to feed. The fact that he may not be able to estimate the value of his losses is not consolatory. In one case which came under my notice, the breeder had made an arrangement with certain members of his society to let them have all the young he should get from a certain pair at £5 each. He got nine, every one of which perished for lack of maternal attention. The good wife of another breeder here adopted a sole survivor and mothered it in her breast with a zeal which was rewarded by seeing it later proclaimed champion of the year.

Not Always Mother's Fault.

I am convinced that a large percentage of the infantile mortality ascribed to bad feeding is not due to any lack of attention on the part of the mother or foster, but to an inherent weakness in the chick, such weakness being only so much less pronounced than with those which perished in the pre-natal stage as to delay the fatality. Thus it would be wrong to ascribe all such fatalities to failures on the part of the hen, as it is sometimes not a case of she would not, but that she could not feed them. A refusal to take food almost invariably becomes manifest in infantile debility. I have seen hens fail to rear the offspring from certain parents notwithstanding that they had proved their maternal qualities by repeatedly rearing other broods, and I have seen this happen so often, and with such reliable feeders, that no other conclusion seems feasible. I have even placed two eggs from high class stock under a common hen, together with two from common birds, giving the former a few days' start to ensure their getting the best attention. The nobility went under, and the common survived in a manner which, however desirable to a communist in politics, is disgusting to a bird-breeder.

Even Good Feeders Fail.

Residing, as I do, in a centre of breeders once noted for a type of birds dependent on foster parents, I have had many times a request for feeding hens, and, in hopes of saving valuable stock, have given of my best, but the results were so unsatisfactory that though I had hens which I could guarantee to feed, I ultimately refused to recognise the rearing of these degenerates as a fair test of my hens' abilities.

An instance of such failure is worth recording. In order to save four nestlings for a brother fancier, I was under the necessity of increasing a brood to eight, and, despite that the hen was unaided in the task, she reared the lot. Before she laid her second clutch she was transferred to a class breeder as a feeder, and to my surprise returned as being of no use for the purpose. On the very day of her return some cricketers brought a nest of Pipits, the mother bird of which they had accidentally killed. They were about four days old, and, having no other means of saving them, I placed them beside the alleged bad feeder, and although she had not been broody she at once covered and ultimately reared them. Needless to say, I let the party who condemned her witness the performance. That there are bad feeders is beyond question, and my opinion is that, bad as they are, they will require to degenerate still further before the bird-breeders of Britain awake to the fact that an improvement is necessary or possible.

Fighting Against Nature.

The ancients had a maxim "Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad." A modern version of this may read, "Whom nature would destroy, she first makes unnatural." The Canary culturist has obviously produced a type in which a decline in maternal instinct is very manifest. His method of combating such manifestation of deterioration in a feature of such paramount importance is neither sound in theory nor effective in practice, being confined to food and conditions. He never dreams of stamping out an unnatural and inherent departure and tendency by eliminating from his stock those individuals which reveal such deterioration, but, by transferring their progeny to those which have not yet deteriorated, he endeavours to circumvent the natural law which would have of itself provided a check. On the contrary, by breeding and inbreeding with even the worst of these, he has perpetuated and increased the unnatural tendency.

The tendency naturally reveals itself in its most malignant form in the most valuable specimens, and these are transferred to a less valuable type as fosters. The result has been the production of certain types in which the maternal instinct has been almost extinguished, and that the tendency is spreading to the less valuable types is evident from the increasing difficulty of providing reliable foster mothers for the higher class, but more degenerate, types.

A High Estimate of Infantile Mortality.

We have no reliable means of ascertaining how much of the mortality in young Canaries and Hybrids is attributable to bad feeding, as those which die in the nest would include those weaklings I have already referred to, but I have no hesitation in saying that more than fifty per cent. of the birds bred each season succumb during the nestling period. No doubt many succeed in rearing a large proportion, but I could give instances of experienced breeders who have failed to rear more than five or six per cent. of their young birds this season, notwithstanding that they had fifteen to twenty hens as feeders. That the introduction of even one individual bird which is a degenerate in prolific or maternal qualities may, by breeding and inbreeding, result in transmitting such degeneracy to a hitherto prolific and good feeding stock, I have proved by repeated experiments.

Special Feeding No Remedy.

We have lately had in these columns a good illustration of the diversity of opinions which obtain as to feeding methods, the claim of each advocate being that his method either imparted a robustness to the young or tempted the hen to perform her maternal duties, and thus promoted prolificacy and reduced mortality. That each and all of these methods or materials have proved effective in rearing young I do not for one moment doubt, but that in any method of feeding we have a remedy for an inherent weakness, or a like decline in maternal instinct, I do not for one moment credit.

That individual birds exhibit an idiosyncrasy in taste I am well aware, and by pandering to such they might be induced to so gorge themselves as to respond to the call of their brood for a share, and thus the latent maternal instinct might be stimulated or awakened. I have on quite a few occasions brought about a similar result by placing a brood of vigorous, clamorous Greenfinches under a hen, but that in any method of feeding we have a cure for the evils I have described is discountenanced by the fact that each and all have proved, or will prove, a failure when applied to a degenerate stock, and that a healthy and prolific stock can be maintained on each, all, or even none, of these materials as an addition to the ordinary seeds.

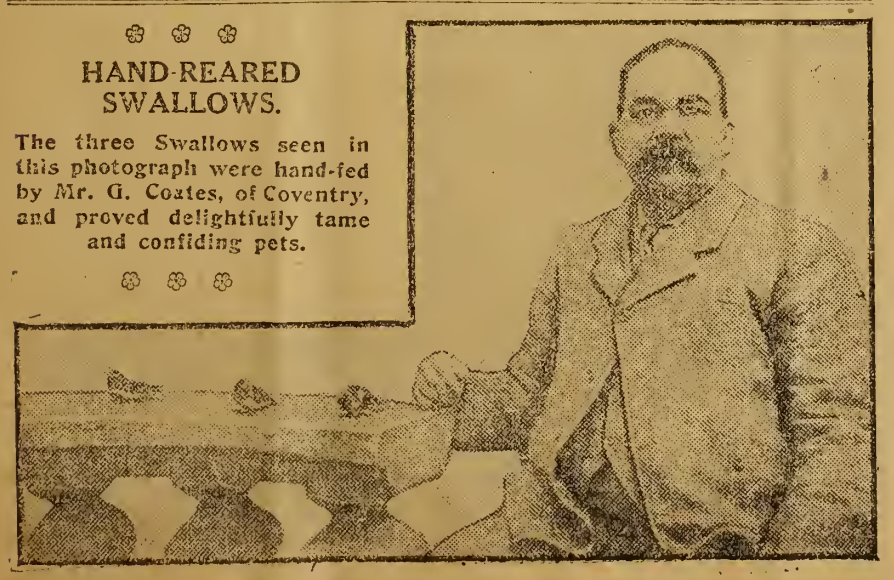
A Food that is Wanted!

If a chemist were to claim that he had discovered a food which had the combined properties of eradicating inherent weakness and imparting strength and a high form of intelligence, reducing infantile mortality to a minimum in the human race, that food or cure would have to prove its efficacy by test on obvious degenerates. If on the other hand, a physiologist were to claim that he could by lethal or preventive methods stamp out insanity and hereditary diseases, I believe that not a single physician in Europe would deny the truth of his claim, though they might decry the drasticity of his suggested methods.

How can those who advocate any particular form of food as a preventive of infantile mortality in Canaries explain why some breeders experience a most prolific season though they have used such apparently unsuitable foods as dog biscuits, oatmeal or maize, while other breeders have nothing but a beggarly array of empty cages to show for a heavy expenditure on foods possessing a much higher, or at least more concentrated, form of nourishment?

I have myself used as a food for birds the seeds of Ragweed, a weed of which the famous Burroughs said it must be the food of the gods, if anything, as nothing terrestrial (not even billygoats) would eat it; but even though it possessed the miraculous powers popularly ascribed to it, it still would not provide a solution to the question.

Incompatibility of Temperament.



Another cause is one which, for reasons mentioned in the first part of this article, I cannot deal with as I should wish without introducing generative phenomena which would be out of place in these pages. I may state that this is contesting the fertilising powers of the male. I am fairly certain American town. I believe they term it incompatibility of temperament. However, applied in an avicultural sense, it may be explained thusly: a pair of birds may be so opposite in temperament (nature or disposition) that copulation either becomes ineffective or never takes place. It may be that there has been every reason to believe that the eggs from a certain pair should have been fertile, by the friendly disposition of the birds towards each other, copulation taking place, and the birds both having proved reproductive

The Fascinating Goldfinch.

By F. J. WICKHAM (Chatham).

A well-known South-country exhibitor and judge relates his experiences with and gives some practical advice concerning this most popular of all British Birds.

EARLY December is the best time to buy Greypates, as they are by that time in full colour. The young birds are easily selected, those which have a nice light crimson in blaze should be chosen. Avoid all birds that show too much blackness around the beak; also those which have dark lines through the under-blaze, which would count against them in keen competition.

In selecting possible exhibition birds, careful study is necessary. The bird of our choice should have a full head and an extra large square blaze, while there should be plenty of tanning on the breast. One must not be led away by expecting the bird to improve out of recognition with a house-moult. If the blaze is not very large when the bird is purchased and the tanning is not pronounced, nothing can be done to make it an ideal one; there must be the good blaze and plentiful tanning on the bird when it is purchased.

For my Goldfinches, I use a single Norwich breeder; that is, a cage about 18in. long and 11in. deep. I believe in giving birds plenty of room. Two or three birds may be put together for a time in one of these cages, until they get well on seed. It is then best to let each have a cage to itself; they steady down much quicker if treated thus. I cover my cage-bottoms with coarse pine sawdust; from my own experience, there is nothing better. I recommend the use of a glass fountain for seed; Greypates, generally speaking, are wasteful, and you will find that glass vessels are better than a box for feeders—the birds will not be able to waste so much.

Where Opinions Differ.

I cannot pretend to say which are the "correct" seeds for Master Goldie when kept in confinement, now that fanciers are recommending plain canary seed; but whatever you have been successful with, stick to it. I am inclined to believe, however, that we do give Goldfinches too rich a diet. My seed mixture is as follows: 1 part hemp seed, 1 part teazel seed, 3 parts canary seed, ½ part niger seed, ½ part linseed. Be sure to buy only the best quality seed; it is far cheaper in the end. I have known exhibitors feed their Goldies on hemp seed only, and their birds have been in splendid condition. For myself, I do not believe in giving too much hemp seed, and I recommend cracked sunflower seed in place of a too generous use of it.

Being a Canary fancier also, in the spring when I am thinking about getting cages ready for the breeding season, I take my Goldfinches out of the stock cages and turn them into a large flight; by this time your field-moulted Goldfinches should have become fairly tame. If you are fortunate enough to have a garden aviary, turn them into it in preference to keeping them in the bird house during the summer.

When Perfection Should be Attained.

The moult is the most important part of the Goldfinch's career. Nothing beats a good outside aviary in which to moult your birds, if you want to get the colour so necessary in exhibition Britishers. You will notice that some of your birds will moult earlier than others; watch these, and when you see the blaze finished (this is the final part of the moult) get your stock cages ready in the bird house, and transfer the birds to these to get the finishing touches in readiness for the shows.

You should then run those that you purchased the previous winter, and that have not previously been trained for the show bench, into show cages; do this as many times as possible, once a day at least, until they settle down quietly, which they will soon do, after which it is no longer necessary. At the same time, you must not forget the bath. You can hang this on your cage almost any day, and it should be removed by noon to avoid the bird's feathers being damp too late in the day, which may set up a chill. The bath is the king of "conditioners," without which there can never be obtained that beautiful glossy finish so much desired in exhibition specimens.

The Treatment of Invalids.

Before I close this brief account of the way I have successfully moulted and exhibited the Goldfinch, the reader may possibly like to know how I treat my Goldfinches when they ail in any way: also what tit-bits I give them. First, I will deal with the tit-bits that I give throughout the birds' moult. The same treatment will suffice to bring Master Goldie into breeding condition. After I remove my birds from the aviary to stock cages, I commence by adding a liberal supply of linseed to my usual mixture; also twice a week I add a small piece of sulphate of iron, the size of half a split pea; this tones the bird up, and it also counteracts the laxative effect of linseed on the bowels. After the bird has completed the moult, and is ready for exhibition, I continue the use of iron, and give only a small quantity of linseed. I collect my own wild seeds, as this ensures my having new seed each year. The wild seeds I use are: Dandelion, thistle, lettuce, and maw (poppy); equal parts of each, mixed each morning, and supplied throughout the moult. I give half a teaspoonful to each bird, and I crack for them a few sunflower seeds, giving to each not more than half a dozen seeds.

It is when the special prizes come to be awarded that "trouble" sometimes ensues. How many challenge cups have led to "words," we wonder, before the winners of them were finally decided upon?

The Importance of Promptitude.

Now, with regard to the treatment of ailing birds. You will find that Greypates or fresh-caught Goldies have a habit of "going queer" after you have had them a month or so. This is possibly brought on by the extreme change from a wild life to a cage life. A quick eye is valuable here to notice the bird immediately it shows any signs of ailing. If you wait till the bird has his head under his wing you will be too late. The slightest sign of slackness of feathers is time for action. If the bird is with others, remove it to a single cage; you will generally find that the bird is wasting. Give him a liberal supply of good maw seed (as much as he will eat); it will do him no harm. Also, be sure to give clean water, twice a day if possible; this treatment I have followed with success. At the same time, keep the bird supplied with the usual mixture. In about a week's time the bird should be well again. In obstinate cases, if the bird is not too thin, I give a few drops of syrup of buckthorn in the water—only once, however—following this with a tonic in the water; this I keep up for a few days. If you have any mealworms, tempt the bird with one, cutting one in halves and putting a piece on the perch with a little maw seed sprinkled over it; this will generally put the bird right again. A word of warning: On no account give an ailing bird much niger; I never use this for a sick bird. Niger will keep birds alive for a good while, but eventually they "join the majority." I believe it is the extravagant use of niger seed that kills so many of our imported Siberian Goldies. This is the way I have successfully kept and exhibited Goldfinches for the last fifteen years.

Up in the Morning Early!

A pleasing interlude in the career of a fancier who wanted to "know things."

By E. H. FULCHER (Levenshulme).

"CAN I catch birds? Well, if you can find a man in Manchester that can learn me anything about bird-catching, I should jolly well like to see him."

This was the answer to a question I asked a man to whom I had been introduced as a likely chap to give me an insight into the methods adopted by bird-catchers. I will call him "Charlie." Charlie and I soon made a bargain. I did not haggle a great deal about terms, as I thought that a man with all the confidence in himself which Charlie seemed to have must be a very independent individual indeed. So, as I have said, a bargain was struck.

Charlie knew a chap who had all the necessary implements, including clap-nets, lime-twigs, call birds, etc. He himself had given up catching, as he found it did not agree with his health. Nevertheless, out of friendship for the gentleman who had introduced us (possibly helped by the liquid refreshment I had paid for) he decided to break through his usual arrangements and personally conduct me. It was decided that we should meet on the outskirts of the city at a very early hour the next morning.

Striking the Happy Medium.

Now, if there is one thing I object to these cold mornings it is getting up early. I have nearly as strong an objection to going to bed; so I decided that the best way out of the difficulty was to do neither. Thus I was able to get to the trysting place well on time. I have come to the conclusion that this particular place is the coldest and bleakest place in Great Britain—not forgetting Ireland. I waited for my guide for two solid hours. I did not know his address, or I would have gone and played "knocker-up" for him. I hardly liked to go away and leave him, as I thought he might have had some difficulty in getting the nets, etc. So I kept myself awake, and fairly cool, doing "sentry go" on a narrow strip of dry footpath.

I am glad to put it on record that my patience (pig-headedness, I have heard it called) was at last rewarded—Charlie turned up. Of course, I wanted to know what he took me for; and equally of course, Charlie had a good excuse ready. He pointed out that he was not two hours late. The hour we had decided on was 4 a.m.; I had turned up at 3 a.m.; he had turned up at 5 a.m. So, seeing that we were both one hour wrong, we decided to split the difference and say no more about it. I was reminded of a friend of mine who always turns up late to an appointment. He considers it a great waste of time to be punctual and wait for the other man.

Charlie's Stock Begins to Fall.

However, let us get along with the story. We divided into two parts the bundle which Charlie had brought, and each taking a share of the tackle, we started off to the place of which Charlie knew. This place, according to Charlie, is absolutely the best place in England for wild birds of all kinds. But by this time I had come to the conclusion that I should be quite safe in knocking off ten per cent. for cash from anything which Charlie said. Allowing this discount, I came to the conclusion that it was perhaps the second, or probably the third, best place in England.

Eventually, we arrived at the second (or third) best place in England. Here we set about fixing our nets and snares. I had often heard about the folly of spreading the nets in sight of the birds. We, at any rate, did not make this mistake. I may as well say right here that it was precious few birds we saw, either during the fixing, or afterwards! However, we got the clap-nets fixed. We had a good deal of trouble, and I came to the conclusion that Charlie was very much out of practice at fixing nets.

I tried my hand at pulling the string, so that I might be in readiness in case Charlie was otherwise engaged at a critical juncture. I found there was more art in this than I had imagined: the nets did not budge. Charlie assured me that it would be "all right on the night," so to speak. "There's a trick in pulling the nets that takes practice to acquire," he said.

After we had scattered a quantity of seed around to entice the birds to come down, we thought we might as well take the drag nets, and bag a few Larks while waiting for things to mature. We dragged that net from end to end of the field; then we dragged it from side to side; but we caught nothing. It may have been that the Larks had not yet arrived. Day was only just beginning to dawn. Still, we decided to stick by the clap-nets, and thus make sure of a few of the Finches.

I noticed that the seed did not seem to have been disturbed; but Charlie said that we could not tell to one or two amongst all that lot. We settled down to the serious business of waiting for the birds to come down and be caught. I had not had time for a smoke since arriving at the scene of our sport (or perhaps I had better call it labour), so I pulled out my pipe and started to charge up.

Charlie pulled me up at once with the remark: "The last thing you should do if you want to catch birds is to smoke. You have no idea what a keen scent the birds have for anything like that."

The Result of the "Night Out."

I felt quite guilty, but just at that moment there was a commotion at my elbow. Charlie was tugging at the string for all he was worth! On looking up, I saw a bird calmly eating our seed; but the nets refused to act. I get quite excited, and made a dash with the bag which had contained our tackle. I managed with this to capture the cheeky little glutton. It turned out to be a Sparrow.

I now had a good look at the nets and found it was impossible for them to work the way they were fixed. I decided that fifty per cent. was a reasonable discount to allow in future when listening to anything Charlie had to say! I thought, too, that I had wasted enough time messing about with tackle which I did not understand. Charlie offered to have another try at fixing the nets, but I excused him. Think of the time I had wasted when I might just as easily have been in bed—or smoking!

The net result of my night out amounted to one Sparrow and a pair of the coldest feet I ever had in my life. I found out afterwards that Charlie was a non-smoker; but after I pointed out to him that it was quite possible to create a thirst by the use of tobacco, he decided to have a try with the weed.

How Can We Make Our Shows Pay?

Sir,—A mistake in the figures has crept into my letter of last week, under the above heading. The Norwich classes at Burnley averaged 20.23, and not 27.40, as therein stated.

[New Cage Bird Society for Selby, Yorks.

Sir.—Fanciers will be pleased to hear that the Selby and Dis. birdy men held a very enthusiastic meeting on Tuesday, October 22. The meeting was unanimous that a cage bird society should be formed, with that old fancier, Mr. J. H. Dixon, as chairman and treas. All old and new fanciers are heartily invited to join and attend the next meeting, to be held in the Public Rooms, Nov. 21st.

A Useful Wild Seed for Birds.

Sir,—Those of your readers who live in the country may like to know what a favourite food for Finches, especially Greenfinches and Goldfinches, the Devil's-bit is when in seed. This plant (Scabiosa succisa) is of the Scabious tribe, and grows commonly in damp meadows and paths of woods. Its stems and both sides of its leaves are hairy, and in August the purplish-blue flowers occur at the ends of the many branches that emanate laterally from the stem. The seed heads follow very quickly, and may be found quite up to the end of October. The plant is closely related to the teasel and the knap-weed, the latter of which bird-keepers know by the name of hardheads.

Alleged Protest at the City of Glasgow O.A. Show.

A Contradiction.

Sir,—In looking over your report of the City of Glasgow O.A.'s Show, I find that your reporter has said that he "heard that a protest was lodged against a certain bird, but as the owner had received his prize-money, the Society has refused same. It is a pity, as it only causes ill-feeling in the Fancy." I wish this statement contradicted, so far as I am concerned, as secretary for the Norwich, Border, Yorkshire, British and Foreign bird sections, as no protest was ever lodged this year, and consequently the society could not refuse same. I may further state that should a protest have been lodged, it would have been my duty to accept same and not refuse, although prize-money had been paid. Further, you might state that in class 34, unflighted Norwich yellow hen, the 3rd prize was won by Mr. Wm. Simpson, of Airdrie, and not by Mr. John Young, of Rutherglen, as stated.

The Cleansing of Closed Top Water Fountains.

Sir,—Concerning the cleansing of blue top water bottles (or drinking fountains), we recommend your correspondents to try a small quantity of coarse gravel, and a little soap powder.

A Starling with a Ring.

Sir,—I enclose a metal ring of Messrs. Witherby, High Holborn, numbered 7,000, which I have no doubt was on a Starling shot by some society on Oct. 22 at Oak Hill, Woodford Green.

[We hope all cases of birds found wearing rings will be reported to us, with date and place of capture, as if this is done, valuable help will be given to the study of bird distribution and migration.—Editor.]

A Novel Material for Nest Linings.

Sir,—The best substitute for cow hair I have found to be combings from rough haired terrier dogs. It makes capital lining material. Put it in a box with a piece or two of carbon or camphor to drive away all insects, and it is ready for use. In combing my own dog, though, I have never seen anything alive among the hair! A piece of carbon placed here and there among the cages keeps away red mite. I have never seen any since using it, that is, for years.

A Vexed Point.

The Half-prize Money Under Eight Entries Rule.

Sir,—A most vexed point with regard to exhibiting is that at some shows you find in the schedule the prize-money given in large type, and in small type amongst the rules that half-money only is paid in classes with less than 8 entries. In my opinion the right method is not to support such shows, for the exhibitors cannot help how many are sending birds in each class, and 8 is a lot too much to look for. On the other hand, who cares to send out birds for a first prize of a few shillings, with fee and rail expenses to pay? If this rule must be adopted, it should be for classes of under 5, then shows would get better support.

John Andrews.

A Remedy for Linnets Going Light.

Sir,—Seeing in your popular paper, Cage Birds, that a fancier wants a remedy, I can tell him of a cure for Linnets going light. First give a change of food, such as maw seed and niger, and a little egg food; also give a supply of shepherd's purse, and dandelion leaves. Use a handful of garden mould in the place of sand. You must give Linnets clean water twice a day, taking care to clean the water vessels out before putting fresh water in. The writer should get the "Nutshell" booklet on the Linnet from Cage Birds office (2½d. post free); it tells him the best seeds for a Linnet.

Hy. Phillips.

Sir,—I should recommend "Linnet Fancier" to try the "Maryline," a remedy which has been advertised in Cage Birds. My birds were going light, and they were cured with this.

Joseph Owen.

Foreign Birds at the City of Glasgow Show.

Sir,—Your correspondent's remark on the above in last week's Cage Birds are pertinent and highly appropriate. The falling-off in entries cannot be attributed to lack of classification or prize-money offered, as the City of Glasgow is the only society, to my knowledge, that guarantees full prize-money in every class. Then what is the reason? Is it faulty judging? Then, again, on any schedule we get how often do we see: "Unless seven or more entries, first prize money will be withheld." Very few foreign bird fanciers will go to the trouble and expense, not to mention the risk, of sending rare and valuable specimens on the almost certainty of getting half prize-money with a shilling kept off for prize-card, which very few want. My advice is, do away with the prize-card, and as this section is an attraction (as witness the Scottish National Show) the committees ought to guarantee it, and the enhanced gate would certainly follow.

Is the Progress of the Scotch Fancy Being Retarded?

Hints of a Combine and Inflated Prices.

Sir,—I agree with your correspondent, "Norwich Cock," that Scotch Fancy breeders are on the down grade, and, in my opinion, the reason is not far to seek. The extravagant price that is demanded for class stock birds is entirely out of the reach of the average fancier. No later than the last Glasgow City show, a pair of birds was claimed at a very handsome sum. Now where is the ordinary club member that is able to compete against the produce of this pair at the club shows? They can't, and they simply cease to be members. I am sorry to state that I met several old and respected fanciers at the City, who are giving up and who have bred some good ones in their day. One reason I got for their retirement, was that they were up against a combine, and good stock could not be had at a reasonable price. Personally, I agree that there is a great deal in this argument. Also I am satisfied that there are plenty of grand stock birds to be had at a reasonable price; if town fanciers would only visit our country shows more, it would be to their interest, and leave this so-called combine severely alone when buying in stock. I have no doubt there will be a reaction in prices in the near future, and I sigh for the days when we had about a dozen club shows around Glasgow, as against three to-day.

A Novice's Crystal Palace Winner.

A Disclaimer.

Sir,—I am very much surprised to see in Cage Birds of Oct. 19 that Mr. A. J. A. Marley says, in his advertisement, that the 1st prize fed Greenfinch at the Scottish National show last year was bought from him. Well, I say it is not true, for the bird was caught on the Bathgate Hills by its owner, and that's me. So I hope Mr. Marley will correct the mistake he has made.

How a Novice Attained Success with Norwich Plainheads.

A Win at the Palace in His Second Year

Sir,—I must thank you for the fine drawing you are publishing this week of my lightly marked buff Norwich cock, which stood first in its class in the open novice section at the last Crystal Palace Show. This was the bird's first appearance in the open, although it had won several firsts and specials at my club's shows under various judges. It was not, I consider, a bad performance for a second year novice to win at the Palace, the first time of asking, with a youngster of his own breeding. I took up Norwich Plainheads as a hobby at the latter end of the year 1909, with a few pairs purchased from a well-known London fancier and successful exhibitor. With these I had good results, breeding the first year 56 fine youngsters, and among them my Palace winner. The second year I did not do so well owing to illness at home, and other reasons. Last season was a good one, my youngsters numbering 52. I generally put up eight to ten pairs, and only take two rounds. I attribute what measure of success I have attained first of all to joining a good club, and although the Queen's Park (London) and District C.B.A., to which I have the honour to belong, is comparatively small as regards the number of its members, it comprises a very keen and enthusiastic set of fanciers, and real jolly good fellows, a visit to the society's shows and meetings invariably intensifying one's "bird fever." Next I attribute success in my hobby to absolute cleanliness, good, roomy, comfortable cages, with rather wide perches, abundance of sound, wholesome seed (the best that can be bought), boiled drinking water and regularity in feeding. My favourite seed next to giant Spanish canary is niger, of which I use quite a large quantity, with beneficial results. And last, but not least, to a careful perusal of Cage Birds week by week, cutting out any important hints and notes and pasting them in an indexed book for handy and easy reference. I once more thank you for your capital sketch of my bird, and wish Cage Birds, which has done so much for the Fancy, every prosperity.

The Mislaid Entries at Huddersfield Show.

Yorkshire Canary Club Takes Action.

Sir,—A committee meeting was held at Great Horton Show, to take into consideration what should be done in fairness to the members who, through no fault of their own, had practically been put out of the running at the first competition show of the season. Various propositions were considered by the committee, and eventually it was decided that each member whose entries had been overlooked should be allowed 11 points for that show.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4) Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

WEAK AND TENDER CLAWS (J. H.).—It is the toe rather than the claws, I suspect, which appear red and tender. The fact of the bird being the only youngster in the brood and the hen sitting on it closely should not have had this effect if the bird had been well fed. But it was probably neglected by the parents and only half-fed, so to speak, and consequently has grown up weakly. Give it proper sized and shaped perches, which it can grip comfortably, and see they are well-fitting and not "wobbly." Bathe the feet once a day for a week in a saucer of warm water to which you have added a teaspoonful of extract of wych hazel. Dry gently and paint on with a feather a little of the undiluted extract. Give the bird, in addition to its usual seed diet, a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut on which you have dropped two drops of cod-liver-oil emulsion and sprinkled well with maw seed every second day for two or three weeks, and on the alternate days a pinch of mixed seed and a piece of some green salad. Add twenty drops of Chemical Food to the water every second day for a month.

NOT SINGING AND BAD PLUMAGE (F. F.).—(1) There is evidently a risk of the Crest cock overfeeding if you are too liberal with luxuries, so be careful to limit it to the quantities I am going to name. The bare patch at back of crest is a natural defect, and nothing will cure it. To bring it on song, see that it is kept in a comfortable and healthy place, and quite free from cold draughts and fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of a mixture of summer rape, hemp, niga, and teazle in equal parts every second day for two or three weeks, and on the alternate days in the first fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod-liver-oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with equal parts maw and gold of pleasure. Give a spray of watercress daily. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepennypiece every second day for a week, and in the next week four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid. (2) The bad plumage of this hen is undoubtedly due to red mites, which would be harbouring in the cage it had occupied during the summer. See that this pest is now kept at bay, and allow bird to bathe freely in mild weather. Feed for a month the same as the Crest cock, but add another one part of millet to the mixed seed, and instead of the oil and sherry in the sponge cake, slightly dust it with flour of sulphur each time before sprinkling with the seed, and in the water add as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepennypiece every second day for a fortnight instead of the above-named drugs.

FAULTY TOE (W. T. H. S.).—Give the bird full-sized perches, and see that they fit securely and firmly, so as to be free from wobbly movements when the bird alights on them. Get two saucers, place side by side, and fill one with cold water and the other with fairly hot water—about as hot as you can easily bear holding the tenderest part of the front of your wrist in for some time. Then catch the bird and hold the foot immersed in the hot water for a minute or two, then transfer it at once to the cold water for a similar length of time, then back to the hot again, next the cold, and so on, repeating the changes until the foot has been tormented in both waters four or five times, and be careful to finish in the cold water. Then dry the foot, and paint the weak toe with a feather dipped in Friar's Balsam. Repeat this process every second day for a fortnight, or you may cease sooner if the toe quickly resumes its proper functions.

A QUARTETTE (R. S., Hull).—(1) The common practice is to mate up in the spring any birds bred in the previous season. Thus a late-bred bird may not be more than eight months old when mated in, say, the following March or April. These birds will be quite old enough to breed successfully, but they should, as far as possible, be given mates over a year old. It is not judicious, to say the least, to breed always with very young birds, which must be still nordering on immaturity. This is especially the case with large breeds, and here at least some breeders hold over a portion of their yearling stock until the second season before mating them, which is a very sound policy. The last week in March and first week in April is the best all-round time to mate the birds. Birds kept in a warm kitchen, however, cannot always be kept back so late as this, and it is often necessary when they get very forward to mate as early as February. But

I do not advise this if it can be avoided, as the risk of things going wrong is considerable. (2) The song of this bird will gradually grow stronger until it is in its normal condition. You may treat him for a fortnight as advised in first part of reply to "F. F." See he is not exposed to cold draughts. (3) It is immaterial which sex is the elder in a pair, provided, of course, both birds are in good breeding condition. (4) As a singer pure and simple, the Roller is easily first. Borders, Yorkshires, and Norwich come next, in the order named. To avoid disappointment, you should get one or two of our manuals—"Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; House's "Manual," 1s. 2d.; both post free, or "Our Canaries." The latter will inform you on every point from A to Z of Canary lore and breeding.
